Dr. Cope Accepts History Post At U. Of Nebraska

By AMY HALBSTEIN

Dr. Esther Cope, Assistant Professor of History, will assume her position as head of the department at the University of Nebraska this fall. As the only female in the department, she decided to move from the University of Pennsylvania to Nebraska, where she feels the opportunities for women are better.

Dr. Cope has been a member of the University of Nebraska faculty since 1961, where she has served as a visiting professor of European History. She was recently appointed as a professor of History at the University of Pennsylvania, where she has been a member of the faculty for the past ten years. Dr. Cope is a member of the American Historical Association and the Society for the Study of American Women.

Questionnaire Summarized

This week we wind up the results of the questionnaire. The questionnaire was designed to elicit information concerning the athletic program at Ursinus College. Women's sports were not included in the questionnaire due to the coaching limitations. The men's sports were included, however, as well as a majority of those responding suggested better recruiting, and others commented on the lack of support for the program. However, the poll shows that the vast majority of the student body is interested in the athletic program.

George Baus Wins Scholarship

The award, which is one of the most prestigious in the nation, is given to a senior who has demonstrated outstanding academic achievement and has demonstrated leadership qualities.

U C Faculty Hears Speaker From AA UP

By RUTH VON KUMMER

On Monday, May 12, an AAUP meeting was held at Ursinus College to hear a presentation by the Executive Secretary of the AAUP chapters in Pennsylvania, Dr. Richard C. Winchester. His topic was Collective Bargaining. The meeting was open to all faculty members, and approximately half of the college's teaching faculty were present.

Dr. Winchester, a graduate of Ursinus in 1937, received his Ph.D. from Harvard in 1941 and is presently an Associate Professor of History at Lincoln University. The following are some of the points learned from Dr. Winchester's speech.

The meeting was primarily an informational one to acquaint the faculty with the pro's and con's of the formation of a union and the process by which it is done. AAUP signifies the American Association of University Professors. Attendance was good in correspondence with the desire of a large number of faculty members to hear such a speech. Two of the reasons prompting such an action are the concern regarding faculty salaries and governance, salaries to select an example, for professors at Ursinus have not kept up with the cost of living by any means in recent years.

The AAUP, established in 1915, is the oldest and largest group of college and university professors. Its purpose is basically to represent and protect the interests of the college professors belonging to it. Their means of doing this are freedom and tenure. Any violation of these principles is met with the censure of various institutions by the AAUP.

The organization supports the concept of "shared governance" which allows the faculty the right to give their opinions and make decisions along with the administration. This applies to both academic and curricular matters. AAUP also conducts an annual survey of the pay scales which professors at different schools in the nation receive. They are then broken and broken down according to the various censuses of various institutions by the AAUP.

Four years of academic life are now almost at an end. Yet here you are in the spring of 1975 and it now seems incredible that you are a graduate of this college, your college, the alma mater of many of us. As you look back over the past three years, you must consider that a Freshman year is spent learning how to be with people and how to study and how to party and just plain grow up and that a Senior year is the beginning of your life as a college student, you are left with three years. You become a known entity, a member of a well-known institution, and it is the beginning of the next step in your life. You are always thinking about what you have learned from your experiences in and out of the classroom, and whether or not you will recognize them when you do not.

Let’s look at problems from a different angle. Can we bring about any organizations on campus that help to encourage the sense of competition in each other as the fraternities and sororities do? It seems we are always fighting against what is essential to life, so why not change the constant criticism against each other? Can we not love each other? In other words, can we not encourage an organization that deals with the problems here in a more positive way? Perhaps we must assume the administration is out to get them. The administration is not necessarily against the students, but the result, the deal, will be a real disaster. It is not now our job to change the administration but to prove that the people have brace themselves for their future. It is an I told you situation.

The challenge here should be to set a reasonable goal of accomplishment, and again, you are in attainment of the goal. The recent goal setting this class has the year been the best yet. The class of 1975 should be able to reach for the goal. The goals are the limits of our personal and community goals. This community knows that if we are not careful to remedy the situation here it is necessary, though not always easy, to improve on the goals. In reflection, four years as a student is a long time. It is not an answer to questions. We have an answer in the form of feedback and ideas on the driving force behind change. The constant application of thought and action leads to personal growth and beneficial goal setting will ease the pain of change. At times, the work is reward. The work is not enough to move a goal forward.

We must continue to work for a reasonable goal of accomplishment. Work for those goals, work for your future. Our future is in our hands now. The best way to improve the situation is to improve on the goals. The goal is to destroy the college but stagnation and uncompromising opinion will not work.

Reflections

BY RICH MCINTYRE

We believe in the importance of reflection, which is the process of thinking about an event or experience and how it has affected us. In this article, I would like to discuss the concept of reflection and its role in personal development.

Reflection is a crucial aspect of life. It allows us to learn from our experiences, both positive and negative, and to make adjustments to our behavior and actions accordingly. Without reflection, we are likely to repeat the same mistakes and behaviors, which can negatively impact our lives and those around us.

It is important to take time for reflection, whether it be at the end of a day, week, or month. This can help us to gain insight into our thoughts, feelings, and behaviors, and to identify areas for improvement.

Reflection is not just for adults. It is an essential part of our growth and development at all stages of life. Children can benefit from reflection, as it helps them to develop critical thinking skills and to make sense of their experiences.

In conclusion, reflection is a powerful tool for personal growth and development. By taking the time to reflect on our experiences, we can gain valuable insights and make positive changes in our lives.

Spring Festival Review

By ANN WEIZBAEHL

The highlight of Parent's Day on Saturday, May 10th, was Spring Festival. The theme was "Mardi Gras," which accurately reflected the enthusiasm of the program. The program included music, dance, and food, and a final scholarship dance was held to be held in the Women's Quad. The theme of the day was "Spring," and the entire program was moved to the Women's Quad, which was filled with color and excitement. The day concluded with a successful dance, which demonstrated the true sense of the word.

Other part, you are making the true sense of the word.

Pam Ricci and Doreen Rhoades headlined the entertainment, "We Hear the Music." Two girls, dressed as cowboys, led a lively band which incorporated modern jazz and swing styles. The girls danced together, in close synchrony, which displayed their abilities, as well as their teamwork. The evening concluded with a lively Soda dance. Next door, Doreen soloed for a modern dance style. The girls performed a lively ballet. The music was performed by five girls, eleven in number, who were led by AN. The music was performed in modern selective areas. The results were very effective dance activities.

According to Dennis Parker, the Spring Festival was a great help with our volunteer program at Pennhurst. It was quite a poignant scene to see the enthusiasm of the program. The shirts, with greaser hair styles, were worn by the actual quartet. A dance was performed in modern Jazz style. "A Pretty Little Angel," performed by the Collegeville Fire Company, was one of the most colorful of the day. The girls were dressed in black bodysuits and hot pink tights and ties. Garbage cans and cases were the property used to interpret the popular tune, "Pretty Little Angel." The dance was quite effective, and the dancers really enjoyed themselves.

Part of this enthusiasm stems from a family tradition. It was quite a day for us, the audience, subject to movements. The girls were led by Susan Heffernan, who served as faculty advisor this year. The audience, which was the longest on the program, was quite effective in interpreting the popular tune. Concert Review: Jesse Colin Young

By ALAN E. STETLER

Musical performances were well received by students during this semester. Much of the credit goes to the department of mass media, which held the concerts during its annual series: "The Arts on Campus." Both Jesse Colin Young and Jimmie Young attracted huge crowds with their respective performances.

Jesse Colin Young

Jesse Colin Young made his one appearance at the Academy of Music a week ago Saturday. After a delay of twenty minutes, Young stepped on the stage with no introduction. He was mobbed by a nondescribe group of fans who have yet to make their names known to themselves, and probably never will if they do not begin to paint the town or stay out late. The rest condemned it. One asked if there were reservations for all majors (such computer study). Young and his partner voiced some of the reasons for the partial closure.

The highlights of the evening was the song "Jambalaya," the title of which was taken from a popular blues song. The song stirred up what had become a general musical sensation during the course of the program. Llater in the program they played "Home," during which the keyboard man, who did not follow the lead but made some barefoot shuffle of his own. The audience seemed to be enjoying the music.

As the show drew to a close, the audience became more receptive and appreciative, and it was now it was too late. Jesse and company could not sustain the enthusiasm. In many cases, the standing ovation has become meaningless and trite due to overuse, and I think this concert was a prime example of the group's reaction to their recent hit "Lightning Man." It seemed almost as if the audience had expected the standing ovation before they played the song.

Overall the program was good, but not outstanding. Perhaps the image of the concert was due to its sharpness, or its format. It was not to be expected because it seems to be necessary for a performer such as Jesse Colin Young. Definitively it was not the best that Young is capable of presenting as he is one that he "wished," which she helped compose; her voice was completely inaudible. This appeared to be a result of a complete lack of effort to project her voice through the auditorium, the sound equipment, or the audience itself. This is a result of the program being rushed to be announced. There was barely five minutes to due to start 10:10, and it seemed as if they were in a hurry to get the audience from the other show (free jazz) to exit quickly.

From my seat in the first row of the concert hall, Young was the second principal, when they arrived, the audience was different. They were swayed by the music of the hall. The sound quality, however, was excellent for the major part of the program. Most of the songs were from Young's most recent album titled "Train," where the music was well received. The music was better than expected, and the experience was valid as quickly as possible. He was composed, relatively quiet, and never seemed to be in a rush to please the audience, but he didn't seem to be putting his finest effort into it.

Young's most recent album of songs by his wife Susie in the first of four albums that he has "wished," which she helped compose; her voice was completely inaudible. This appeared to be a result of a complete lack of effort to project her voice through the auditorium, the sound equipment, or the audience itself. This is a result of the program being rushed to be announced. Miller Chosen

PI Gamma Mu, national honor society for social sciences, has returned to the University Community. Dr. William Miller was chosen by the organization's board of trustees during their recent meeting in New Orleans. He was presented with the title of national president for PI Gam­ ma Mu, Dr. Miller is president of the Northwestern Political Science Association which encompasses Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, and New England.

After graduating from Ursinus in 1930, Dr. Miller returned two years later as a member of the faculty and became chairman of the Political Science Department in 1941. He served as a senatorial candidate in the U.S. Army Strategic Studies Institute between 1946 and 1950 and was Field Lieu­ tenant in Mexico, California, and New Jersey.

and would restate a great deal of the strain inherent in the present policy. One of these hours are: Fri., 5:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.; Sat., 12:00 noon - 2:00 p.m.; and Sun., 12:00 noon - 8:00 p.m. These hours are for all dorms. In order to accommodate the wishes of those students who desire no change in the present policy, we have also proposed that there are dorms and off campus that could specifically be closed to members of the opposite sex.

In an effort to make a reasonable proposal the U.S.A.S. has surveyed five schools that compete with Ursinus for candidates for applicants. These schools were Franklin and Marshall, Dick­ son, Albright, Rutgers, and Muh­ lenberg. We found out that all schools have a different amount of hours than Ursinus on the week­ end, and the hours are also open during the week.

As I'm sure many of you have been, the U.S.A.S. also has received letters from the parents of all current Ursinus students. This letter has been presented our proposal and asked them to sign the statement of two statements. Those are:

I feel that my son/daughter is capable of handling the responsibility of the proposed visitation policy.

I do not feel that my son/daughter is capable of handling the responsibility of the proposed visitation policy.

There were many suggestions in the questionnaires that we have not been able to act on yet. The one most overwhelming responses came in regard to the visitation policy as it now stands. Over 50% of the students responding would like to see the policy changed. There are a few students who feel that the present policy is satisfactory, and one person would like to change the hours.

The U.S.A.S. has drawn up a proposal that we feel is reasonable.

Dick Allen Returns

By JOE SARACO

In 1969, he was Richie Allen: a young, immature, superstard, who was more interested in parties and the press than in baseball. Today, he is Dick Allen, Mississippi State's New Superstar, and he is back to playing baseball for the Philadelphia Phillies. Allen is leading the majors with 38 home runs and 98 runs batted in, and he has acquired Allen's contract from the Chicago White Sox.

The hurling was as good as it had erupted play twice. This time the Bears were bombed by Scranton 7-4, 6-7, 0-6, respectively. Second and third singles, Helene Ludwig and Harrison, won their sets 6-3, 6-0, and 6-4, 6-2. First doubles Patty Barber and Richard Cress had his lowest game score 6-2, 6-4.

Women's Tennis Honors

The Ursinus women's tennis team captured three events and won team honors recently at the Mid-Atlantic Conference championships at Gettysburg College.

Larry Bowe, Maddox, Greg Luskinis, Allen, and Mike Schmidt could be hazardous to the health of opponents pitching. The first three are all hundred hitters; the next five are 90. The Luskinis appears ready to become the great slugger that he was led the National League in homers last year. Allen is the most underrated player and could hit over 300, and should do no worse than 300. Anderson didn't get a hit after the eighth inning but has recovered and is now at 276.

The next day, Ursinus hosted Albright but lost to Moravian byfall

Highly anticipated was the opening day which was made so nice; unless the weather was going to ac­quaint the crowd with the grand base­ment. Montanas would have had to move to right field, with Mike Andro­dson going to centerfield. Mon­tañes is not a great outfielder, and the club is much better. Anderson remained in right and the Bears were going to be rare when a ball is hit be­tween the gaps.

The Bears were bombed by Scranton 7-4, 6-7, 0-6, respectively. Second and third singles, Helene Ludwig and Harrison, won their sets 6-3, 6-0, and 6-4, 6-2. First doubles Patty Barber and Richard Cress had his lowest game score 6-2, 6-4.
