June 6, 1933.

The Hon. Frank P. Maloney
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C.

My dear Sir,

I trust Connecticut voters may rely upon you to leave the President free in his economies regarding ex-service men? The veteram racket is notorious and it has nothing to do with the universal desire to deal generously with those who actually suffered from actual war.

When this matter comes before the House we shall see whether our representatives serve the public interest or cater to organized minorities. If the later is to be the rule, the future of this country is dark indeed.

I am one of very many who deeply resent Senator Lonergan's vote in the Senate on this subject.

Yours faithfully

HW/HE
