Washington, D.C., June 18--The Senate today approved the proposed bill establishing a federal commission to regulate the sale of alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia. The Senate had already approved the measure in May, and the House of Representatives is expected to follow suit shortly.

The bill, which is sponsored by Senator Smith (Dem.-MD), would create a seven-member commission, including the mayor of Washington, D.C., and six members appointed by the president. The commission would have broad powers to regulate the sale of alcoholic beverages, including the establishment of licensing fees and the setting of minimum ages for purchase.

The bill has received mixed reactions from the public. Some see it as a necessary step to control the sale of alcohol, while others argue that it would infringe on individual rights. The issue is expected to be a hot topic in the upcoming election.
