Songfest Boycott Considered

By Thomas A. Reilly

In an attempt to represent their disapproval of the recently-imposed guidelines on the annual Pi Nu Epsilon-sponsored Songfest both the Inter-fraternity and Inter sorority Councils (IFC and ISC) have discussed the possibility of boycotting this year's show. These considerations have come about as a result of a number of strict guidelines that have been set on group performances.

Increased Registration Fee

Initially, the primary concern was the time limit placed on each group's routine. Although it had been set at five minutes on the registration applications, this time has since been increased to ten minutes. However, there are still a number of questions being raised by the respective campus fraternities and sororities. The registration fee has been increased from $10 to $25, where $10 will be refunded to groups so long as they abide by the stated regulations. This is still an increase of $5 over past years, and the IFC and ISC have expressed curiosity in the reasoning for this increase. Questions will be referred to Pi Nu Epsilon, the music fraternity which sponsors the affair. Furthermore, these councils will request an itemized account of the allotments for these registration fees.

Relocation

Another reason for concern was the new location for Songfest, Helfferich Hall. Traditionally, the annual show has been held in Bomberger Auditorium. However according to President Richard P. Richter, the change was made for fire safety reasons, and also because of excessive damage to Bomberger after last year's Songfest. Some groups have expressed sentiments to the effect that Bomberger has a certain atmosphere for the show, and that it just wouldn't be the same to have anywhere else. However, after having met with the President Richter, IFC President Ed Gheysens stated, "As far as I'm concerned, President Richter will not change the decision."

The last guideline that has drawn sharp criticism is the requirement that all groups must perform for the IFC and ISC. Hopefully, this meeting will take place some time next week, at which time both groups hope to negotiate a settlement. However, if no agreement can be reached, all fraternities have voted to boycott the show. The Omega Chi Sorority has also voted to boycott in the event that a compromise cannot be reached.

Songfest is currently for Friday night, March 21.

Eilts Selected As Graduation Speaker

by Diana Dakay

Herman F. Eilts, a graduate of Ursinus in 1943, who was ambassador to Egypt and instrumental in Egyptian-Israeli peace talks, will be speaker for the 1980 graduation ceremonies at Ursinus College.

Ambassador Eilts was born in Germany in 1922 and came to the United States with his family in 1932. In 1947, he earned his B.A. degree in history from Ursinus College and served in World War II as a U.S. Army Intelligence officer overseas. He was awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

After the war, Ambassador Eilts earned his master's degree in International Relations from Johns Hopkins University and entered the U.S. Foreign Service. He has served in London, Tehran, Ead, and Iraq.

In his career, Ambassador Eilts served in a succession of embassy and consular posts in London and in Near and Middle Eastern countries as well as a state side assignment in charge of the State Department's Baghdad Pact and Near Eastern desks.

In 1965, he was appointed ambassador to Saudi Arabia and is credited with establishing un-
Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

After going to the second live performance of the Zita at Todd Hall, we were deeply impressed by the departure of lead singer Mark "Bowie" Malcomens from the group. The Zitas brought to this campus a new experience that was enjoyed by many, as evidenced at the Talent Show and Todd Party. Not only was it a unique experience at Ursinus, but also a new type of music that was known by few yet enjoyed by all. The break-up of the group after their surprising success is a mystery to us, the devoted fans.

We hope the group straightens out their personnel problems because any change in the group's chemistry would be less than acceptable.

USGA Notes

After being in office for a week now, I must say I am more optimistic than ever about the potential of the USGA, and its newly elected executive council. We have a very enthusiastic leader in Ross Schwalm, and I believe his editorial said it all last week -- GET INVOLVED! The USGA's advisor, Dean Rebuck, is thoroughly dedicated to the philosophy of student input in college administration, which helps to make the USGA an even more formidable power on this campus.

When you take a close look at it, there is really something for everyone in the USGA. Our constitution has been reviewed thoroughly. We could use some concerned criticism or advice from interested students. I'm sure that some of the con, law students could give us a hand. How about college diplomacy? We are constantly getting invitations to student government conventions and leadership conferences. There was a convention going on this past weekend at Beaver College, and we are sending a few delegates to a convention at Penn State. By getting involved in USGA you are not only serving your school, but you are also helping yourself as an individual. You'll have the opportunity to develop the basic skills of how to deal with people, how to lead, and how to compromise. Sure, these are basic things, but they sure last a long time in life.

A few new issues the executive council has been discussing are the use of voting machines in student elections, and the possibility of moving the USGA meeting room from upstairs in the Union to somewhere more spacious. Under the leadership of Ed Wise the student energy committee is establishing its roots. We want your opinions on all these things. Energy conservation is something that should concern us all. If you have any recommendations on how the college can cut energy costs, contact Ed or Dr. Schultz, the advisor to the committee. I am trying to get a student recruitment committee started and I welcome ideas and help from anyone who is interested. The USGA is the voice of the student, but we need input! Give student government a chance to work!

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

In a Feb. 10 editorial, you correctly approved of a new attempt at Temple and other large universities to reintroduce requirements in basic liberal arts courses. However, I wish the public better understood that in one kind of college, rigorous basic requirements for the most part were not thrown out in the sixties and they continue to be demanded of students. That is the independent college, which is financed largely by private funds and devoted exclusively or mainly to the education of undergraduates.

Pennsylvania has more independent colleges than any other state in the nation, many of the best in or near Philadelphia. They are committed to tough, competitive programs of general education with special permission from President Richter, The Grizzly is reprinting it as a service to our readers.

Life In Your Nasal Passage-
Scarred for Life
by Dick Morris

Undoubtedly, the forum program was originally conceived with the intention of fulfilling a valuable part of the Ursinus mission. Everyone here knows that say the program’s present theoretical design is intended to endow the student with a more diversified education. However, a clear distinction must be made between the aforementioned theoretical design and what it actually is in practice.

In theory, forums ensure that every student receives what the administration has deemed the minimal amount of cultural enrichment necessary to receive an Ursinus degree; but in practice, as anyone who has had even the most peripheral contact with the forums realizes, they merely provide students with their introductory lessons in the college system. While I am unable to substantiate the above information with any concrete statistics, as I mentioned earlier, if turning in a hefty pack of forum cards is so widespread that one can’t deny that such occurs, I have witnessed as many as twelve forum cards being turned-in successfully by one student, and I suspect this number is far short of the school record, probably set by some pledge fulfilling his fraternal obligations.

So the questions arise—Why should I complain, if the system is making life easy on me? Is my problem that I don’t have any friends to carry out the dirty deed for me? It is not the facility with which one can meet the forum requirement which disturbs me, rather it is the penalty which is levied against the student who doesn’t go through the motions of absorbed a sufficient amount of enrichment necessary to receive an average Ursinus graduate.

It is easy to argue that the regulation is clearly stated in the handbook, therefore should’ve been responsible enough to have followed it, but the checking of attendance at the forums is obviously a mockery of its face. If I am unable to fulfill its commitment to the forum program, it is going to allow the system to be a mockery of itself, then why do I sit in and subject to the liberty of placing an everlasting blemish in my file for not fulfilling my commitment to the same program.

After seeing the most recent forum offering, a pseudo-entertainer named Captain Ray of Light, I could probably build a solid case for abolishing the entire program. However, my concern lies only with the one aspect of forums I have discussed. It is certainly fair to expect that the judges, the administration in this case, do not have the luxury of feigning to have honestly met the requirement. With regard to the mandatory attendance of twelve forums over six semesters, the Ursinus Student Handbook states, “Completion of the requirement or failure therein will be part of the student’s permanent record.”

I publicly confess, here and now, that I am a member of that select group of students who has not met the forum requirement. However, do not feel that I deserve to have an external anathema pronounced upon me because some of my forum cards never left my desk drawer. While I am told that “permanent record” is not to be equated with transcript, I can see no reason or justification for having a mark placed in my file that indicates that I am less cultured than the average Ursinus graduate.

The Strong-Cambell Interest Inventory is also available to satisfy occupational concerns. For a fee of $15.00 the student is presented with an inventory sheet to choose which subjects or activities interest him; by computer process the trends of the individual are revealed, helping him to decide on a career goal. The faculty of Ursinus is also interested in the development of the students. The Career Planning and Placement Advisory Committee has been formed. This group of seven professors meet monthly to suggest ways to broaden the service of the Placement Office.

beam and third on bars. Other outstanding performances were made by sophomore Joyce Friess who scored high on vaulting and freshman Karla Cantello scoring high on the floor exercise. Both performances were only good enough to earn a fourth place.

This year’s team is coached by Mrs. Judy Butler with senior co-captains Lori Armbrust and Sharon Fahrney. The team’s record so far this season is 3 wins, 1 tie and 5 losses.

Other competitors include senior Jill Hadley, junior Val Luciano, sophomore Kelly Finch and freshman Shirley Bartuska.

The team’s next home meet will be held Saturday, February 23, against Lock Haven and the U.S. Naval Academy. All are welcome to attend.

Career Planning

If you are fortunate enough to already know which career direction you are headed, the Placement Office may attend to your needs also. Information about full time employment, part-time employment and summer jobs is available. Bulletin board and clipboard postings reveal positions available in the Philadelphia area, as well as available positions state and nationwide.

One extremely beneficial aid of the Career Planning Service is the information form and the arrangement of campus interviews. The Career Service prepares the student with interview suggestions and other literature which is valuable for campus interviews as well as consultations later in life.

With all these fine services available, there is no reason to panic when you near the end of your four years at Ursinus. The Career Planning and Placement Service is willing to help all students decide where their “shining star” may be.

usually effective working relations with the Saudi government. Henry Kissinger praised Ambasador Elts for “playing a crucial role in the restoration of our relations with the Arab world since 1973...I honestly do not believe we could have done it without you.”

Following the renewal of diplomatic relations with Egypt, Hermann Elts served as U.S. Ambassador to Egypt during the critical years from 1973 to mid-1979, during which time the peace negotiations were in progress. And he was advisor to President Carter. He was honored with the State Department’s Honor Award upon leaving government service. Hermann Elts received many distinguished awards, one of which is the Carnegie Award. He also received honorary doctorates from Juniata College, University of Scranton, Boston University,Dickenson Law School and Ursinus College.

Ambassador Elts is married and has two sons, both presently working for large business associations in the Middle East. He is now a member of the faculty of the Boston University, where he is University professor of International Relations and Research Professor of History and Political Science. Also, he is now working on memoirs of his ambassadorship.

Baltz Returns to Union Coffeehouse

by Jennifer Bassett

On February 8, Ron Baltz gave another coffeehouse to another full house in the Union. Although refreshments were served, and it was fraternity bid night, the crowd was more reserved during most of the performance, which started promptly at 8:30.

Along with guitar Jenny and the usual wisecracks about work and what people would rather do most of the time, Baltz stayed with standard favorites, such as “Heart of Gold,” “Rocky Road,” “Sunny Skies,” and a couple of America tunes for the first half of the evening.

Baltz opened with a moving version of Chapin’s “Taxi” and ended the first set with Maclean’s “American Pie” which warmed the crowd to the point of singing along. Since most of these numbers were in Baltz’s basic private and professional repertoire, they were performed in a natural and second nature.

Unfortunately, the intermission was prolonged and much of the ways. When Baltz asked for requests, I did not hesitate to scream, “Heart!” Baltz, with due respect to ladies and Grizzly reporters promptly obliged with “Dreamboat Annie,” “Crazy on You” and “Keep My Love Alive.” They were pretty good for the spur of the moment, and no pun intended, did my heart good.

Baltz also performed some Jackson Browne and Bad Company, ending with James Taylor’s stirring “Fire and Rain.” The acoustic guitar was excellent throughout, whether picking out melodies or strumming chords. Baltz was also in tune vocally for the most part. A couple of numbers were nursed a tad too slowly though, like America’s “I Need You.” It was done in a mellow well-meaning way no doubt, and there were enough instances of rowdiness. Overall, a Ron Baltz coffeehouse has got to be one of the best things Ursinus has to offer on a Friday night.

Baltz did tasteful sets of Eagles and Fogelberg, and his version of Tull’s “Thick as a Brick” was really moving. He also did a tune of his own called “Perspectives.” “Amy” was probably the rowdiest song on Ron’s as well as the audience’s part.

They really do do satisfy America’s unyielding thirst for a monstrously catchy guitar lick and nothing more. Quite frankly, this band makes me sick.

Artist of the Year — Neil Young — you know why.

New Artist — The Police — without a doubt the most original-sounding band to emerge in quite some time. These three gentlemen get the most out of what they have to offer, and I guess that’s really what it’s all about.

Best Producer — Fleetwood Mac — Listen to Tusk and you’ll understand why. A real classy job that rivals Floyd’s work on Dark Side of the Moon. Very spotless and very innovative. Everything on Tusk is top shelf all the way.

Best Songwriter — Neil Young — you know why.

Best Vocalist — Robert Plant — What? That’s right, Robert Plant. His singing on In Through the Out Door is the strongest it’s ever been and Plant’s always been underrated as a vocalist. There are some absolutely unbelievable moments on this record.

Best Female Vocalist — Nanette Workman — well, I’ll wait another three years anyway. The Eagles are still damn good.

Most “Tired” LP — Desolation Angels — Bad Company. I think it’s about time Bad Company called it quits. There’s simply no spark left in what was once a really decent band. Records like this one only serve to embarrass and these guys really don’t deserve it. Thanks for the memories anyway, guys.

“Captain Ray of Light’s” Pseudo-Science

by Diana Dakay

The Captain bounded into Wimer Auditorium on February 13 sporting hand-made money in quite a spectacle in his silver suit and cape printed with dollar signs and his glittering pumas. He came to speak on the subject of pseudo-science and its money-making advantages. Believing everyone needs a gadget to make money in America, the Captain said, “You either need a rich uncle or pseudo-science.”

Captain Ray has a franchise in Peruvian Pick-up sticks. Some fundamentals for his pseudo-science are a purpose to everything and everything to a purpose; the fuller the story, the harder it falls; in physics, it’s precise, science is numbers and gadgets; and say no to pickers.

By vocal signs, ascending and descending, and what he called a syllable house, Captain Ray gave his official alphabet reading from Richard Nixon and Frank Perdue. He also showed, through a number of graphs, what he calls “fascinating rhythms” (a series of birhythms) for Wilt Chamberlain, H.R. Haldeman and Janice Joplin. The graphs gave all the crucial periods in their lives.

The Captain suggested that anyone who could not make it in the pseudo-science field should join him in his Peruvian Pick-up Sticks franchise.

Captain Ray also suggested reading the modern book on pseudoscience called Dometics and left the audience with a quote from Elron Hubbard, “Good hunting!”

1979 Music Awards

The following is a list of what this critic feels were the best (and worst) moments of 1979. If you agree, disagree, or just feel like seeing your name in print, drop me a line by placing your letter in an envelope addressed to Jay Repko c/o The Grizzly and hand it to myself or to any member of The Grizzly staff. Please, responsible comment only is invited. And so, with all that in mind, here’s what I did not hesitate to scream, “Amy” was probably the rowdiest song on Ron’s as well as the audience’s part.

The big time real, real soon.

Best Single — “Tusk” — Fleetwood Mac — because it took a lot of guts to release this song as a single because it has a little bit of everything. Easily the most engaging song of the year.

Band of the Year — Fleetwood Mac — I’m sure everybody realizes what talented musicians these guys really are. The Mac’s rhythm section is perhaps the finest in all of rock ‘n roll and I’m not even talking about their approach on guitar. Add the intricate keyboard work of Christine McVie and you’ve got maybe the best band making music today. And it all comes together on Tusk.

Most Disappointing LP — The Long Run — The Eagles — we maybe all just expected too much. Of course, Eagles was certainly a tough act to follow but we did wait almost three years. Not that this is by any means a bad record, in fact it’s a real solid album. Oh well, I’ll wait another three years anyway. The Eagles are still damn good.

The third Forum of the semester was presented at 8 p.m. on February 5, with Gregory Stapp, performing a vocal recital accompanied by his wife, Marcie. Mr. Stapp, a melodic bass from the Academy of Vocal Arts in Philadelphia, enthralled the audience with a spectrum of musical periods. The first half of his program was devoted to foreign songs from such composers as Bach, Beethoven, Schubert, Strauss and Saint-Saens. Despite the fact that these selections were sung in their native languages, the audience was not deprived of their content, for Mr. Stapp displayed a stage presence and acting ability that conveyed the purpose of each song clearly. His soft, yet controlled voice, portrayed despair in "In Questa tomba obscura," and immediately following this aria's completion, he converted to a display of joy and love in the singing of "Ich liebe dich." The versatility in performance made Mrs. Stapp an instant audience favorite.

The program's second half contained music sung entirely in English with the exception of the last aria from "The Barber of Seville." Selections included "O Miserere," "Aria, Ye Subterranean Winds," from Purcell's The Tempest, various art songs such as "Sweet Polly Oliver," the delightful "Fogg, Fogg, Dew," and the sorrowful "The Ash Grove," and two spirituals arranged by H.T. Burleigh. Again Mr. Stapp showed versatility as a singer and performer, for he conveyed the songs with mastery and ease of expression.

When attending a vocal recital, one must not overlook the accompanist. Mrs. Stapp was an excellent complement to her husband's performance. She showed both a sensitivity to the music and also to Mr. Stapp's vocal interpretation of each song.

Earlier in the afternoon, the Stapp's conducted a workshop which students interested in music attended. A few participants were given the opportunity to perform for Mr. Stapp, and he in turn offered constructive criticism to aid in their future performance endeavors.

W’s Basketball Downs Drexel

by Jean Morrison

The Women’s Basketball team soundly defeated Drexel University by a score of 76-64 on Saturday, February 16. Leading scorers for Ursinus were senior Jan Zanger with 16 points and junior Betsy Haag with 13 points. Ursinus played a strong game with good rebounding and excellent shooting.

On Wednesday, February 13, Ursinus pulled off another win over Cabrini College. The two wins raised the women’s record to 8-5 with three games remaining.

Ursinus To Host Grandmaster

by Ray Templin

Today, all Americans must be concerned with the energy shortage. Many of us have turned to games, as the pinball machines in the College Union will attest. Board games are also filling in more leisure hours, as the recent interest in Monopoly and backgammon demonstrates. One game which promises to fulfill many empty hours is chess.

Chess is a very ancient game, but contrary to popular belief, it is quite easy to learn. Another evening, later this semester will be devoted to helping those who play chess already to improve their game. These sessions are open to everyone, and even if you don’t attend another Chess Club meeting, feel free to stop by and get a quick lesson.

Another event which the chess players of Ursinus can look forward to is a simultaneous exhibition given by Grandmaster Larry Christiansen. Church’s Fried Chicken, a Texas version of Gino’s, is helping to sponsor the grandmaster. Even if you don’t play, come out and watch. Larry is one of the top 10 chess players in the United States, and at 23, he is one of the youngest to attain the title of International Grandmaster.

Next time you don’t have enough gas to go out, try chess.

Swimming MACs Start Tomorrow
by Dave Garner
This weekend Ursinus College plays host to 18 other men's and women's teams in the Middle Atlantic Conference Swimming and Diving Championships. The one meter diving opened the events yesterday with swimming preliminaries starting at 11 a.m. both today and tomorrow. Finals in the swimming events will begin at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Even though Ursinus will probably not be in the running for the team title in either men's or women's competition, there are some individual performers who should fare very well. For the women, senior Pati Strohecker returns to defend her title in the one meter springboard diving. In winning last year Pati established a new MAC record. Unfavored in eleven meets, this season, Coach Carolyn Ellis' diver looks to repeat her stellar performance of 1979.

In women's swimming at least three girls figure big in the hunt for medals. Junior Kris Hollstein appears to figure big in the outcome of the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events. Having already qualified for the National Championships in the 50-yard backstroke, Lynn Engler should place well in the backstroke events. Making a fine showing in the shorter freestyle races thus far this year, frosh Joanne Greenlee could possibly pick up some points for the U.C. women.

Albright Downs Hopster's, 103-82
by Jeff Flankett
In a battle of first place teams, last Monday night, Ursinus dropped a 103-82 decision to Albright College. Throughout the loosely officiated, and extremely physical contest, Albright consistently beat the Bear's defense for open jump shots and back door lay-ups. Ursinus' problems were further complicated by their inability to generate any consistency in their outside shooting. In recent memory, the guards of 1979.

Jim Mobley and Kevin McCormick, who had 17 points each while Brent Bamberger had 13 points and 12 rebounds. The contest was marred by a free for all between the two teams after some Albright players took exception to a foul committed by Mike Bropby on a breakaway layup near game's end. Fortunately, no one was seriously injured.

BEAR FACTS: Lack of space in last weekend's edition disallowed mention of the fact that Jim Mobley went over the 1,000 point scoring mark for his career during the Bears win over Swarthmore...It was unfortunate that several fans became involved in the fight which broke out during the Albright game. Fans deek tough, tough fans at any time, but particularly not in that situation. Congratulations on a fine regular season, and good luck in the playoffs are extended to Coach Skip Weley, his staff, players and the fans who have supported the team all season.

The Grizzly Hoop Playoffs Open
The playoff situation was finally settled last week, and for a time there were two possible three-way ties, one in each division.

In Division 1, ZK stood at 6-3 while Crats (5-3) and Below Zero (6-2). If Crats could win, all three teams would finish with six wins. This was not to be, however, as Albright beat Below Zero to a 45-44 win.

Tut and the Free Agents met, both sporting unblemished records. The Free Agents' record remained spotless as they rolled to a 42-29 win: Don Williams scored 10 for the winners, who clinched first place in the division.

Some key Division 2 games: The Muds handed Hoboken their first loss of the year, 59-48. The Buffalo Chips also defeated Dirt, 56-44. In the final regular season game, Blazer was eliminated (and a three way tie avverted) as they bowed to the Chips, 53-49.

In the preliminary playoff round, Hoboken defeated Below Zero, 84-47. Mike Milligan pumped in 31 points for Tut, which probably was the high game of this year's playoffs.

In a game of a playoff doubleheader Wednesday, Hoboken Dirck took the court against the Free Agents and pulled off a mild upset, defeating the Agents 55-47.

Hoboken led by a scant point at the half, but quickly boosted their lead to nine early in the second half. The lead was cut to only two with about 11 minutes remaining, but a timely three-point play by Jim Birchmer turned the momentum back in Hoboken's favor, and from that point on Hoboken never led by less than four. Jeff Hor's Grassy sank six free throws in the last 85 seconds to seal the victory. Birchmer led all scorers with 20, while Grassy added 16. Don Williams led the Free Agents with 12 points.

The second game was your basic barn-burner. The Muds led Tut at halftime by three and led with 16 minutes left 27-21. Tut hung tough, though, and with twenty seconds left led by two. They also had the ball, and with twelve seconds left Bill Black was fouled. He missed the front end of a one-and-one, and the Muds rebounded and called timeout. Dougherty hit a 15-footer as time ran out. Overtime.

Tut missed a golden opportunity to put pressure on the Muds in the extra period but might have let the game slip away instead. The Muds, led by Mike Milligan, whose 21 points led the game, took the series opener.

The Ursinus wrestling team's 6-9-1 final tally was not impressive, but many fine individual efforts were displayed. Due to three unfilled weight classes the grapplers were forced to begin each match with a lethal deficit. In their last six outings, though only victorious in three, the wrestlers succeeded in outscoring all six opponents for man points.

In their most recent match, the Ursinus Bears defeated Albright, 31-21, losing only one close decision. Greg Gifford, Dave Viola, Scott Brownling, Dave Whittlock and Bob Citta each added counter to their personal records. At 126, Gifford showed no mercy in a 22-0 decision over his Haverford opponent.

This weekend the Ursinus wrestlers are competing against 20 tough teams in the Mid-Atlantic Conference Championships at Susquehanna University. The team is very hopeful that they will qualify several of the wrestlers for national competition at the United States Coast Guard Academy in New London, Connecticut, on February 28 and 29.

Pitt Edges Gymnasts By One
The Ursinus Woman's Gymnastics team held their first home meet, Saturday, February 16 against Franklin and Marshall and the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown. The meet ended with Franklin and Marshall finishing third with a score of 57.65. Ursinus took second in a tie with 103.25 and Milligan calmly sank the front end, but Tut was caught moving after the ball was handed to the shooter; the point was taken away. The Muds scored on their next possession and went on to capture a 58-53 series opener.
