There is a distinguished group of congressmen in Pennsylvania, who, though not members of the Republican party, yet, for a variety of reasons, are distinctly hostile to the personal character of the present Administration of President Lincoln. Among them are Mr. Erastus Corning, Mr. Thomas Jordan, Mr. James Cummins, Mr. John Birney, Mr. Albert Cummins, and others of similar sentiments, who are not so well known. Their policy is of a conservative and constitutional character, and they believe that the present Administration is being carried on with too much haste and without sufficient caution, and that its policy is too radical and too revolutionary.

It is the duty of the Republican party to recognize the existence of this group of congressmen, and to do all in its power to sustain and support them, and to encourage and aid them in every way possible. They are the real friends of the Constitution, and the true friends of liberty and freedom. They are the true friends of the Union, and the true friends of the people. They are the true friends of the country, and the true friends of all that is good and true.
