TODAY'S GAME

THIS afternoon, when the final whistle blows, the twenty-eighth game in the Ursinus-F. and M. series will be a thing of the past. But in the three hours preceding that time, there will take place a contest that promises to be among the best of those twenty-eight.

Each of these ancient rivals is out of win at any cost—within, of course, the realm of clean sportsmanship. For the outcome of this gridiron battle means more—much more—than merely another game won or lost. To the visiting Nevonians it means the breaking of a four-year losing streak and the death of the Ursinus "jinx." To the Grizzlies it means the fifth successive conquest of their traditional rival and the fifth annual holiday in honor of such a victory.

The spirit of friendly enmity existing between these two colleges dates back to the waning years of the last century when in 1898 they met on the gridiron for the first time. Thus for thirty-six years, with few breaks, an F. and M.-Ursinus game has been looked forward to with great enthusiasm by the students and alumni of both institutions. And fourteen times out of twenty-seven, Ursinus has rejoiced and celebrated its holiday.

Therein lies the significance of today's game; let's see the record of the past four years continued.

OUR VISITORS

OUR visitors today, none other than Ursinus' most bitter rivals, come to Patterson Field with an enviable record. A team that has conquered such schools as Rutgers and Lafayette needs no further praise. And that is exactly what the proteges of Coach Alan M. Holman have done.

Franklin and Marshall boasts this year of a club which in many respects is far superior to any of the Nevonian teams turned out at the Lancaster institution for the past two decades. Coach Holman asserts that the Blue and White team is as well balanced as any team he has ever coached, and as for power, F. & M. has plenty. The 1934 Lancaster outfit has at least two complete backfields in which little difference can be found as to the ability of the players. Elusive backs such as Karvasales, Wenrich, Sola, Medwick, Hummer, Rampulla, and Sielski do not often appear on the same team together. Coach Holman also boasts of such veteran linemen as Omer Cannon, Tubby Ehrensberger, Ed Dinsmore, Woody Sponagle, and others, who have played a big part in keeping the Nevonians' slate clean in the three contests played so far this year.

F. & M. is hoping to keep her record intact and for that reason will put her versatile strength against the best Ursinus can offer. The Bears have a tough job on their hands, but all loyal Collegeville rooters are hoping they rise from their underdog position and perform equal to the occasion. It should be a great battle!

THE GAME FROM THE BEARS STANDPOINT

URSINUS' chances today against F. & M. are not too bright. The unexpected poor showing of the Bears in the St. Joe's game last Saturday dampened many hopes that were raised to heights when the Grizzlies outfought Penn, 7-6, two weeks ago. On the other hand, F. & M. comes here with an undefeated, powerful club.

But no time this year has Ursinus put the same team on the field. In the opener at Villanova, the Grizzlies were the victims of a revengeful Wildcat, and after fighting until the game was assuredly lost, the Bears became listless and only went through the motions of playing while Villanova rode on easily to victory.

A week later at Penn, Ursinus made football history. McAvoy's gridders furnished the upset of the week and played like a big university eleven. But thus risen to football supremacy, the Bears took a far too superior attitude and were caught napping at St. Joseph's last week. The Hawks were out to get Ursinus, and although the Bears pushed them all over the field, a scrappy home team prevented Penn's conquerors from scoring a touchdown.

With the odds against the Grizzlies, with the statistics on paper favoring F. & M., one might think there is little hope for an Ursinus victory. Yet that person will have forgotten one thing—that indomitable, fighting Grizzly spirit which always rises to unsurpassed heights when Ursinus encounters F. & M.

WELCOME, OLD TIMERS!

WELCOME, Old Timers! This annual home-coming is to Ursinus the most colorful of all football week-ends. And to make it doubly so this year, Franklin and Marshall is the team opposing the Bears on Patterson Field today.

The usual Old Timers banquet and the usual Old Timers Dance will be held later in the day, while the football game this afternoon climaxes a three-sport program with F. & M. today.

Nothing has been overlooked. We hope for the best in the athletic contests against our rivals, and assure you, alumni, of a pleasant evening of social activity. Old friendships may be renewed, old acquaintances remembered. Let's all get into the midst of the true Ursinus spirit, the warmth of her friendship, the fight of her teams. Let's make today a rousing home-coming for everybody and assure Old Timers' Day of a complete success. Again, welcome, Old Timers!

Rule Changes

1. The circumference of the short axis of the 1934 ball is almost an inch shorter than that of the 1933 ball.

2. Should any part of the ball be up to or beyond the stake when measuring, it will be considered as a first down.

3. One incomplete forward pass may be thrown over the goal line in the same series of downs (except on fourth down) and the ball will be returned to the spot where it was put in play and count as a down.

4. There will be no penalty for incomplete forward passes.

5. If one team punts and the ball fails to go over the line of scrimmage, the ball can be advanced by the opposing team if they recover it. Moreover, if a member of the opposing team fumbles the ball as he is advancing it, and it is recovered by the team which originally punted, it counts as a first down for this team.

6. Body and arm movements are to be interpreted as a false start.

7. Clarification of punting: a punt is made by a player holding or dropping the ball and he or another player kicking it before it reaches the ground.

8. No player in possession of the ball may have any portion of his person other than his hands or feet touching the ground except the holder of the ball in a place kick. The holder of the ball in the latter case may have his knee on the ground.

9. It is legal for the man, with his knee on the ground apparently in the position for a place kick, to raise his knee from the ground just before the ball reaches his hands and toss the ball back for either a pass or a run.

10. If one team tries a forward pass which is touched by one man on that team and then caught by another from the same team before it is touched by an opponent, it is illegal.

JACK McAVOY
Head Coach

Jack McAvoy and "Horse" Chase, names as familiar to the Ursinus football world as Rockne's is to Notre Dame, have produced this year an unusual team; a team that has caused upsets both satisfying and otherwise, in the three games waged so far. "Mac," who hails from Dartmouth with an All-American mention tacked to his name, has improvised his own system of offense for the '34 Grizzlies, and hopes that today this system will produce a smooth-working aggregation against the Nevonians.

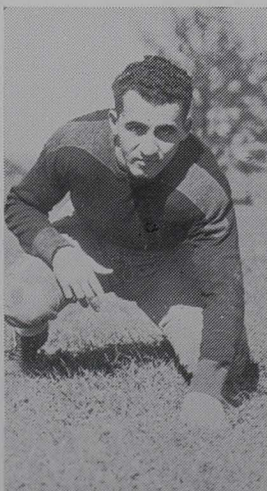

HORSE CHASE
Line Coach

"Horse," the man-mountain from Pitt who grabbed a tackle berth in the 1926 All-American team, is coaching the line and assisting McAvoy for the fourth year. He prophesies that if the Ursinus line plays as well as it did against Penn two weeks ago, F. & M.'s gridders will have trouble aplenty on their hands. In the three years that these tutors have directed Ursinus football machines, the Bears captured the Conference crown once and tied for the championship another time.

Here we have Sam Levin, captain of the 1934 Grizzly team. Sam has held down a varsity tackle position for the past three years, and is rated as one of the conference's hardest charging linemen. Ever since Sammy was in college F & M. has been defeated, and he will do his best to lead his squad of spirited Bears to victory today.

Bears vs. Nevonians

WITH the F. & M. contest today, Ursinus once again wages war on her traditional rival. This spirit of friendly enmity dates back to the childhood days of football, the fall of '98, when the Bears first met the Blue and White team on the gridiron. Within those thirty-six years, twenty-seven games have been played. In this almost continuous series, only four breaks have occurred, the longest being the period from 1904 to 1909 when no games were played. On only three other years have the Grizzlies failed to meet up with their Lancaster rivals, in 1903, 1918, and 1922. This is the twelfth year in succession that the F. & M. contest has appeared on our schedule.

In reviewing the results of the past battles, one is struck by the apparent equality of these two ancient rivals. Of the twenty-seven games already played, Ursinus has just a slight edge, having won 14 to F. & M.'s 11, two of the contests having resulted in a tie. The very first game of the series, back in 1898, ended in a 10-10 tie, the other drawn battle occurring in 1914.

Although the Bears at present hold the longer end of the stick, this is a record of only a few years' standing, for five years ago, in 1929, F. & M. was leading the Bears, 11 victories to 10. The last four contests have resulted in wins for the Grizzlies, thus giving them their three-game lead. To draw a further comparison, from the beginning of the series until 1919, a period of twenty-one years, the Lancastrians had the edge on Ursinus, due to their flying start of three wins out of the first four games played, the other being the 1898 tie.

In a series like this, it is natural to expect several outstanding, perhaps even spectacular games. Of these, besides the two ties, there appear about four of more than ordinary interest. The first occurred in 1901, when Dr. John Lentz was an important part of the Ursinus eleven. This was an F. & M. victory, when the enemy team nosed out the Bears by one point, winning 6-5. Twenty-two years later, another contest was played, the outcome of which hung on the success of a field goal. This time it was the Bears who came through with the long end of the score of 3-0.

It may be significant that the other two thrillers have taken place within the college careers of the present senior class. When this year's most distinguished upper classmen were still travelling around in their dinks and ties, Ursinus journeyed to Lancaster and nosed out a 7-6 victory in a contest which is still talked about on the campus. And only last year, when the game seemed destined to result in a 0-0 tie, Gene Bradford snared a pass in the waning minutes of play and crossed the goal line to win both a victory and a holiday with the only score of the day.

On the other hand, there have been several distinctly one-sided affairs in the course of the series. The most complete swamping either team received was given to Ursinus in 1921, when the Blue and White gridsters amassed a total of 41 points to the Bears' none. Ursinus once piled up a score of 34 points against the ancient enemy (1927), but it was not as complete a beating as it might appear, for F. & M. did manage to cross our goal line once.

The closeness of the contests can well be seen by the total scores of each team for the twenty-seven contests. Ursinus is leading by a mere five points, having amassed a total of 264 to F. & M.'s 259. This margin was attained only last year, for previous to the 1933 6-0 win, F. & M. led with 259 to our 258 points. Further proof of the closeness, if any is needed, is shown by the point averages per game, the Bears averaging 9.7 points to the enemy's 9.6 points.

There have been no outstanding winning streaks throughout the entire thirty-six years, the present record of four straight victories for Ursinus being the record for the series. Twice in the past the Bears have managed to gain three wins in a row and F. & M. has performed this feat once. The Grizzlies have been shut out only seven times and F. & M. has drawn a goose egg in the scoring column only eight times.

The Blue and White Mentor

ALAN M. HOLMAN

Alan M. Holman, head coach of football at F. and M., is completing his fourth year with that institution. He came from Ohio State University where he played three years as quarterback, captained the team his senior year, and received All-American mention for fine playing. His F. and M. team has shown rapid strides with each year, and comes to Collegetown with an unblemished record so far this season.

F. & M. Co-Captains

OMER CANNON

Omer Cannon, one of the F. and M. co-captains, holds down the left guard position for the Nevonians. Being a senior, this will be Cannon's last opportunity to battle with the Ursinus Bears. He intends to make up for last year's defeat, a game in which he was unable to play due to a serious back injury received earlier in the season.

Michael Karvasales, the other F. and M. co-captain, was an All-Conference halfback last year. Although he weighs only 142 pounds, he makes up for his lack of weight in speed, being noted for his spectacular ball carrying. Karvasales is also playing his last season of football for the Nevonians.

Among Football's Hall of Fame

EVERYONE has heard of the fame and prowess of baseball's Ruth, golf's Jones, boxing's Dempsey, and swimming's Weissmuller, for year after year these and other sports heroes have performed heroic feats afield. Football demigods are not so permanent, for once the slippery halfback or the All-American tackle have played their three years of varsity ball, graduation robs the gridiron very often of a future football immortal. Yet in the short undergraduate period that many of the greatest players have had, they have stamped their fame on gridiron history by feats that hardly seem possible.

Take for instance the case of Brick Muller, the greatest of all All-American ends. Brick, a giant from the University of California, made history in 1920 by whipping a forward pass seventy yards from the line of scrimmage into the hands of a teammate behind the Ohio State goal line in the Rose Bowl game. Seventy yards straight and swiftly it sped, a record that seems to be safe from being broken. Critics remember Brick because of that, and other feats, such as allowing only one gain around his end in three years of football.

George Gipp is to Notre Dame what Muller is to California. Gipp gave his life for his team, and stamped himself as a gridiron immortal when in 1916 he drop-kicked a field goal 62 yards against Western Reserve.

Out at Montana they still remember the feat of freshman Forest Peters, who in a single game drop-kicked seventeen field goals. All other football feats of 1924 were mere incidentals to this. Walter Eckersall of Chicago, and Charley Brickley of Harvard, are other memorable drop-kickers and gridiron greats. Neither must we forget the feats of the one and only "Galloping Ghost," Red Grange.

Knute Rockne always loved to tell this story about Jim Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian, who, many believe, was the most versatile athlete who ever trod a playing field. Jim could run, kick, pass, block, tackle, and win games by himself if it was necessary. It seems that one day Rockne, in his playing days, against the Carlisle team was holding a tackle position. Jim knew Knute and resolved to have some fun with him. Before one play the burly Indian approached Rockne and said, "Me come through you next time."

"Rock" prepared himself, grimly bent on stopping the Indian. Came the play and—thud, Rockne stopped Jim cold without gain. Jim got up and grunted, "Good boy, Knute, him stop Jim good!"

But Rockne knew he wasn't through, and he was correct. Once again Thorpe tried, and this time Knute tossed Jim for a yard loss. Jim patted "Rock's" head and again congratulated him. "Good boy, Knute, him stop Jim again!" The third play was again directed at Rockne. The contact was terrific, but "Rock" was equal to the occasion and spilled Thorpe for a two-yard loss.

Although noticeably angry, Jim again grunted the usual "Good boy, Knute, him stop Jim. Me try again." Although Knute had done nobly on three thrusts at him, he knew something was going to happen this time. And he was not mistaken.

Signals were called. The play started, and Rockne heard the usual thud—but no more. When Knute woke up, Thorpe had already returned from the goal line, some forty yards away, and was shaking his finger at him. "Bad, bad boy, Knute, him let Jim through and score a goal. Ugh!" Call it what you will, nevertheless it was colorful.

Ursinus Minor Sports

WITH the attention of everyone centered on the football game this afternoon, other athletic events are likely to be overlooked. However, the Grizzly athletes were out matching their skill with F. and M. in two other fall sports, soccer and cross-country, both of which took place this morning. These events deserve a word of recognition.

Soccer is the baby among the Ursinus sports, having been established only four years ago. Within that comparatively short time, the sport has grown until it is now among the most significant of our minor sports. The 1934 season was expected to be especially successful, for not one varsity letter man was lost through graduation.

The two games which have been played so far have proved somewhat disappointing in view of material with which Coach Baker had to work. The first contest, waged two weeks ago with Girard College, resulted in a 6-6 tie. Last Saturday, the Bear booters were overrun by West Chester Teachers' College to the tune of 4-1.

The season, however, has just begun. Six more games are on the schedule, and Captain Russ Fisher has not yet given up hope of coming out with the long end of the stick.

The soccer schedule is as follows:

	U.	V.
October 6—Girard	- - - - - 6	6
October 13—West Chester	- - - - - 1	4
October 20—F. and M.	- - - - -
November 2—Swarthmore	- - - - -
November 10—Temple	- - - - -
November 17—Gettysburg	- - - - -
November 24—Ardmore	- - - - -
Indefinite —Haverford	- - - - -

Unlike soccer, today's meet marks the opening of the cross-country season. Coach Stan Omwake's proteges, however, have been crossing the hills and dales for three weeks, getting themselves into shape.

The hopes for a successful season rest mainly on Captain Bob McLaughlin, Fuzzy Neiman, Frank Reynolds, and Charlie Wynkoop, all of whom had varsity experience last year. Four other men, two of whom were out for cross-country in former years, make up the squad.

The harriers have been doing some very intensive training up to this time, and prospects for success are not to be dulled by the apparent smallness of the squad.

The cross-country schedule consists of four meets:

- October 20—F. and M.
- October 27—Lehigh.
- November 3—Conference meet at Lancaster.
- November 17—Middle Atlantics at Haverford.
