ProTheatre To Present "Second Shepherd's Play"
By MARY LOU HUNSBERGER
ProTheatre is now rehearsing "The Second Shepherd's Play," a medieval drama, to be presented in five performances beginning tonight through Thursday. The play centers around three shepherds and a flock of sheep who are tested by herding and razing a field of grass.

The number one news item in a large part of the world this winter is, of course, the fuel crisis. As the Arab nations cut back on the amount of oil they export to the U.S., the energy crisis has forced many businesses to operate at a lower efficiency. The effect of the energy crisis will, of course, be felt on the Ur- binia campus, as well. Professor Miller is the director of the energy crisis, as he has been for the past two years.

The Messiah choir, along with the director and other officers of the music group, will perform in a Christmas program on December 15th and 16th. The program will consist of traditional Christmas carols, as well as some modern pieces. The Messiah choir, under the direction of Mr. Howlett, will be accompanied by the orchestra. The audience is invited to enjoy the program and to sing along with the choir.

ProTheatre welcomes you to an enjoyable evening at their production of "The Second Shepherds' Play." Tickets are $1.00 for adults, $50c for children, and $0.50 for others, and will be sold at the door, but there is a limited supply. For tickets, see Renny Schellhammer or Kate Swanson.

ECONOMICS
Club Goes To New York
By ROBERT A. SMALL
The Economics Club was invited to the financial district of New York City by the New York Stock Exchange, for a tour of the Educational Tour to New York. The tour included visits to various financial institutions and businesses, including the Federal Reserve Bank, and a lecture at Irving Trust.

The high point of the day was the Stock Exchange, which is open to the public during the day. The group was guided through the Federal Reserve in groups of ten for security purposes. The highlight of their visit was seeing the largest deposit of gold in the free world. At the official price, the gold was worth over $2,000. This is substantially below the market value. There were over one million 20-pound gold bricks representing the reserves of many nations.

The high point of the day was the visit to the New York Stock Exchange, which is in the heart of Wall Street. After the tour, there was a meeting of the Economics Club at the New York Athletic Club.

U. C. Band To Play On Monday
By PAT MILLER
The U. C. Band will perform in a Christmas program on Monday, December 10th, starting at 6:45 p.m. in Bemberg Chapel. The program will feature a variety of Christmas carols and holiday favorites. The band is under the direction of Dr. Schotter, and will be accompanied by the University Choir. The audience is invited to join in the singing of some of the carols, and to enjoy the festive atmosphere of the evening.

The program will also feature a special guest, Dr. Eugene Miller, who will speak on the topic of energy conservation. Dr. Miller is the President of the Pennsylvania Political Science Association, and is a respected scholar in the field. His speech will be followed by a Q&A session, where the audience is encouraged to ask questions and participate in the discussion.

The performance will be open to the public, and admission is free. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m., and the program will begin at 7:00 p.m. For more information, please contact the University Band Office at (555) 123-4567.
Editorial

The Energy Predicament

It is apparent to all now that we are indeed in a real crisis as far as energy is concerned. One need only travel the roads at any time of the day to notice the smaller number of cars. And it is a good sign to see that people at Ursinus are turning off lights when not in their rooms, lowering the thermostats and using the bathroom lights only when in the house. Although we are not doing these things to defy Nixon, we can only suggest that your refusals to help will hurt us all. It would be a good idea if readers of the Weekly would send their suggestions to help the alumnos to: The Weekly, Box 3, and drop it in the intra-campus mail slots.

I was glad to hear that some of the northern universities are considering a decrease in the size of their enrollments. It makes sense to save the fuel at educational institutions and use it in private homes. The Weekly would heartily support a similar decision by Ursinus if the decision were made to extend it to 1972. Richard Nixon can hope as strongly as it wants for a mild winter, but if it does not turn out that way, and oil continues to be as scarce as it is now, drastic measures will have to be taken.

While this is not a time for panic, it is a time for sacrifice. Last Sunday we heard reports that sounded like some futuristic novel. Shotguns in every household, deaths from future fire!! Frank Gorshin and Red Buttons, Folk Festival 6-22.

Ben-Gurion

The death last Saturday of the founding father of one of the greatest modern diplomats and humanitarians, David Ben-Gurion, takes from the freedom loving peoples everywhere the same inspiration that the father of the Jewish people has given his people throughout the centuries.

David Ben-Gurion combined common sense with intellect and diplomatic prowess with proud integrity in Jewry to build an independent Israel into the powerful country it is today. His loss will be felt throughout the Western world, but the fact Ben-Gurion had in those people must now be embraced by them to keepIsrael alive and a leader in strength and unity.

Class of ’73 Active In Many Fields

Since their Commencement in June, members of the class of ’73 have been extremely active in various paths. Debbie Wenger, class secretary, has written a letter about members of the ’73 class. Here’s what it reported:

Lynne Clark Bronner, who was married to William B. Bronner, ‘73, a classmate and former class president, is attending Hahnemann Medical College... Marita Marcinkiewicz is attending Temple University Medical School... Mark Grin, Jr. is attending Drexel University School of Engineering... Diana Hoffman, ‘74, is a first-year law student at Catholic University... Billy Jones is doing graduate work in ornithology at Villanova University... Linda Rider is at Rutgers Graduate School in the Department of Biology... Roberta Gross is in the School of Microbiology of the College of Agriculture at Pennsylvania State University... Larry Gouloff is attending Pennsylvania State University... Scott Rivkin, ‘74, is a pre-med student at Villanova University... Donna Hunsicker, ‘74, is a pre-med student at Temple University... Kim DeFolco is attending Kettering University...

Choosing the right career is an important decision in one’s life. Over the years, many factors come into play in the decision-making process. One factor that has often been overlooked is the need for education in the field of interest. Education is crucial for individuals to gain the knowledge and skills necessary to succeed in their chosen career.

The importance of education cannot be overstated. It is a key factor in determining one’s future success. Education provides the foundation for career advancement and personal growth. It also enables individuals to make informed decisions and contribute to the betterment of society.

In conclusion, education is an essential component of a successful career. It is important for individuals to consider the value of education when making career decisions. By investing in education, individuals can lay the groundwork for a prosperous and fulfilling career.

Wickensham Publishes Book, His First, On Greek History Of Fourth Century B.C.

By SHIRLEY TRIMBLE

Dr. Wickersham, head of the Classics Department here at Ursinus, has published his work, "The Greek Historical Documents - the Fourth Century, B.C.", which is a series of treatises written by different authors covering the period 403-366 B.C. The idea to write such an awe-inspiring book, presented in chronological order, taming the documents themselves, a map of the ancient Greek world, and a pertinent bibliography of the time.

The idea to write such an awesome undertaking was first conceived in 1971, but the eleventh-month of drafting the manuscript didn’t begin until February of 1972. Research of materials was held at a minimum since most of the information included in the book was obtained through the examination and condensing of facts that the author had gathered over the years.

Four distinct reasons for pursuing the original idea of writing a series of treatises on Greek history emerged during the course of my conversations with Dr. Wickersham. Certainly, the prospects of financial reward and public notoriety would be strong incentives, but the same publisher had already been approached with a similar idea and rejected the proposal.

Another reason, one that is self-evident, is the fact that the book will probably not be used in the courses pertaining to Greek studies, so it is a genuine need. Finally, a book just for its own sake, such a genuinely needed and valuable piece of literature authored by a man of such distinction, a genuine contribution to the study of Greek history. His overwhelming interest in this aspect of his subject is supported by the fact that he recently lectured on "Alexander the Macedonian" as the guest of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

In general, the book is practical as both an introduction to direct study for beginners and a handy reference for experts. However, due to the length, and material presented, and to the fact that this book is not now teaching a course in Greek history, the book will probably not be used in any course.

On Wednesday, November 14th, the 14th Socratic Club Lecture was delivered by Dr. Fago. The title of the lecture was "Neuro-Behaviorism: The Study of Someone?," and it was a part of the series of lectures on the study of human behavior.

In general, neuro-behaviorism is a discipline that focuses on the study of behavior and its underlying causes. It is a branch of psychology that seeks to explain the relationship between the brain and behavior.

The lecture started with a discussion of the factors that influence behavior, such as genetics, environment, and culture. Dr. Fago then went on to explain how the brain and nervous system work together to produce behavior.

One of the main points of the lecture was that behavior is not simply a matter of responding to stimuli. Instead, it is a complex process that involves the interaction of many different factors. Dr. Fago emphasized the importance of understanding these factors in order to better understand the complexities of human behavior.

The lecture concluded with a discussion of the implications of neuro-behaviorism for our understanding of the mind and behavior. Dr. Fago encouraged the audience to think critically about the nature of behavior and to explore this fascinating field of study further.

Overall, the lecture was informative and engaging, and it provided a deeper understanding of the complex relationship between the brain and behavior. Dr. Fago's lecture is a testament to the power of neuro-behaviorism in helping us to better understand ourselves and others.
KILT KLADE'S COMMENT:
Hockey Bearettes Go To Long Beach

By HELEN LUDWIG and MARILYN HIRSCH

Senior Janet Line and Sally (Boomer) Anderson attended the hockey nationals in Boston during their spring vacation. A crowd of Ursinus hockey players also were there to watch the action and cheer-on the two Ursinus representatives. Even though Missy Herold got food poisoning, the trip to Boston proved a success for Janet Line and Sally Anderson. Missy was one of the U. S. reserve team. Congratulations!!

Swimming Team

The girls' swimming team opened their season on November 10, when a meet with Swarthmore was scheduled. The team scored 90 points to place second behind host Pennsylvania. The team now has two months to prepare for the rest of the season. The meet will be the Penn Relays in late January.

by GEORGE CEST

Once again another twelve months have passed, and once again, great things were accomplished by Coach Pry's Ursinus basketballers during the 1973-74 season. In the final analysis it could conceivably be the season where losing streaks are corrected, where varsity basketball becomes a reality, so that the teams themselves would become conscious of that reality. As the minutes passed, the Bears tight defense resulted in personal foul trouble and Coach Pry was forced to call in the substitutes. With a fairly inexperienced group of Delofe, Fisher, Fraster, and McDonald, along with the guard play of Jack Messinger, the Bears, time after time broke the Haverford man press but at the same time failed to score. Haverford had now cut the Bear lead to only nine after the Bears poor four scoreless minutes.

Coach Pry, with 4:40 remaining in the game clock, called time out and the starting five returned to the contest. Immediately, the Bears broke the drought on a Ruskey to Weigant to Kinek to Boardman. However, one minute later, Bear captain George Kinek drew his fifth foul of the game and the contest's outcome was now in doubt. By 1:02 remaining U.S.G.A. freshman Jay Delfoe scored a lay-up on a fast break from Stibbits and the Bears had an eight point lead (with 1:02 remaining) which proved too much for a desperate Haverford. Freshman guard Mike Ruskey, completed a fine game by making a clutch steal and adding four charity tosses in the closing seconds of the 68-62 Bear win.
