A special grocery will be open during the event for your enjoyment of this marvelous performance. All proceeds from the event will go to the Ursinus College Band.

Music Groups Active

The Ursinus community enjoyed a program of classical music by the Temple University Brass Ensemble on February 11 as part of the spring semester concert series. The band, under the direction of Jonathan Sternberg, consists of 15 student members who are responsible for their own instrumentation majors in the area of Music at Temple in Philadelphia.

The program opened with Pirro's Care Overtures (Hohler), Op. 26 by Felix Mendelssohn (1809-1847). In this piece the composer has succeeded in blending harmonious throughout the orchestra to produce the beautiful and stately sound of a landscape which he had seen in a painting. The magnificent performance of Frederic Chopin's (1810-1849) Polonaise in C minor Op. 15, featuring pianist Barbara Marcia, is one of the most famous works ever written for the piano. The exciting and joyful Symphony No. 1, Op. 38, by Robert Schumann (1810-1856), opening the spring of Sinfonia concertante to the fine performances by the Temple University Brass Ensemble.

After 25 years of experiences conducting major orchestras in both Europe and the United States, Jonathan Sternberg joined the Temple music faculty in 1990 and was educated at the Manhattan School of Music, Harvard and New York University. He has conducted the London Philharmonic, French National OrchestrA, Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Royal Flemish Opera as well as Orchestras in Warsaw, Prague, Berlin, Munich, Stuttgart, Belgrade, Brussels, Basel and Geneva. He has made recordings with the Menu Society and State Orchestras, the Moscow Orchestras of Salzburg and Zurich Radio Orchestras.

The Temple undergraduates who make up the orchestra participate in a wide variety of musical activities and curriculum. They rehearse three days each week, studying a standard repertoire, from classical to modern, and perform a number of on-campus concerts.

The Old Gold Remains

According to Dr. William S. Pettit, President, operations at Ursinus College remain stable, while many private colleges across the nation choke under the grip of the inflation spiral. Dr. Pettit cited careful financial planning and frugal management as the College’s most successful weapons against inflation.

"Tuition costs have not increased greatly despite rising prices because we use the greatest efficiency in college operations," Dr. Pettit said. "We offer no frills, the basic needs of a solid education.

With 341 freshmen enrolled, admissions for the 1974-75 academic year were greater than in any previous year. According to Geoffrey Delman, Dean of Admissions, applications for 1975-76 are somewhere slower.

"You couldn't see a good freshman class next year but we will have to work longer and harder to get it," be retorted. "Students are being much more cautious in submitting applications and are supplying much later in the academic year. We continue to stress that a liberal arts program provides the student with more versatility in choosing and placement office was above the liberal student with more versatility in getting it."

The Travails of Knorft

Among the painful results of thought is second, a particularly annoying experience for those individuals who are slightly run-down white house. Said Knorft as the President had just about reached the top rung. "Actually ... the one thing that bothers me is why you should be doing this thing at all in the wall of your house. Shouldn't there be a higher priority?"

"Nonsense!" grunted the man. "Just where do you think I get these anyway?" and he began carefully positioning the first board.

Dr. Pettit said, "... but this is like meeting Peter to pay Paul, and Paul is nothing left to boost!"

Then aloud, "Well, certainly there is something to be said for your approach, yet ..." It was in pre-nervous but instant that Knorft suffered the distinctive pangs of second thought.

Bears Beat Hopkins; Lose to Muhlenberg

By GEORGE GEIST

Playing before the season's last great crowd, the Ursinus wrestling hall Bears of Ursinus College, coached by veteran mentor Warren Fry, demonstrated some of this season's best wrestling while upseting Hopkins University and losing to Muhlenberg College.

Sparked by sophomore forward Jim McGowan, the Bears opened the second half with a line-up of five Ursinus wrestlers, with neither of the two teams' front men in the contest. Hopkins scored two points from guard Paul Paslay, but some clutch free throw shooting by three clinched the win for the Bears.

Two nights later, the Bears host the Posts, the only another M.A.C. Southern Division league contest. The game, featuring two M.A.C.'s top guards, Glenn Salo of Muhlenberg, and Warren Fry of Robert Hopkins, was also highlighted by the return of the court players Randy Stubs of Ursinus and Jim May of Muhlenberg.

Behind the early scoring of Randy Kenmerer and the rebounding of the university's opposite 6-2 load and threatened to blow the Bears out of the gym. Greg Fry then rose to the occasion and the Muhlenberg 2-1 zone tightened. The game remained even throughout. Muhlenberg's Irwin was wrestling coach at the 28 to West Chester at home. The contributed 8 points. Sieracki contributed for the University, and McLaughlin for young Ursinus.

At 4:52, Widener and Smith opened the second half with a line-up of five Ursinus wrestlers, with neither of the two teams' front men in the contest. Hopkins scored two points from guard Paul Paslay, but some clutch free throw shooting by three clinched the win for the Bears.

The remainder of the first half was highlighted particularly by two individuals performing English hockey and placing the Bears third last year in National Championships with two na- tional titles. These wins were coach Hepner Linnea Landis, Melissa Magee, Kallie O'Neal, and Judy Turner.

Procter & Gamble Brand Management

It's One of the Finest Career Opportunities Available Anywhere. And You Don't Need an MBA.

Procter & Gamble manufactures more than 50 consumer products, including Crest toothpaste, Tide detergent, Pampers disposable diapers, Scope mouthwash and many others whose names you would recognize just as well as you know the names of our company.

For each product, there is a small, group, usually just 3 people, who plan, create, and supervise the total consumer marketing effort — from research, to product development, to promotion, to sales management — and it is one of the most challenging and personally rewarding jobs in the industry.

Right now we're looking for a few highly qualified college seniors to join our brand management staff. No special skills or training are required. "proven record of leadership and being able to get things done", "very broad and constant exposure to business problems" and "communication skills" are some of the words we use to describe the job.

We want a "take charge" person who can assume immediate responsibility, learn quickly, contribute good ideas, and cope with (and even worse) comprehensive situations.

For such a person we offer a very bright future. We promote only from within, and on merit. and not Watergate has weakened the executive power. Congress has not been able to control the government's policy making under its hands and the public plays the government's policy making leader under its hands.

Dr. Morshen's most interesting attributes was that in the light of our planet's political state he, who studied it constantly, was not depressed but maintained a sense of humor balanced with due respect to the magnitude of the world's plight.
