REPORTED.

Mount Independence, June 16, 1876.

The annual session of the General Court of the State of Vermont was opened on the morning of the first day of June, by the Hon. Thomas Goodwin, Governor of the State, who read the address of the Senate and House of Representatives and the Governor's message, which was adopted. The Governor then delivered his address to the Legislature, in which he reviewed the past year, and referred to the prospects of the future. The Governor's speech was of a general character, and embraced many topics of public interest. He expressed his confidence in the ability of the Legislature to discharge its duties, and said that he trusted that the Legislature would proceed with dispatch, and that it would not be delayed by unnecessary divisions or discussions.
