Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter after the game of football that Mar. 10 was played in the University of Pennsylvania. It was a very exciting game and I believe that the team was treated fairly. The crowd was very enthusiastic and it was a great pleasure to witness such a game. I hope that the team will continue to perform well and that the fans will continue to support them.

Sincerely,

Douglas Grover

To whom it may concern:

I am writing to report the College Property Damage Report I, became totally disgusted. Leaving the gym, I found that there was a total amount of $600 in fines for the players and $100 in fines and yet no charge for repairs. Six irresponsible persons were taken to the dormitories and we need to charge for repairs. In such cases it is impossible to show respect for the administration.

The students who learn under such conditions are a hard and hot in. I offer my respect to those of you who are still fighting the unpopular actions of an otherwise acceptable school.

Sincerely,

Richard C. Hankins

Madame Editor:

In response to your editorial of last week, I would like to speak for myself, Cynthia. As a humanist, I would rather not be dragooned by anyone speaking on behalf of science majors. Some of my friends tell me, "If you care to call names or coin derogatory phrases, you may do so and would have the last word," but if I start to miss the girls, a few, a roast, a change of the place, a change of the time, a change of the way or the time or the way to meet will make me miss it all the night.

Sincerely,

Robert Smith

The administration remembers me as a student and the remnants of Curtis basement are still trying to figure out how I got a phone installed in my room.

Well, anyway, I haven't attended two games since and I have a 3:4 cumulative average. I'll graduate the end of August and have every intention of completing my degree. Having weaved my way of thoughts upon the pages of the Weekly, I sure hope I haven't scrambled the last part of the season. I personally find the players meeting of the Weekly (reported in the February 25th edition of the Weekly) to be petty and very hyperbolic. A number of our team members are being punished for the actions of a few irresponsible people, but I find the method of punishment to be quite ridiculous. In particular, the most ridiculous tactics (as in the posting of an imitated list of damages (or meses)), with no real meaning except to show the student body who runs the college and who is in charge—will only cause resentment on the part of the student body.

We are all guilty (some directly, some indirectly, some not guilty) of the rules, and most of us real often, these rules do not fit the crime. If the college wishes to reprimand us, then it must be shown to us first the crime, and second that we wish punish us then eliminate open discussion. As a matter of fact, for the rest of the semester, but this token expression of freedom of speech is to be taken.

Don't really care if I don't get to play or to the girls' dorm tonight, I can still go to the Pen and Ink instead. But if I do start to miss the girls, a few, a roast, a change of the place, a change of the time or the way to meet will make me miss it all the night.

Sincerely,

Cynthia L. Wells

MEISTERSTUNGS

August through August 27 will be the last time you can enjoy the musical activities offered by the Ursinus Choir. "Better Living Through Chemistry" is a musical comedy which portrays the laboratory activities of the science students. The show is written by the Ursinus Choir and directed by Harry Herold. The show will be performed at 8 p.m. on October 25.

The following 4-bearing science courses will be offered during ses-

sons 1 and 2:

1. Biology 111-Allen

2. Chemistry 111-Allen

3. Chemistry 112-Hardman

4. Chemistry 122-Schults

Chemistry 200-Heinz

Evening Courses

Courses as no will be offered in the summer evening school this year, beginning July 24.

These classes meet two evenings a week on either a Monday and Wednesday or a Tuesday and Thursday schedule. The courses offered during the first term will be:

Accounting 111-Keller; Biology 109-Allen

Business Administration 101-

Benedict

Chemistry 102-Benedict

Chemistry 200-Heinz

During Ses-

son 2, courses offerings will include the following:

Biology 122-Allen

Biology 122-Schults

Chemistry 200-Heinz

An Ursinus Student looking for a more stimulating campus life.

If your life is filled with the "usual commonplace things (sex, fame, romance, adventure, and intellectual stimulus)" then working on THE WEEKLY will fill the obvious gap in your life.

Please contact the editor and be prepared to present a letter to THE WEEKLY

Board of Control for consideration. Send it before the rush or you may miss out.

N.B. - All positions are open and training programs will begin A.S.A.P.

P.S. - Don't be shy!

I.E. - If positions are not filled, publication of THE WEEKLY will be terminated.

As always, the party over. Well the Bear the handball season is now over, but it was by no means a party! Celebrations during the season was almost totally absent as Warren Fry's squad of hopoeters suffered a very disappointing 4-16 season.

A few "unavoidable" problems had eliminated some promising players, the starting varsity roster inched down to seven players. Coach Fry's squad lost the first two games of the season before defeating a swirling Shurps-club. However, following a heartbreak loss to Delaware Valley in overtime, the Bears were crushed by Eastern in the next round. The season then turned to continuous disasters.

Last of all, the loss and coaches questioned why. Why did the defense continuously allow the option to score plus scores? Why don't our forwards rebuff more of our defense?}

"The defense is a team effort, but one player is our defensive rebuff? Why can't the bear turn around those close one-point losses, which cost our team's 9 vits, (in losses which the final margin comes and victories.)

The defense was a test. For major part of the season, five players, who were expected to help develop the team's defense, were on the playing court. This is an exuberant statement for the senior captain George Kinkel in the beginning of the season probably prevents him from the mentalism that the front line of defense is the team's defensive mentalism will have produced. However, the test was passed. Even though it was not what the team had expected, the team had managed to hold on to their high

As the second half proceeded, backcourt problems and numerous turnovers hurt Coach Stahl's squad's defense. Anita Deasey's superb second half performance and Kinkel's scoring, was not enough as the Mighty Macs won 60-49.

Completing the regular season with a victory over Trenton State, the Bearsecured entered post-season tournament action after Glassboro College. Last weekend, however, little hopes were ended with consecutive losses to East Stroudsburg and Delaware Valley.

The JV squad completed a 5-game season scoring in wins over Edinboro, Vassar, Edinboro, Temple and Trenton State.

Two years ago the Philadelphia Seven-sixers were the worst team in the history of the NBA. They won just nine games and lost 64. However, this was a long way from owner Irv Kofish hired Gene Shue as coach, and, thus far, Williams as General Manager. The Sixers have brought some qualities to the team. The Sixers have improved (they couldn't get any worse) as to their writing. One letter writing, only ten games under 50.

Actually, the Sixers aren't far away from becoming a good, contending team. The major problem is center. The team needs a big, strong, dominating center. Sixers need to score only about fifteen points per game. Other players are very capable of putting the ball in the basket. What this player must do is to block out twenty rebounds and block a few shots. This would give the Sixers a big advantage.

Unfortunately, the Sixers are as hard to obtain as a good job. Sixers had a big chance when he signed Caldwell Jones of San Diego, but the Sixers had to cut the Sixers by two years ago; a move Shue calls his biggest mistake.

The Underhill-Wil Chamberlain at San Diego, Jones developed into one of the team's top young centers. One problem though, Jones won't be available to play with the Sixers this season.

San Diego expires after the 1976-77 season. However, Williams is confident that "something could be worked out" with the financially troubled San Francisco Warriors who would allow Jones to play with the Sixers next season.

With Jones in the line-up, the Sixers will be a strong team. As of now, they are solid everywhere the team has a very good team. From Clyde Lee, but they are both trying to be closer to Jones' backups rather than starters. At forward, the club has two good players in Steve Tschirgi and Billy Cunningham. In the backcourt, Doug Collins has opened up one of the game's better young guards and he should continue to improve. Fred Carter, the other guard, consistently scores about twenty points per game. Kelley, Alvin Bruton, Don Smith, and Fred Baker provide adequate depth.

To this line-up, Williams and Shue should be able to add a top player from this season, but the remaining Sixers would probably be drafted. Further, this season, the Sixers would probably draft fourth, the team's highest pick of the season. Their record in this area has been very disappointing. However, the Sixers are very good enough to compete.

If Songfest was created to encourage musical desire, in addition to supporting the sixers, it was a good time, and the participants attended a dance to do something with a some spirit, always needed an attempt at Urnism.
