False Alarms Plague Campus

The harmonious relationship between the college and the Collegeville Fire Department was somewhat spoiled during the past week when the campus was flooded three times in the course of three days — all unnecessarily.

At approximately 2 a.m. Sunday morning, Oct. 4, a fire alarm box was pulled in the vicinity of suites 107 and 108 in the northwestern corner of New Men’s Dorm. Two other boxes in the vicinity of suites 200 and 203 had the glass broken in them but were not pulled. As soon as the alarm sounded the Resident Assistant on duty went outside, but no one was seen in the area. When the fire company arrived they were sent home after being informed that it was only a false alarm. The incident is still under investigation, but there are no suspects at this time.

The fire company was summoned a second time by security official John Meyers when a straw dummy supported on a stick was found in flames on the lawn of Old Men’s Dorm. It had been ignited at approximately 1 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6, following the Eagles’ game. The dummy had been hanging outside of Brodbbeck Second since Oct. 26. The fire was put out with an extinguisher before the fire department arrived. Again, no suspects exist and the matter is under investigation pending a report from the appropriate RA’s.

The third fire alarm incident was definitely unintentional in cause, yet the fire officials still arrived on the scene. On Tuesday, Oct. 6 at approximately 4:47 p.m. a fire bell sounded at Maples Hall (520 Main St.) A student accidently tripped the alarm when he attempted to swat a fly that had located itself on a wire fixed to the ceiling connected to a smoke detector. Prompt action on the part of the student alerted the authorities immediately and the trucks did not respond.

Parents’ Day Tomorrow

10 a.m.-12 noon — Parent/Faculty/Student Mixer (College Union)
10 a.m.-12 noon — Campus Organization Displays (Union Lawn)
11 a.m. — Soccer vs. Delaware Valley College Buffet lunch (Wismer — Tickets are needed)
2 p.m. Football vs. Lebanon Valley
4 p.m. — Post-game reception (Helfferich Hall)
6:30 p.m. — Hot and Cold Buffet (Wismer — Tickets are needed)
7:30 p.m. — Casino Night and Dance (Helfferich Hall)

The last time a false alarm was pulled in a dorm was Oct. 11, 1979 in Curtis Hall. Up to last weekend the Dean’s office had felt fortunate about the track record over the last few years. The maximum fine handed down from the Fire Marshal is $10,000 and/or seven days. A false alarm is one in which no one admits to setting it off and there is no reason for the fire company to respond. False alarms are a misdemeanor of the first degree.

On page 21 of the Student Handbook is the school ruling on fire regulations. It reads “anyone found tampering with a smoke detector, a fire extinguisher, or a fire alarm will be fined $100.”

Task Force Attempts to Answer Concerns in the Evening School

by Diane Niemeyer ’82

“The evening school has never been given a thorough analysis,” said Dean of Student Life Dr. Houghton Kane. Because of this and a concern to maintain its effectiveness, a task force has been formed for just this purpose. The mission of the Task Force is to accomplish most of the follow-

1. Define the missions and curricular goals of the Evening School.
2. Examine the appropriateness of the degree requirements in evening school programs.
3. Evaluate the qualitative dif-

The recent Campus Life Committee meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 6, formalized USGA’s off-campus housing proposal. The possibility of an off-campus housing option originated a year ago in the minds of USGA presidents. It was part of the student alerted the authorities immediately and the trucks did not respond.

Helfferich Hall was the site of Red Cross Blood Mobile on Wednesday, Oct. 7 when it made its annual appeal to the public to give blood. Ray Snyder, organizer of the drive, called it “a success” even though they fell short of their goal of 140 participants. Mr. Snyder explained that a number of those who signed up, were not allowed to give blood because they had sore throats, colds and other ailments. All those who gave blood were assured of blood at no cost should the need arise. Mr. Snyder expressed the desire to have another blood drive in the spring.

Sudan Is Dead: What Happens Now?

by Dr. Eugene Miller

The assassination of President Anwar Sadat has created a power vacuum in Egypt and the Middle East. Who will fill the vacuum? What will be the effect on Cairo and the Camp David agreements? Mubarak has advocated repudiating "the third and most odious" article of the Camp David agreements. Mubarak has the face of continuing outcries and Soviet interests favorable. However, in the power struggle may develop with army factions vying with Sadat's other Rejectionist states. Will an army officer vying with General Mubarak be willing to implement the international commitments? Will other Rejectionist states. Will an army faction vying with Sadat's army factions vying with Sadat's will be willing to implement the international commitments. Will other Rejectionist states.

What will be the effect on the Anwar Sadat agreements. Mubarak has the promise of continuing outcries and Soviet interests favorable. However, in the power struggle may develop with army factions vying with Sadat's other Rejectionist states. Will an army officer vying with General Mubarak be willing to implement the international commitments? Will other Rejectionist states.

A smooth transition in Cairo to the team and I write about the team but I write for the paper. And because I write for the paper, I am committed to the editor, other reporters and our readers to state only the truth. People do not want to read a make-over account of a game that makes the team look good, they want to know what happened. If a good game is played, the article will not such, and if by chance a team does not play well, the article will reflect that. Only the truth. I wrote what I saw. I do not enjoy writing a "sham" anyone. I only wrote exactly what I viewed, no more, no less. The last point brought up in my "discussion" with the criticizer (and I wouldn't add this as it could identify participants, but once again, the point must be made) was a statement that I "write for the team." Here and now I would like to deny such a misjudgment. For the team and the criticism in particular I would like to make clear that reporters are first committed to their paper. In other words I do not write for the team, but I write for the paper. I play for the the year's service that the seventh year of full-time employment will be terminal.

4. The considerations in the decision on tenure as enumerated in a faculty handbook include such things as professional attitudes and effectiveness, personal size and balance, patterns of professional specialization, compatibility with and receptivity to the general educational objectives, leadership, and financial considerations.

5. The purpose of tenure was defined in a 1940 statement by the American Association of University Professors. Among other things, the AAUP statement says: "Tenure is a means to certain ends; specifically: (1) Freedom of teaching and research and of extramural activities and (2) a sufficient degree of economic security to make the profession attractive to men and women of ability.

6. The process for making decisions on tenure involves student evaluations, performance evaluations by the individuals themselves, evaluation by department chairmen and by the Dean. It involves a review of the Dean's recommendations by the President and consultation with a faculty-elected Advisory Committee on Promotion and Tenure. Information on the tenure process is included in the faculty handbook. The process is designed to provide for a faculty-elected Advisory Committee of the Board of Directors and final action by the Board of Directors.

Several years ago the College adopted an appeals procedure, which enables a faculty member to seek a reconsideration of a decision through a committee made up of three elected faculty members and three administrators appointed by the President. A reconsideration of the appeals committee goes to the President, who, with his recommendation, submits it to the Board for its consideration.

Academic Regiment

To the Editor:
I would like to submit the following in response to the "Comment" by Duncan Atkins which appeared in the October 2, 1981 issue of The Grizzly: "Academic regimentation is a two-edged sword which liberation college who are not mature enough to design their own schedules or to appreciate the value of diversification of interests and knowledge. Even those who learn to like regimentation, and students will be exposed to a world of people and events that are not wholly contained in the curriculum of any college and are the result of academic regimentation. The broader one's exposure, however, the more tolerant and understanding he becomes, and the more easily he can relate to others."
Books Sought by Ursinus Friends

In anticipation of their public book sale, October 10 to October 24, the Friends of the Ursinus Library are seeking donations of new and used books. All subject areas are solicited but especially fiction and biography. Both paperbacks and hardbound are welcomed.

Donations should be brought to the Myrin Library Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Proceeds from the book sale will support the Friends’ new acquisitions program.

Pi Nu Epsilon Banquet

On Monday, Oct. 12, Pi Nu Epsilon, the National Musical Fraternity, will be holding a banquet for the initiation of its new members. The fraternity, which is only allowed on campuses without music majors, is made up of people participating in extra-curricular musical activities.

The group each year sponsors a reception for the players and singers in Handel’s Messiah.

Sid Quinn/Barbara Blatt

On Oct. 13, 14, 15, Tuesday - Thursday, from 8-10 p.m., Mr. Sid Quinn, a caricaturist will be sketching portraits in charcoal in the Union Lounge. Dean Leslie March, director of the Union Program Board, explained that Mr. Quinn is not a caricaturist in the usual sense, in that he does make humorous drawings, rather he attempts to portray his subject in a realistic manner. The sketchings are free to students, even the library and the bookstore.

Also on Thursday, Oct. 15, Barbara Blatt will be doing handwriting analysis in the Union Lounge. Mrs. Blatt, a trained graphologist will be available from 8-10 p.m. This service is also free.

Students and Teacher’s Collaborate for 2001

DENVER, Colo. (CH) — Professors, students, even the library and student bookstore are caught up in the contagious enthusiasm over Metropolitan State College’s “2001,” a unique experiment in interdisciplinary education.

More than 15 instructors from 10 departments — Geology, Math, Nursing and Engineering, among others — are collaborating on this three-hour course, being offered for the first time this fall. In Wednesday evening sessions, some 60 students will gather for lectures followed by small group discussions. Topics will include changing family structures, cities of the future, computer alienation, how past scenarios have proven true, and what future scenarios might be.

Credit for the course can be applied to one’s own department, and every third Wednesday, students meet in department groups. Each group has separate readings — “The Third Wave” for English students, for example, while Urban Studies students read about the future of urban delivery systems.

Faculty excitement for the concept is witnessed by the fact everyone is teaching the course as overload, not being paid extra, Smilnak says. And partly as a result of the course, both the library and the bookstore have put together special sections of readings on the future.

Smilnak says the school has applied for a grant to bring in top-name futurists for guest lectures. And next semester, Part II of the course will be offered, taking a more global look at the future.

Transplanted Texan: A Funny Thing Happened to Me at the Forum

by Duncan C. Atkins

Dear Mom:

As promised, I've been trying to write you once a week. I'm starting to run out of topics, but I thought I'd tell you something unique about a certain number of forums in order to graduate. It's just another method of Harvard on the Perikomens uses to ensure that all its students are well-rounded whether they want to be or not.

Anyway, they had a forum entitled "Steps Toward Nuclear Disarmament...How To Make Our World Safe." It was a lecture to be given by a Dr. Douglas Q. Planter who graduated from Ursinus in '47 and is now Chairman of the Political Science Department at Mankato State. I figured I'd go to that one since I was planning to become President one day, as you know.

Well, when I got there, there was some guy on stage wearing one of those tacky polyester, Ursinus ties. The guy thought he was a real comedian as he kept making jokes. At least I think they were jokes. I'm not really sure because nobody laughed. Then he asked if there were any Whittans or Cub and Keyers in the audience and a few people raised their hands. I think these two groups are a watered down Ursinus version of Phi Beta Kappa. Anyway, after all this he made a few comments about what a great guy this Planter fellow was and then finally, Dr. Planter himself stepped up to the lectern. I readied myself for a lecture of great depth and significance. Dr. Planter opened up with a few remarks about his years at Ursinus. These remarks took 20 minutes. Dr. Planter told us about his fraternity, his days on the Football Team, his favorite professors, where he lived on Campus and how he met his wife. Then he got to the meat of the speech. He told us how important an Ursinus education was in a world that grows more competitive each day. And that was it. No mention of the growing danger of nuclear proliferation.

No opinion on SALT. No nothing. To say the least I was a little upset. I tried to express my displeasure immediately after the lecture, but this time was all used up by the President of the College who kept repeating how happy he was that Dr. Planter had gone to all the trouble of coming out here and giving us his enlightening views.

Afterwards, Dr. Planter went into the Parent's Lounge where they had coffee and doughnuts. He was supposed to be available for questions, but he spent most of his time chatting with the administration. Finally, I lost my patience. I pushed my way in between two Deans and said, "Excuse me Dr. Planter, but I thought you were going to speak on 'Nuclear Disarmament...How To Make Our World Safe.' He looked at me and then kind of cracked a smile and said, "Well, yeah I guess I was supposed to, but I didn't think all that many people would be interested so that's why I spoke on what I did." I said (very dryly), "Well I am interested in Making Our World Safe." He said, once again with a smile, "Okay. Let me think a minute. Let me think." He thought for a moment. "Son," he said, "the only way we can make this world safe is to bomb those communist bastards back to the Stone-Age." He accompanied this with a hearty laugh.

Mom, I'm sorry. I didn't really mean to punch the guy. But I was frustrated. I was frustrated as hell.

Making Love Is Fact of Life

Dr. Sam Keen, in the Forum entitled MAKING LOVE OR MAKING WAR, EROTIC VISIONS AND PARANOID NIGHTMARES, talked about the importance of loving in today's society. Dr. Keen, a 1953 graduate of Harvard, is also a graduate of Harvard Divinity School and holds two degrees from Princeton University. He is editor of NEW AGE and PSYCHOLOGY TODAY magazines and has authored several books.

Keen expressed the opinion that at 18 most teenagers should not be in college, but out in the world learning to cope with responsibilities, authority and their own individuality. At our age we have had at least 12 years of academic learning and we should take advantage of other opportunities. Life itself is an educational experience not to be missed, from which we can gain much valuable knowledge about ourselves, our relationship with others and how we can teach to mankind. There is always time to come back to book knowledge, whereas we will not always have – or bother to take – the time to learn about society.

As structured society educates us and civilizes us, it closes our mind to many things we would not otherwise ignore. Keen used a graph to demonstrate the way in which society "educates" us and so cuts us off from loving much of mankind, which in turn cuts us off from loving ourselves.

Oktoberfest Comes to Ritter

by Doug Korey '84

Tonight at the Ritter Center Utility Gum Delta Pi Sigma will present an unusual but exciting type of party. Many Ritter Center parties consist of beer and music, and many are fun, but Delta Pi wanted to try something new that would interest both faculty and students. The event is Oktoberfest and it will offer some changes from traditional Ritter parties; the change that they plan are multicourse specialties suspended from the ceiling, creating a better atmosphere than the usual bright, glaring lights. Delta Pi will also offer hot dogs, knockwurst and meatball and sausage hoagies for sale. In addition, a special variety of beer will be provided for those athletes competing in Saturday's sporting events and for any faculty or students not desiring alcoholic beverages. There will be contests during which German Folk music will be played in collaboration with the theme of Oktoberfest.

Dear Mom:

Forums are a series of lectures and performances designed to increase our knowledge of the outside world and to broaden our outlook. However, as great as the education at Ursinus doesn't think the students are too interested in the outside world, because they force you to attend a certain number of forums in order to graduate. Dear Kat,
I know that I promised to write a review about the recent Oct. 4 Kinks Concert at the Spectrum but I'm having a problem immediately recalling the exact program of the show. I've heard of killing brain cells but this is ridiculous! I know Kat, it's a sad reflection of today's youth culture when barely one person out of the almost 50 Ursinus students who went to the concert could accurately retell the 2½ hours of the second best concert this year. (Stones first, remember?) But hey, the whole point behind having live rock concerts at huge arenas is that thousands of people can get together and experience the unity of purpose behind their own personal preference. Right? Well, Ms. Variety Editor, I was so busy experiencing the oneness of the communal experience I lost track of the order of events.

That's not to say that the concert was not impressively memorable—it was tremendous! The group's spirits rallied on the busdrive to Philly—arranged for and funded by Polites-Kramer enterprises—the prankster vehicle buzzed with lots of kinky people and three trashcans of beverage. Even with the diverse social mixture, the mood was riding high and the passengers were ready for some major jamming with the Kinks. Dropped off right in front of the Spectrum (thanks, George!) we rushed to our second level seats for a bird's eye view of the concert.

The lead off band Red Rider played standard fare up music; loud, long and very upbeat, building the crowd's anticipation. When Red Rider finally did finish their typical psych building set we were just getting on the edge of a 25 minute break which could only be constructively used with bathroom and beverage runs, it's a vicious circle you know.

Right from the start of the Kink's performance I could not help but notice the difference between this year's concert and the Kink's concert I saw last year around this time. The 1981 crowd seemed entirely more receptive to and more familiar with the Kinks' music. The Kinks' themselves have definitely progressed into a more innovative phase of performing, and are much more in control of the total crowd mind. They took us up and out of our seats with "Lola," "Superman," "Destroyer," and "Give the People What They Want," then led us back down into the mellow land of "Misfits" and "Celluloid Heroes."

Much of the show was an energizing, in between cruise mixture, including the "Great Gallon of Gas" song from Low Budget. The show went on for an intoxicating amount of time, everyone staying with the activity. There were few vegetables to be seen. The oneness of the communal experience I spoke of earlier was achieved in the Spectrum, despite the acoustics. The Kinks gave us what we wanted, including two five-song encores ending with "Twist and Shout." The fact that this tune was chanted all the way home was indicative of a greater welcome of hours of intense jam and we still couldn't get enough—Well maybe next year! Again Kat, sorry about my lack of recall. Take it easy.

Polkies Elected
Class of '85 President

The Class of 1985 officially accepted their part in the Ursinus system with the election of their class officers on Monday, Oct. 5. The presidential position was filled by Chuck LeKites. Tom Beck was elected vice president, Robin Britain, secretary and Debbie Mumford took the spot of treasurer. SueAnne Heffet and Eva Zouras will assume the positions of USGA Freshman Class Representatives. Also elected were the Day Student Representatives for USGA Christina Cutenicen and Jim Dunlap, and Campus Life Committee Rep, sophomore Christopher Trupp. LeKites seems very enthusiastic about plans for the year."Along with the help of the other officers and my classmates, I would like to plan social and fundraising events that will not only unite the freshmen as a class but will also help make us all active members of the Ursinus community."

Some of the events the class is already considering include a Snowball dance to be held with the sophomore class in December and a trip to Camelback Mountain Resort. LeKites, however is eager for suggestions from the class. "I hope the strong response shown to the class in the elections will continue and I urge all students to submit any input which they feel would be of value to the class." The freshmen officers will be holding a class organization meeting sometime in the near future to get a head start on plans for the semester.

All elected officers will be formally welcomed to the Ursinus community this Saturday, Oct. 10, at halftime of the Bears' football game against Lebanon Valley.

Second Semi-Annual Photo Exhibit Presented Tomorrow

Tomorrow will mark the second campus photography show presented by the Ursinus College Photography Club (UCPC). Beginning at 10:00 a.m., the show will feature work by students and faculty on campus. Approximately five faculty members and 10 students have contributed slides and prints toward the show.

Like last year, the prints will be on display in clothesline-fashion in the front of Wismer Hall. An extensive slide show will add a new dimension to the show this year with over 100 slides on display. These will be projected on a screen in the Parents Lounge of Wismer while the show is going on outside. This will make it convenient for anyone attending meals in Wismer to stop and admire the work.

The first show was organized last year for the Spring Parents Day in April, under the guidance of Deborah Nelman '84 and then club president Jim Wilson '82. Junior Dave Evans is the new club president and is optimistic about the growing interest in photography on campus.

Presently, a non-credit evening school course taught by Professor Derk Visser of the History Department is the only means of instruction in photography offered by UC besides the club. "There has been an increased interest in the darkroom this year and new members are showing up at each meeting," commented Evans. The club shares its darkroom with The Grizzly and is on the third floor of Fetterott Hall on Main Street. The members of the club are hoping photography will come alive on campus and stay that way. Additional courses or forums would help.

After fifty years as part of the Ursinus curriculum, Business Law may be dropped due to a recommendation by the Econom-ics and Business Administration Department.

Although the course has not been officially eliminated from the curriculum, it was offered this semester by request of the Economics Department.

The result was that no one was teaching the course. This led to an evaluation of the place of a business law course in the day.

Program of economic and business studies. Members of the department felt that it would be better to drop the course than to search for a new professor.

According to Dr. John Pilgrim, Chairman of the Economics department, Business Law never was essential as an elective in the liberal arts curriculum. It is important in the evening school however. The course is a requirement of evening students who are pursuing business degrees. Most members of the department felt that it would be reasonable to drop the course from the evening school.

The present situation was seen as a good opportunity to take such action.

Students think that Business Law is being dropped because it is one of the less difficult courses taught here. In response to this opinion, Pilgrim said, "The degree of difficulty of a course is a function of how it is taught. If this was the problem with Business Law it could have been solved through the instructor." Obviously it was not a problem. Pilgrim added that "Business Law can be and has been an interesting and useful course. It simply does not fit well with the day school curriculum and the objectives of our department."

The business law course previously taught dealt with contracts. Examinations consisted of case studies in which students were asked to apply their understanding of the appropriate laws relevant to each case which were taught in class in order to sort out the proper course of action. Text books were allowed as a source material during the exams since what was stressed in the course was the method of analysis used in applying given laws and the line of thinking necessary and not a mere memorization of specific mandates and court rulings. The objectives and curriculum of the course are not unlike the objectives of Political Science 222 better known as Law and Society aside from the fact that the topics are difference since Business Law is limited to contracts.

Both departments admit that the course would be helpful in preparing students for law school or graduate school, but as Dr. Eugene Miller, Chairman of the Political Science Department, pointed out, "Most of the law schools want you to take your law courses with them and not at an undergraduate level." Dr. Pilgrim expressed that the same holds true for graduate schools in business. Because of these reasons, Business Law does not really fit into the curriculum of the Political Science Department or the Economies Department and so will only be carried by the evening school.

The department's recommendation will be reviewed by the Academic Council later this month. If it is approved there, the recommendation will go to the faculty at their November meeting for a final vote. Pilgrim expects the recommendation to be approved.

With adequate advising and some foresight, the student who is contemplating the system can intermingle major training in a language may not be an asset in securing a job. The world is only shown that foreign language appreciation for various types of employees. Recognizing that the proper course of action. USGA Notes

The Class of '85 established themselves in the network of Ursinus politics this Monday with the holding of freshmen elections. Snatching the presiden-tial spot was Chuck LeKites, vice president Tom Beck, secretary Robin Brittain, treasurer Debbie Mumford, and student government representa-tives Sue Ann Hefter and Eva Zouras. Sophomore Chris Trump was elected to the Campus Life Committee. Day Student Representatives are Christina Cauterucci and Jim Dunlap. The USGA congratulates all winners and wishes you all a productive term.

The USGA has recently sent two reports to the campus life committee concerning Al-te­native Housing and Student representation. They have been tabled awaiting revisions but the outlook for their pas­sage in the near future is looking good. Students are asked to keep an eye out for the survey on extended visitation rights to be included in next week's paper.

We are interested in students' views on this matter and to pursue the issue further if the concern is there.

20hrs. Limitation Causes Uproar
by Jim Nowrey '83

Once again there has been grumbling from disgruntled students who work in Wismer Cafeteria. For the most part, this grumbling is unwarranted.

Many of the student workers are upset by the 20 hour per week limit, a limit on student workers on campus. The students who work in the cafeteria believe this limit was made up by Wismer management, however, this is not true. It pertains to all Ursinus student employees and is stated in the employment contract with the college has drawn up. The contract is signed by all student employees.

Without this limit more students who need funds for college tuition and expenses can be hired. This will cut down on the number of students who exceed the 20 hour limit and robbing others of the opportunity to make the money needed for expenses.

If a person works for more than 20 hours per week it is the responsibility of the administrative staff to deliver a notification to the employer of the student, telling him that the student has worked more than the allotted time. The administration, however, must pay the student for the entire number of hours worked.

Another point not clear to many students is the hourly wage of cafeteria workers. Floorwalkers, because of the responsibility of their jobs, earn $3.75 per hour. Busboys, waitresses, checkers and dishwashers earn $3.35 per hour, with dishroom supervisors earning $3.45.

The cafeteria management is also devising a new look for the cafeteria. Instead of waiting for beverages, the management is planning to put the beverage machines along the meal lines.

If anyone has any questions about cafeteria procedures or is interested in a job, they should contact Ed Barnes.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This week Ed Barnes became the proud father of an eight pound baby girl. Congratulations, Ed!

The Message of These Days
To the Editor:

On Rosh Hashanah (the Jewish New Year) the ram's hour, the Shofar, sounds signaling the opening of the Book of Life. At sundown on Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement) the Shofar again sounds and the Book of Life is sealed. During the eight intervening days, the days of awe, all people are written in the Book of Life, "Those who will live and those who will die." Men who pursue God's most fundamental ideals often die before the book is sealed; this was the fate of Anwar Sadat.

Sadat spared the petty, con­iving leaders of the Arab world; leaders who swore to fight Israel to the drop of Egyptian blood. Anwar Sadat tried to forge peace between Israel and Egypt. He, along with Menachem Begin, worked diligently towards peace in the war ravaged Middle East.

As a result, Sadat became one of the most important and respected world leaders of the past decade. Unfortunately for Sadat, he gained bitter enemies as a result of his high ideals. Some of these en­emies, motivated by lies and hate, murdered him.

Sadat's death will probably jeopardize the Middle East peace effort. It will create unrest in the Arab world and may lead to more Arab fighting. Worst of all, it may lead to war with Israel. But Sadat would not have taken the risks he took, if he had not believed in what he was fighting for. Maybe his death, during the Holiest time of the year, will inspire men to follow in Sadat's high ideals. Some of these en­emies, motivated by lies and hate, murdered him.

This is a terrible tragedy for the entire world. For those of us in the midst of the celebration of the Jewish High Holy Days, Sadat's death poignantly clarifies the message of these days, the search for justice, truth and peace. This message should not be for a small minority. Everyone should understand what Anwar Sadat lived for and everyone should strive to live as nobly as he.

The Grizzly- Friday, Oct. 9, 1981
Fearless Friday

Philadelphia vs. New Orleans

The Eagles are the best team in the NFL. The Saints are one of the worst. Surprise! New Orleans wins by 3 and brings the Eagles back to earth.

New England vs. New York Jets

The Jets surprised everyone (including themselves) by tying the Dolphins last week. This week the rejuvenation in Flushing continues as Jets win by a TD.

St. Louis vs. New York Giants

The Cardinals upset Dallas last week (as predicted in The Grizzly) but the Giants are slowly improving. New York by 6.

Dallas vs. San Francisco

Dallas doesn’t get beat two weeks in a row. Cowboys by 4.

Cleveland vs. Pittsburgh

In this battle of ancient rivals the Steelers prove they still have that old black magic. Steelers by a TD.

Houston vs. Seattle

Steelers by a TD.

Winnipeg vs. Minnesota

Bears by 3.

Dallas wins by 27.

New England vs. Buffalo

The Pats have been playing well as of late. The Bills come in straight face.

Bengals and the Steelers for rejuvenation in Flushing continue.

The Eagles are the best team in the NFC Central. Enough said. Denver vs. Kansas City wins by 4.

Oakland vs. Kansas City

The Raiders are looking good. Detroit is from the NFC Central. Enough said. Denver by 10.

Minnesota vs. San Diego

The Chargers’ biggest problem will be keeping a straight face. San Diego by 14.

Tampa Bay vs. Green Bay

When people name a case for minor league professional football, I tell them there’s one already; the NFC Central. In this battle of the bush-leaguers, Tampa Bay wins by 3.

Brooklyn vs. Philadelphia

Brooklyn wins by 10.

I hope the fans in Chicago make Friday Oct. 15 a night to remember. We’d like to get some “official” attention.

(Continued from Page One)Interested and bright people around. We’d like to get some good ideas. These people include instructors, administrators and students. When asked if cross-registration presented a problem, Nace’s response was that he felt that 25 students per class was the maximum number that could be dealt with comfortably and responsibly. “Cross-registration is one procedural problem in this area. It is no mystery to anyone that it is the evening school students who pay the salaries of the faculty and also the general expenses of running the Evening School.” Nace realizes that certain courses aren’t offered in the day school and this does present a legitimate concern for some day students. The solution, according to Nace, is more direct communication between faculty and students: “More understanding is necessary. Student advisors might become more aware of the evening school and how it operates.”

One student who recently had a cross-registration problem is Susan Wood, a member of the committee. When asked if she felt this was a minor problem on campus, Susan commented, “I don’t feel that the problem is that minor, especially if it becomes a personal one. I view it as an accounting problem.” Susan also feels that some of the liberal arts courses offered in the evening school are not as academically stringent as the same offered in the day school.

Akin does not believe that cross-registration is a problem of any magnitude. “There are around 125 day students in the Evening School and this semester we had a minor problem keeping 12 seats for the day students. All but four were able to attend the courses that they had registered for. I do everything I possibly can to help day students work out their schedules.” Akin reinforced the goals of the Task Force as laid out by Dr. Kane; that is, analyzing the curriculum structure and the comparison of the two programs. Akin is interested in the quality of the professional abilities of the evening school faculty. Dean Akin feels that the University’s Faculty should not have to teach in the evening school, as it depletes their energies which should be directed to their duties in the instruction of the day students.

Nace agrees with Akin and adds, “The day school faculty members are instructors of the highest caliber. Adjunct instructors who are brought in for courses that are not offered in the day school have no way of really being evaluated.” Nace reports that 50% of the day faculty teaches in the evening school because it is “a matter of survival.” In addition to airing some of the various opinions on the subject of cross-registration, so far, the Task Force has reviewed and revised the curriculum for the Bachelors of Business Administration program, which is offered exclusively in the evening. Akin is especially pleased that the total number of liberal arts courses has been increased for the students registered in this program.

In a final comment from Dr. Kane: “We are looking ahead to determine where the college is going in a systematic way. This committee has not completed its work— the final report will be a carefully drafted document that tries to satisfy all of the four interested parties. This includes the Evening School administration, the Day School administration, the faculty, and of course, the students.”

Evening School Task Force

[Continued from Page One] services to yield a profit would ultimately mean an increase of the present college expense for the student. The threat that off-campus living may pose to the present positive cash inflow for the dormitory service could prevent the passage of this proposal.

Faculty representative Dr. Robin Clouser expressed his confidence in the possibility of implementing a policy that would not only encourage financial stability for the college but would also offer student freedom. The committee agreed that the proposal could mean a significant improvement in the quality of student life. Dr. Phillips reiterated these sentiments stating “The students are our best customers!” and heartily supported the proposal in order to retain and increase the college’s “customers.”

The proposal, accompanied by a statement of the committee’s enthusiastic endorsement, will now be sent to the Campus Planning Group. This Group will meet in November and decide on a final direction for the proposal. If considered acceptable the statement will ultimately be sent to the Board of Directors and a final report will be presented to the Board in May 1982-1983. A successful passage of the USGA’s off-campus housing proposal may mean a breaking down in tradition and a speeding up of progress at Ursinus.

Resumé and Letter Writing Workshop

On Thursday, Oct. 15 from 12:15 to 12:55 p.m. in Room 100 in Bomberger, a resumé and letter writing Seminar will be conducted by Dr. Cogger, Director of Career Planning and Placement. This is an appropriate time to begin preparations for campus interviews. Take advantage of this opportunity to become more skillful in writing application letters and resumes.

Temple Wins 1-0...
Hockey Suffers First Loss of Season

by Joan Morris '83

Ursinus met up with the Temple Owls Tuesday, Oct. 6, on the turf of Temple University and when they came home they had suffered their first defeat of the season. The final score of the game was 1-0, with Temple's goal coming fifteen minutes into the second half.

Both teams played a good, solid game, the only difference between the Owls' goatee. The Temple keeper turned away several shots by the hard-shooting Bears. It was the superb play of this goal that led the way to the upset of our fifth place nationally ranked team.

Another factor against the Bears was the lack of the long crosses in front of the goal by seniors Traci Davis, Temple shut Davis down, and the few times Davis was open the unfamiliar astroturf caused Ursinus passes to come too hard and too fast for Davis to stop. The Bears played a good, hard game but they just ran into a too-hot goalie from Temple. On the same day the JV also suffered their first defeat of the season with a score of 3-2. JV struggled to come back from a 2-0 halftime deficit and played a better, slightly dominating second half. Scoring for the Bears was senior Vicki Videon on a scramble in front and sophomore Nikki Zimmerman deflecting on a crossing pass from Videon. Ursinus pressed the defense of Temple to the limit and only the lack of time prevented a tie.

The varsity record now stands at 6-1-0. They have scored 22 goals this season and have had only four goals scored against them. The JV squad sports a record of 5-1-1, scoring 23 goals with only eight against them.

The Bears meet up with Lock Haven away on Saturday, Oct. 10. On Sunday, Oct. 11 at 11:00 a.m. they meet American University here at home; University of Pennsylvania on Tuesday, Oct. 13 at 3:30 p.m., and Lehigh on Thursday, Oct. 15 at 3:15 p.m., both at home. Come out and support the team.

Soccer Shuts Out Hopkins

by Nora Klinker '84

Ursinus beat Hopkins in their first MAC Division III game against Johns Hopkins University Saturday by a score of 3-0. Hopkins was considered a formidable opponent because of their earlier win over Haverson which had won the Divisional Championship for the past four years.

Sophomore Tom Savage chopped the ball 20 yards out of the goal to sophomore Mark Kraush who sent it home to put UC on the board early in the game. The rest of the first half was not promising, having several saves by goalie Jim Bircher '83, as its highlight.

After an inspirational talk by Coach Manning the booters managed to dominate the second half. Senior Captain Jim Drevs scored an assist from Savage who slipped the ball through the Hopkins' defense. Ursinus scored the final goal when sophomore Tim Howard crossed the ball in front of the goal mouth to junior

Cross Country Leaves 'Em Talking

by Paul Graeff '83

Coach Alan Treffinger knew his team was facing their toughest test of the season and although he also knew they were well prepared, there was something else on his mind at the start of the New York Tech Invitational this past Saturday.

"I am definitely quite pleased with where we are as a team at this point in the year," noted Treffinger. But what pleased the young coach even more was the feeling he had walking away with the victor's trophy, while leaving those who attended the meet talking about that team from Pennsylvania, Ursinus College.

Dickinson Latest Victim to Ursinus Defense

by Joe Granahan '85

The Bear defense did it again. Although this is becoming a hackneyed phrase this year, it is becoming more true as Ursinus' '81 season goes on. This weekend's victim was Dickinson, who fell prey to the swarming Bear defensive unit.

The defense is doing what we had hoped they could do at the beginning of the year: take control of a football game, said a pleased Coach Karas. "When one of them slacks off, there is always someone there to pick him up."

This weekend the defense accounted for the only touchdown of the afternoon as well as holding the Red Devils scoreless.
