1979 Elects Delli-Bovi
Jill Leauber Fills Vacancy

By RAE BLAKE

October 1 was truly “Election Day” at Ursinus College. Along with the choosing of officers by the Freshman Class, the position of Secretary of the USSR was also voted upon by members of the student body. Jill Leauber was voted in as Secretary which was an almost vacant position when Joy Keene transferred prior to the fall semester. Jill Leauber, a sophomore English major, was elected to fill the position until Spring of 1979.

Extremely active in campus organization, Jill is the wife of a football player and a member of the Choirus. A native of Ridgefield, Connecticut, Ralph recently spent one semester in France studying French and the French Lycees in Valence.

Serving in the capacity of Vice-President of the Social Studies Department, Jill Leauber has had previous experience in student government. Having served as Student Council Representative of the Freshman Class while at West Orange High School, and as a member of the Ursinus College International Student Organization, Jill has been very influential in the choosing of officers by the student body. Jill took on the additional task of being a member of the Senior Class at Hilbert Hall and the attaining of her master’s degree in Political Science.

As part of its integration into Ursinus College, Jill Leauber has held an election of officers on Wednesday, October 1. The six officers to be elected are: President, the Secretary, Treasurer, and two USSR Representatives. Jill Leauber is in charge of all other officers. Ralph Delli-Bovi, Marybeth Kramer, Christopher Duvally, and Deborah VanPelt, resided in the Ursinus College, and is also the Co-Chairman of the Student Government. Appointed to the Central Coordinating Committee last Spring, Jill is also a member of the Career Planning Committee and is a member of the Curriculum Committee for Liberal Arts.

From the Cluttered Desk of the U.S.G. President

CHUCK REESE

Thoughts on the current situation in the world today are running through my mind. I have been working on a paper for my history class, and I am finding it to be quite challenging. I am not sure what I should write about, but I know that it should be something that is relevant to today's society.

The world is changing at a rapid pace, and it is important to stay informed. I have been reading a lot of news articles and watching the news to keep up with the latest events. However, it can be overwhelming to try and make sense of it all.

I think it is important to remember that we are not alone in this world. We are all connected, and what happens in one part of the world can affect us all. I have been thinking about how we can work together to make the world a better place.

I am looking forward to hearing from you. If you have any thoughts or ideas, please feel free to share them with me. I would love to hear your perspective on this important topic.

Yours sincerely,

Chuck Reese

President, U.S.G.
In all phases of life, there are certain situations which proceed reasonably well, but do not function in the manner which would be most desirable. Afterwards, their anti-climactic nature makes itself increasingly obvious with each moment of consideration. However, often despite this realization, people don’t bother to make the needed corrections. Either an alteration does not seem that essential or the urgency of the matter is forgotten shortly after the situation is removed from the spotlight.

This judgment can be applied to a certain occurrence or to an overall attitude about a group. At Ursinus, the first may be less important merely because it is in the past. Yet the past repeats itself, and repetition, if it ensues without objection, cannot always justifiably be faulted.

Therefore, we should discuss specific instances and their remedies. The “certain occurrence” referred to was the graduation ceremony last year. Although most of it went reasonably well, it seemed unwise to confer the honorary degrees at the end of the graduation exercises. By that time, after listening to and applauding all those in the graduating class, the graduates were literally too tired to notice or care who were to be given special recognition. I’m sure the hon­o­r­ials themselves were not disappointed in the eyes of those who received them, but at the same time, a change in program scheduling might be an improvement worth considering.

The second question, and one more worthy of careful thought and re­evaluation, concerns our college calendar. For the students, the days have very much amounted to a change, and their requests have been quieted by a dismis­sal. Some of us are frustrated with the lack of perseverance in what we consider an opinion. First, the students compose a major portion of a college, very little energy or enthusiasm remained for those who have to do the grading. Doctor Parsons specializes in American History, over 90% of majors can verify. However, Doctor Parsons, along with Doctor Snyder, Professor of Physics, has created a new course of studies at Ursinus about the culture of Pennsylvania Dutch. The idea behind these courses is to examine the surrounding environment, in its many facets. The culture, history, folklore, and folk art. "Pennsylvania Deutsch" are studied in two courses. Folklore may be further studied in a separate course. Pennsylvania Dutch Music is examined, as is the Pennsylvania Dutch country.

In the fact, the studies include two different "Pennsylvania Deutsch," the dialect, which Doctor Snyder and Doctor Jonas have recorded and published the book. The "Preachers' Appeal of the Pennsylvania Society of Evangelical Moravians" is a book of various variants of Dutch, this book is very much about the interest in the historical evolution. The Poetry and Prose of the Pennsylvania Dutch is given as another course.

Doctor Parsons’ work on the Appeal, Chairman of the College Bicentennial Committee, has been a number of activities, but he hasn’t been able to achieve that which he wants. Because of the extent of the plans, Ursinus College was designated a National Bicentennial College in August of this year.

The entire conference was aimed at the recreation of the Revolutionary history of the Pennsylvania Dutch. This is the Pennsylvania Dutch Studies which parallel the American Revolution and on noted personalities of that era. The Pennsylvania Dutch courses are planned again this year. The Kutztown Fair, sponsored by Ursinus, will also be included in the program.

The college also hosted a Bicentennial Ball in which the participants were dressed in Revolutionary era costumes. The college will be given April in 1976.

The Founders’ Day weekend will begin with the dedication of the Pennsylvania Dutch Museum, the Pennsylvania Dutch Studies which parallel the American Revolution and on noted personalities of that era. Happenings

By ALYN E. STETLER

Theater really has the spotlight in the world of culture this week.

The big highlight is the world premiere of a new comedy starring Katharine Hepburn. Both the premiere and Miss Hepburn are rumored to be in top form. No means takes a back seat with full houses packed at concert halls and cafes.

"A Matter of Gravity" is the dart at the Folio Theatre, which will be at the First National Bank. The New York production has been a huge hit.

Meanwhile, the only currently running show is "Pension Laughter" starring Douglas Fairbanks Jr. It will run at the Folio Theatre through October 18.

Musically, there is quite a varied set of offerings. At the Spectrum is the band that started the hit "Can't Help Myself," which will be at the Spectrum Theatre. The group is called Seabury (love 1802).

The McCarthy Theatre Company is also providing an offering, its third show of the season, "The Cat in the Window." The show has been very successful.

The Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra is holding its annual fall concert at the Academy of Music. The concert is called "A Christmas Celebration" by Philharmonic composer Bonnfire. It features Handel's Messiah, which will be presented with the orchestra.

Another offering is the Philadelphia Shakespeare Festival, which will be at the Community College of Philadelphia. The festival will be presenting Shakespeare's "Hamlet." The show will be presented at 7:30 p.m. daily through October 24.

The Philadelphia Children's Symphony Orchestra will be at the Academy of Music on October 24, featuring the music of Mozart and Haydn. The concert will be presented at 8 p.m. The concert will be preceded by a performance of Graf's "Carillon" for organ and orchestra. The show will be held on the Academy of Music on November 1, with the Philadelphia Children's Symphony Orchestra.

The season will conclude on Mar. 14, with the Symphony Orchestra with what promises to be an evergreen symphony. Included in the program is the entitled "Choral Masterworks," with music by Bach, Mozart, and Haydn's monumental "Messiah." (continued on page 3)

Opportunity for Women

The Pennsylvania Commission for Women is seeking student interns and volunteers to help with several Commission projects.

Projects: (1) Legislative- to keep track of and analyze various state and federal legislation and its effect on women. Positions will be available in political science and knowledge in government. (2) To work with researchers to request research women's issues--in an area of their choice. Position will be open to students in the Commission. Projects should be of interest to the women's issues; (3) Bicentennial project coordinator who will develop a program of bicentennial events and educational programs. The Commission is unable to offer salaries or expenses to interns. However, some positions are available to students who work to obtain academic credit for their work. (continued on page 3)

FOOTBALL

(Knowledge of the names and scores of the teams is essential. Possible points are scored on the basis of correct answers. Blank scores are scored as 0 points.)

The Bears' next contest will be against the Boston College in a M.A.C. encounter with John Hopkins.

BOOK REVIEW

The Throwway Children

By Stephen M. Lange

The Honorable Lissa Avera Richelieu, who will speak at Ursinus College Sept. 16 as part of The Throwway Children, Justine Richelieu, is the author of an essay and an analysis of Philadel phia's juvenile justice system. For many years, Richelieu worked in the field as Assistant District Attorney for the City of Philadelphia. She is the author of the book "The Throwway Children:" a study of the juvenile court's role in society and an analysis of Philadelphia's juvenile justice system.

Her work has been influential in the development of juvenile justice reform in Philadelphia and throughout the United States.

Richelieu's book provides an in-depth examination of the juvenile justice system in Philadelphia, including the history and evolution of the system, the challenges faced by juvenile court judges and attorneys, and the impact of the system on youth and society. Her analysis is based on extensive research and personal experience, and her work has been widely praised for its comprehensive and critical approach.

Richelieu's book also includes a summary of the key findings of her research, along with recommendations for reform. She argues for a juvenile justice system that is based on the best available evidence and that takes into account the unique needs and circumstances of youth. Her work has been influential in the development of juvenile justice reform in Philadelphia and throughout the United States.

Richelieu's book is an essential resource for anyone interested in the juvenile justice system. It is an important contribution to the ongoing conversation about how to create a juvenile justice system that is fair, effective, and compassionate.
George McGinnis: $3 Million Man

BY ANDREW SCHWARTZ

Every good-natured basketball fan is now aware that George McGinnis will play for the Philadelphia 76ers this season. The story of how he became a 76er is an extremely interesting one.

George McGinnis was a high school basketball star in Indiana, and then became an All-American at Indiana University. After his sophomore season at Indiana, in 1971, he left to join the Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Association. Playing for the Pacers, he became an awesome, high-scoring and high rebounding forward. In 1973 the Orlando Magic, who also watched McGinnis carry the Pacers on his broad shoulders, claimed his N.B.A. rights in the draft.

Before last season George signed a Pacers contract with the option that he could purchase it for approximately $85,000, and therefore not be obligated to play in Indiana. He then went out and had his best season, leading the ABA in scoring and rebounding (29.8 points and 14.2 rebounds a game). He also shared the Most Valuable Player Award with Julius Erving.

The New York New Yorks became very interested in George due to the Pacers' problems, and eventually worked out a six-year contract with the Knicks for about $85 million and a $500,000 bonus that was related to McGinnis' scoring. He left Indiana simply because he was deferred a contract with better security and New York was the place to play up extra money. "I felt I could get more for my talent in New York. I'm not only speaking of basketball, I'm speaking of the exposure and in New York, was the place to play. I knew they'd take a chance on me," said George.

However, the Knicks signed McGinnis even though his N.B.A. negotiation rights belonged to the 76ers. For this violation the Knicks were forced to give him up. A week later the 76ers, who had been very apprehensive about new Commissioner, Larry O'Brien, ruled that the contract was void and took away the Knicks' first choice in next year's college draft.

Well, I think that was a pretty good decision. I know we have a lot of talent."

Asked if there would be a scoring conflict between Cunningham and McGinnis, George said, "We both have我爱你. We've got a艾米."

Before last season George signed a contract with the Knicks, and the New York Knicks are now a contender for the play-offs. McGinnis is not only a scorer, he's also a good defender. The Knicks have a lot of good personnel, and possibly make the playoffs if McGinnis plays well. McGinnis has been playing for the 76ers, and the Philadelphia 76ers have a good chance to win the Eastern Division.
