Reconsidering previous decisions, the Mennonite Brethren in Christ and others have taken a stand against the use of Hood's Blood Balm, which is advertised as being "scientifically established" for the treatment of bruises and sprains. The controversy surrounds the efficacy and potential hazards of such home remedies, especially in the context of increasing public health awareness.

In a related development, L. H. Ingram, ex-treasurer of Montgomery County, has requested additional information regarding the financial status of the county's treasury. This follows a meeting with the county commissioners, where the matter of a potential deficit was discussed.

Signs of Promise.

Amidst the debates and discussions, the community remains hopeful. The promise of new beginnings and improvements continues to motivate the people. Community leaders are encouraged by the ongoing efforts to enhance local businesses and services, and to strengthen community ties.

The Boys' Guild of St. James' Church, under the guidance of Horace C. Jones, is preparing for a special event. The guild will meet on Wednesday, with plans for a fun-filled evening. The youth group will gather for games, crafts, and other activities designed to keep the children engaged and entertained.

The High School Band, under the direction of Mr. Wetherill, will perform on Friday evening at 7 o'clock, by the pastor. The band will be highlighting the musical talents of the students, showcasing their dedication and hard work.

In a different context, a broken ankle has occurred in the Schrack farm of 246. The owner, Mr. Schrack, is expected to make a full recovery after undergoing medical treatment.
