N.A.B. Named

By JOHN GILMOUR

After having sat there nameless through the normal autumn complacence, the New Administration Building will finally get a name. On Founder's Day it will be named Curson Hall after the former President. Miss Helen Curson Langdon and Helen Poyar Curson, late benefactors and benefactrices of the College.

Dr. Carson has, since 1960, been a member of the University's Executive Council, and currently serves as Acting President of the Board of Directors. He was also the home economics chairman. His highly successful All-Urseas Anniversary Dinner Tours have established a permanent endowment fund, and have both received honorary doctorates from Union Point.

The naming of the New Administration Building will be a welcome addition to the newly expanded growth which the New Dorms have called for. The naming of the building is a work in progress, and the name will be revealed later this week. The naming ceremony will take place on Tuesday, October 15th.

Freshmen Elected Officers: Larry W. Estes President

By R. BRANT

Beneath the New Dorms' new newly-elected president, visibly perturbed that the Dorm B group of women for first execution with the presence of any opposition to the office. The chief point of issue was the fact that the chief group, which did not strike back at the Chief of Staff, did not have any active or passive opposition. The first image in terms of student enthusiasm for the plan was at the freshman dormitory where the president's perspective was not due to the fact that the freshman dormitory was not a closed institution.

As president of the freshman class and (the whole point is to introduce this newly-elected freshman, freshman president class president) of the N.J. Political Science, Gullar Struggles, and the Cinnaminson University consciousness-raising exercise for the majority who are uninitiated. Wunsche is not aware of the new dormitory, she tells the story of her early days, when she learned the rules which he felt to be too deeply rooted in tradition to be changed. As president of the freshman class and (the whole point is to introduce this newly-elected freshman, freshman president class president) of the N.J. Political Science, Gullar Struggles, and the Cinnaminson University consciousness-raising exercise for the majority who are uninitiated. Wunsche is not aware of the new dormitory, she tells the story of her early days, when she learned the rules which he felt to be too deeply rooted in tradition to be changed.

On October 15th, the official dedication of the new dormitory will take place. It is expected that the dormitory will be dedicated to the memory of Miss Helen Curson Langdon, who was the first woman to graduate from the college, and who was a prominent leader in the women's rights movement.

Radio Blare Out

It was a bill prohibiting discrimination against women in mortgage credit which President Ford signed in August. Unbelievably, a married woman has been unable to sign any papers relating to her personal and singularly property freshman year, that she has been refused credit cards in her own name whatever her personal income; a single woman finds bank loans difficult to get regardless of financial security, or if she is granted a loan it is generally smaller than what a single man with a similar financial position would be granted.

"Spokesmen" (sic N.Y. Times) for the feminist groups have had mixed reactions, some considering it a "major victory," others calling it a "half-measure." The anti-women's rights organizations have been peculiarly silent. My explanation for their taciturnity is that "equal pay for equal work" or any economic basis anti-discriminatory regulation is increasingly, though begrudgingly, accepted. The passage of this bill should demonstrate that the feminist organizations are calmly purposeful and logically direct in their approach, but even more so, as Senator Matroni (Boston, Mass.) said, "Women are a more integral part of our economic society today than ever before, and they have the right to have equal opportunity to obtain credit... if they are qualified for credit.

I also believe that the bill is a consciousness-raising exercise for the majority who are unaware of economic discrimination against women.

Disfranchisement? It goes both ways on this campus from eyebroker-raising at men who are planning on entering nursing, blatant amusement at women who walk into the pre-law and pre-medical buildings.

There are two people who walked into the pre-law and pre-medical buildings. One was a third year law student, and the other was a first year medical student. I had a chance to talk to both of them, and both were enthusiastic about the idea of being able to talk to each other.

The THE URUSINS WEEKLY

On October 10th the Senate outlawed credit discrimination based on sex or marital status by passing the bill known as the Depository Institutions Amendments Act, 1974. The New York Times called it the "second Federal breakthrough for women in credit discrimination." The "breakthrough" was a bill prohibiting discrimination against women in mortgage credit which President Ford signed in August.

Unbelievably, a married woman has been unable to sign any papers relating to her personal and singularly property freshman year, that she has been refused credit cards in her own name whatever her personal income; a single woman finds bank loans difficult to get regardless of financial security, or if she is granted a loan it is generally smaller than what a single man with a similar financial position would be granted.

"Spokesmen" (sic N.Y. Times) for the feminist groups have had mixed reactions, some considering it a "major victory," others calling it a "half-measure." The anti-women's rights organizations have been peculiarly silent. My explanation for their taciturnity is that "equal pay for equal work" or any economic basis anti-discriminatory regulation is increasingly, though begrudgingly, accepted. The passage of this bill should demonstrate that the feminist organizations are calmly purposeful and logically direct in their approach, but even more so, as Senator Matroni (Boston, Mass.) said, "Women are a more integral part of our economic society today than ever before, and they have the right to have equal opportunity to obtain credit... if they are qualified for credit.

I also believe that the bill is a consciousness-raising exercise for the majority who are unaware of economic discrimination against women.

Disfranchisement? It goes both ways on this campus from eyebroker-raising at men who are planning on entering nursing, blatant amusement at women who walk into the pre-law and pre-medical buildings.

There are two people who walked into the pre-law and pre-medical buildings. One was a third year law student, and the other was a first year medical student. I had a chance to talk to both of them, and both were enthusiastic about the idea of being able to talk to each other.
Hockey Highlights

By MELISSA MAGGS

The Varsity is just one of two varsity teams that played their first real game last Wednesday. Both teams started the 1974 season off in style with wins for their respective coaches, Varsity and Junior Varsities, 2-1 and 3-2 respectively. The game was played on their own home ice at the school’s gymnasium, which was used for a beautiful sunny day and evening festivities that followed the game.

The first half of the Varsity game was played on the ice, with Senior Farnell Barrhill scoring the only goal. A penalty stroke was called (false start) on the visitors and Farnell scored with ease on his penalty shot. This goal was the first of the game and the Varsity went on to win 3-2. The second half saw the Varsity extend their lead with goals by Senior John Dooley, who scored on a penalty shot, and Senior Ken Falk, who scored on a breakaway.

The Junior Varsity game was also played on the ice, with Senior Tim Herod scoring the only goal of the game. The Varsity went on to win 2-1. The game was played on the school’s gymnasium, which was used for a beautiful sunny day and evening festivities that followed the game. The second half saw the Varsity extend their lead with goals by Senior Brian Mooney, who scored on a penalty shot, and Senior Ken Falk, who scored on a breakaway.

The most ridiculous concept of the article was equating the quality of each life solely to the pursuit of happiness. In a state of happiness, it is a disposition available only to a single individual. In a state of unhappiness, it is a disposition available to all individuals. Happiness is a state of mind determined by each individual. Unhappiness is a state of mind experienced in every individual.

On Wednesday, the third game of the season was played on the junior ice with the Junior Varsities playing a close game in the second and third periods. The game ended with the Junior Varsities winning 3-2. The game was played on the school’s gymnasium, which was used for a beautiful sunny day and evening festivities that followed the game. The second half saw the Junior Varsities extend their lead with goals by Senior Tim Herod, who scored on a penalty shot, and Senior Ken Falk, who scored on a breakaway.