11-2-1984

The Grizzly, November 2, 1984

Rosemary J. Wuenschel
Ursinus College

Tom Feeney
Ursinus College

Tracey Clark
Ursinus College

Amy Kistler
Ursinus College

Andrea Butler
Ursinus College

See next page for additional authors

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.ursinus.edu/grizzlynews

Part of the Cultural History Commons, Higher Education Commons, Liberal Studies Commons, Social History Commons, and the United States History Commons

Click here to let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Wuenschel, Rosemary J.; Feeney, Tom; Clark, Tracey; Kistler, Amy; Butler, Andrea; Walter, Kimberly E.; Wendel, Sandi; Nevins, Doug; Pirro, Joseph P.; Galena, Ted; Bull, Kenny; Early, Meg; O'Donnell, John; and Richter, Richard P., "The Grizzly, November 2, 1984" (1984). Ursinus College Grizzly Newspaper. 126.
https://digitalcommons.ursinus.edu/grizzlynews/126

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Newspapers at Digital Commons @ Ursinus College. It has been accepted for inclusion in Ursinus College Grizzly Newspaper by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Ursinus College. For more information, please contact aprck@ursinus.edu.
Authors
Students harassed in two incidents

By ROSE WUENSCHEL

Dean Kane urged students to keep exterior and room doors locked, not to walk alone after dark and to report any suspicious strangers to security, in a memo to all students dated Oct. 30. He wrote this memo in response to two incidents of unwelcome visitors harassing students on campus.

On Thursday, Oct. 2 between 10:30 and 11 p.m., residents of Hobson called security for assistance with a prowler on the roof. Peggy Loughran, a senior resident of Hobson said, “I heard him jump on the roof from the pine tree where Diane Nicander saw him. Then I ran upstairs and saw him on the roof outside one of the windows. We called security, but he was gone by the time they got here.”

Harris Linhart, the director of security on campus, said that Collegeville Police were called immediately after the Hobson call. However, the police were unable to respond immediately because they had just received a report of a flasher at a private residence on Sixth Avenue.

Moments later security received a call from Shriner where an unidentified man had visited three rooms and into the walls of the Limerick Power Plant.

Majority of students choose Reagan

As we approach the 1984 Presidential Election, some people may ask the question, "Who do Ursinus College students support for president in 1984?" On Wednesday, Oct. 24, students were given a chance to cast their votes in a mock election. An overwhelming majority, 79 percent of resident students, believed that Ronald Reagan should be president for four more years. Twenty one percent of the students voted for Mondale.

When asked about the election, John Pascali, a senior and senior class president said, "I think it was a huge success. I was happy to see so many students vote." Over 50 percent of the resident students voted in the Mock Election sponsored by the College Republican and College Democrats. To insure accurate voting figures, students were required to sign a voting roster which was later compared with student directories to verify that no one voted more than once.

To many people’s surprise, Ursinus women voted Republican in higher percentages than men. Eighty one percent of the females as compared to 79 percent of the males voted for Reagan. Nineteen percent of females and 21 percent of males voted for Mondale.

In addition, a higher percentage of underclassmen voted Republican than did upperclassmen. In the freshmen and sophomore classes, an 81 and 87 percent voted for Reagan compared to 19 and 13 percent for Mondale. In the junior and senior classes, respectively 74 and 78 percent voted for Reagan compared to 26 and 24 percent for Mondale.

Limerick Part 3

The controversy: No simple solution in sight

By TOM FEEONEY

In Limerick, there is a stretch of road that cuts along between the Schuylkill River and the chain link fence that circumscribes the Limerick Nuclear Power Plant. A network of railroad tracks and a dense pack of foliage separate the dark macadam of the road from the murky river water. Across the way, pasted against the gray sky, loom the two enormous, concrete cooling towers of the Limerick plant.

For centuries, people have been confronted with their own innovations, and for centuries, they have been frightened by what they have created. This point is dramatized along this stretch of road in Limerick by the juxtaposition of the railroad tracks and the power plant.

The tracks — old and well-traveled — run along the river, bend away, and, after a few hundred years, seem to disappear into nothing and nowhere. More than a century ago, trains ran along similar tracks, lapping the miles and lashing the valleys, blowing short bursts of steam from their cold, iron orifices; and people stood by, watching the locomotives, wondering how they would effect their wilderness, their safety, their quality of life. People, in short, were awed and frightened.

The two 55-story high cooling towers, and the labyrinth of wires, buildings, pipes, and tubes that comprise the Limerick Plant make a similar awe, and create a similar fear. Today people wonder how nuclear power will effect their environment, their safety, their quality of life.

But this stretch of road also dramatizes an essential — if not always felt — difference between the anxieties of the people of the two epochs. People of the mid-1800s had the advantage of being able to see the effects of the locomotive. They saw the railroad companies digging up the earth to plant tracks, chasing animals from their habitats, usurping families who had occupied the same homes for generations. These people knew empirically what was happening to their wilderness and what was happening to their ways of life.

We who are living through the early stages of the commercial use of nuclear power do not share that advantage with our predecessors. We can look at the tubes and wires and buildings, and we can stand in the shadow of the cooling towers; but the real work of a nuclear power plant, that which makes it such an innovation, goes on within the atom itself.

The whole of nuclear science has a certain inaccessibility and secretiveness, which tend to make it more difficult for us to accept our encounter with this innovation than it was for our predecessors to accept their encounters with their own inventions.

"Energy in America's Future: The Choices Before Us," a 1975 report on a three year study done by Resources for the Future, Inc. (RFI), recognized the widespread apprehension Americans have about nuclear power.

The RFI study concluded that "no energy technology raises immediately after the Hobson call. However, the police were unable to respond immediately because they had just received a report of a flasher at a private residence on Sixth Avenue.

Moments later security received a call from Shriner where an unidentified man had visited three rooms and in the walls of the Limerick Power Plant.

Majority of students choose Reagan

As we approach the 1984 Presidential Election, some people may ask the question, "Who do Ursinus College students support for president in 1984?" On Wednesday, Oct. 24, students were given a chance to cast their votes in a mock election. An overwhelming majority, 79 percent of resident students, believed that Ronald Reagan should be president for four more years. Twenty one percent of the students voted for Mondale.

When asked about the election, John Pascali, a senior and senior class president said, "I think it was a huge success. I was happy to see so many students vote." Over 50 percent of the resident students voted in the Mock Election sponsored by the College Republican and College Democrats. To insure accurate voting figures, students were required to sign a voting roster which was later compared with student directories to verify that no one voted more than once.

To many people’s surprise, Ursinus women voted Republican in higher percentages than men. Eighty one percent of the females as compared to 79 percent of the males voted for Reagan. Nineteen percent of females and 21 percent of males voted for Mondale.

In addition, a higher percentage of underclassmen voted Republican than did upperclassmen. In the freshmen and sophomore classes, an 81 and 87 percent voted for Reagan compared to 19 and 13 percent for Mondale. In the junior and senior classes, respectively 74 and 78 percent voted for Reagan compared to 26 and 24 percent for Mondale.

Limerick Part 3

The controversy: No simple solution in sight

By TOM FEEONEY

In Limerick, there is a stretch of road that cuts along between the Schuylkill River and the chain link fence that circumscribes the Limerick Nuclear Power Plant. A network of railroad tracks and a dense pack of foliage separate the dark macadam of the road from the murky river water. Across the way, pasted against the gray sky, loom the two enormous, concrete cooling towers of the Limerick plant.

For centuries, people have been confronted with their own innovations, and for centuries, they have been frightened by what they have created. This point is dramatized along this stretch of road in Limerick by the juxtaposition of the railroad tracks and the power plant.

The tracks — old and well-traveled — run along the river, bend away, and, after a few hundred years, seem to disappear into nothing and nowhere. More than a century ago, trains ran along similar tracks, lapping the miles and lashing the valleys, blowing short bursts of steam from their cold, iron orifices; and people stood by, watching the locomotives, wondering how they would effect their wilderness, their safety, their quality of life. People, in short, were awed and frightened.

The two 55-story high cooling towers, and the labyrinth of wires, buildings, pipes, and tubes that comprise the Limerick Plant make a similar awe, and create a similar fear. Today people wonder how nuclear power will effect their environment, their safety, their quality of life.

But this stretch of road also dramatizes an essential — if not always felt — difference between the anxieties of the people of the two epochs. People of the mid-1800s had the advantage of being able to see the effects of the locomotive. They saw the railroad companies digging up the earth to plant tracks, chasing animals from their habitats, usurping families who had occupied the same homes for generations. These people knew empirically what was happening to their wilderness and what was happening to their ways of life.

We who are living through the early stages of the commercial use of nuclear power do not share that advantage with our predecessors. We can look at the tubes and wires and buildings, and we can stand in the shadow of the cooling towers; but the real work of a nuclear power plant, that which makes it such an innovation, goes on within the atom itself. It is unlikely that many of us will ever watch an atom split, and it is unlikely that many of us will ever be able to witness the effects of radiation. The whole of nuclear science has a certain inaccessibility and secretiveness, which tend to make it more difficult for us to accept our encounter with this innovation than it was for our predecessors to accept their encounters with their own inventions.

"Energy in America's Future: The Choices Before Us," a 1975 report on a three year study done by Resources for the Future, Inc. (RFI), recognized the widespread apprehension Americans have about nuclear power.

The RFI study concluded that "no energy technology raises immediately after the Hobson call. However, the police were unable to respond immediately because they had just received a report of a flasher at a private residence on Sixth Avenue.

Moments later security received a call from Shriner where an unidentified man had visited three rooms and in the walls of the Limerick Power Plant.

Majority of students choose Reagan

As we approach the 1984 Presidential Election, some people may ask the question, "Who do Ursinus College students support for president in 1984?" On Wednesday, Oct. 24, students were given a chance to cast their votes in a mock election. An overwhelming majority, 79 percent of resident students, believed that Ronald Reagan should be president for four more years. Twenty one percent of the students voted for Mondale.

When asked about the election, John Pascali, a senior and senior class president said, "I think it was a huge success. I was happy to see so many students vote." Over 50 percent of the resident students voted in the Mock Election sponsored by the College Republican and College Democrats. To insure accurate voting figures, students were required to sign a voting roster which was later compared with student directories to verify that no one voted more than once.

To many people’s surprise, Ursinus women voted Republican in higher percentages than men. Eighty one percent of the females as compared to 79 percent of the males voted for Reagan. Nineteen percent of females and 21 percent of males voted for Mondale.

In addition, a higher percentage of underclassmen voted Republican than did upperclassmen. In the freshmen and sophomore classes, an 81 and 87 percent voted for Reagan compared to 19 and 13 percent for Mondale. In the junior and senior classes, respectively 74 and 78 percent voted for Reagan compared to 26 and 24 percent for Mondale.
Some illuminating self-abuse en route to an endorsement

We, the college students of the '80s, have placed our faith blindly in President Reagan. We accept, without reservation, the policies of his administration. We accept, without question, the notion that he is the right man to lead America for the next four years.

We no longer need to skip Thursday's 7-11 run to be able to afford Friday's case of Bud. We are no longer confronted daily by palpable international crises. We can now make it safely through the week without worrying about anyone but ourselves.

We credit President Reagan for these changes.

We are a happy crowd, fat and happy. We have grown smug and selfish. The policies of the present administration have made it easier for us to satisfy our personal needs. We stick stubbornly by the President's weatherbeaten slogan "Stay the course."

And we will stay the course because we have lost sight of any good greater than the satisfaction of our own petty, material desires. We have a chronic case of the giggles; "Gimme a hearty midnight snack."

We have lost the courage to look beyond the tinted windows of the B.M.W.'s in our future. It is President Reagan, we believe, not Walter Mondale, who will provide us with those B.M.W.'s. So we stay the course.

Our older brothers and sisters who suffered puberty during the turbulent 60s left us a legacy of idealism, solicitude, and constant that we have elected to abandon for selfishness and some bootlicking obedience to authority. We no longer acknowledge that true individual happiness is contingent upon the happiness of all.

President Reagan's policies are leading us to some oasis, an orgy of self-gratification, where we will be left to contemplate the plights of those whose misfortune it was to be left behind.

President Reagan will have the women stay behind. He has been staunchly opposed to the Equal Rights Amendment, which would grant equality to a group that has been fighting long and hard for it. Women should not have to fight for equality. It should be presupposed. The ERA would be a start.

President Reagan will have a host of minorities stay behind. Because of the programs he has cut, the groups most beleaguered by poverty — blacks, Hispanics and the elderly — will not even be able to afford the transportation to his oasis. Because of his civil rights policies, gays and lesbians will not be tolerated by those at the oasis.

And because of President Reagan's confused notion of the proper blend of church and state, many Jews, Catholics, Agnostics, Atheists, Moslems, Quakers, and Protestants will be forced away from the oasis because they will be praying in the schools there.

President Reagan will have our children stay behind, and their children and their children's children. Somebody will have to stick around to pay off our national debt.

President Reagan will have all people interested in true peace stay behind. At the oasis, he will pursue a policy of peace maintained by the constant threat of an utterly destructive war; all people there will be employed in the proliferation of nuclear weapons. At the oasis, President Reagan will woo foreign powers to the negotiating table by calling them names, and by flexing the costly muscles of his many arsenals. At the oasis, people who believe that true peace is to be had by eliminating the threat of war will be laughed at and shunned. "Prepare to kill the bear," they will be told, rather than "Befriend the bear."

Mondale promises no oasis. What he does offer is a chance for all people to be comfortable, a chance for an end to American imperialism in Central America and the Mid-East, a chance to slow the senseless build up of costly nuclear weapons, and thus, a chance for true peace.

He will serve the needs of each of us by serving the needs of all of us.

In his four years as president, to his credit, Reagan has created a good feeling in America, a sense of pride, of nationalism, that had been missing since Watergate. Unfortunately, that good feeling is like a fresh coat of paint on a house infested with termites. The beams are rotting, the house is falling apart from the inside.

Walter Mondale can get rid of the insidious pests, and strengthen the beams and the foundation of the old house once again. The editors of The Grizzly think we ought to give him a chance.

---

Letter

Dear Editor:

I have been working at Zack's for a few years now and it is with much regret that I am leaving. It has been a real pleasure working with such fine people and being able to serve such fine ladies and gentlemen.

The only reason for my leaving is to spend more time with my family. My two sons are 8 and 10 years old now and they would like me to spend more time with them on weekends. Oh yes, that also includes my wife, Muriel.

You always been kind and polite to me while working at Zack's, and I will surely miss all of you.

I would like to wish everyone all the best in your remaining years here at Ursinus and throughout our lives.

Remember to live each day of your life to its fullest, for tomorrow is promised to no one.

Good Luck and God Bless All of You

Ronnie Clossin

Weekend Supervisor

at Zack's

---

LETTER POLICY

Letters must be typed and no more than 300 words. Name and telephone number are required for verification purposes. Letters should be deposited in the Grizzly mail box in Corson Basement by 7 p.m. Monday. The Grizzly reserves the right to edit all letters. Requests for anonymity will be considered by the editorial board.
By GARY HART

People with long memories may recall that I ran for president earlier this year. Our campaign became a cause for Americans who had given up on politics or who had not been involved before. Many of these voters, some were professionals and many came from outside the traditional constituencies of the Democratic Party.

In the month of disturbing news reports have indicated that younger voters are getting interested in politics again — but planning to vote Republican. It is said that this is in their self-interest while voting Democratic is not. I strongly disagree with this analysis and predict a far different voting pattern among new, younger voters this November.

I believe this group, along with others who are young in spirit, will make the difference in the contest between Reagan-Bush and Mondale-Ferraro. The election and the future of the Democratic Party will rest on them.

These young voters care about those in need, but they believe that their role is to give them the opportunity, not hand-outs. They also believe that their role is to give the benefit of every doubt to the individual. They are self-reliant.

Our arms control policy is monopolized today by hardliners who confuse diplomacy with weakness and fundamentally reject the negotiation process. In four years, these arms-racers have closed every opening, derailed every effort and ruined every chance for an agreement.

As new, young voters, who overwhelmingly support a verifiable, bilateral freeze, come to understand this, they cannot help but turn to Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro, who are not afraid to negotiate with Moscow.

On the deficit, too, policy is now imposed by a fringe group — this case a group that is taxing the future to pay for the past. The President thinks young voters are so shortsighted that they will ignore these monstrous deficits — if he can distract them with a few dollars to spend now. He is wrong. Debt may be an abstraction. Interest is not. In the last four years, the interest payments on the debt have reached $110 billion a year. By 1989, interest alone will soar to more than $200 billion a year — fourteen times higher than when Mr. Reagan took over.

In contrast, in choosing to spell out his plans to deal with the debt, Walter Mondale has outlined a path not of least resistance but of highest responsibility. That is something every generation needs.

In a third area, religion and politics, Ronald Reagan has alarmed independent-minded voters by inviting representatives of one small group of Protestants to prescribe our morals and beliefs. Mr. Reagan apparently interprets religious freedom to mean freedom for one narrow segment of the people to impose its beliefs on the rest. That, too, young voters know, is a threat to our future — to the elemental liberties that stand at the heart of the American tradition.

Finally and perhaps most important to our generation is a group that makes an entirely wrong assumption about today's young voters — that they are self-centered and self-indulgent, that they are nothing for others. Here, the administration is merely projecting its own values, and once the young voters recognize this, I believe they will reject the Republican ticket.

The youth I worked with in my campaign understand the difference between skepticism and cynicism, between true opportunity and sheer greed. They know our society is not made up of 500 million greedy individuals and that we won't become "better off" one person at a time.

New voters have a fait accompli this November — a historic chance. They can choose an administration that is blindly manipulative and contemptuous of the individual, or they can choose a government that can change the world.

I am confident that young voters in spirit will choose the national interest and the common good over the narrow politics of short-term personal gratifications.

...A weaker America

By RICHARD A. VIGUERIE

WASHINGTON, D.C. — When Tipp O'Neill humiliated himself in front of millions of TV viewers by questioning the Americanism of Congressman Newt Gingrich — a personal attack that made O'Neill the first Speaker in at least 186 years to be temporarily barred from speaking on the House floor — most news reports overlooked an important point.

What exactly was it that made O'Neill so angry?

He was angry because Gingrich read into the record a report (by Frank Gregorsky of the Republican Study Committee) on liberals' blindness to the threat of communism.

Gingrich was not criticizing all liberals, of course — certainly not liberals in the tradition of Presidents Truman and Kennedy. But, as the Georgia Congressman pointed out, most liberals in the Democratic Party today have adopted it a habit to indictment America, indict the President, and given the benefit of every doubt to Marxist regimists.

To make his point, it wasn't necessary for Gingrich to impugn the patriotism of anyone. All he had to do was read the liberal Democrats' own statements.

He quoted the infamous "Dear Communist" letter by Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas, giving the Nicaraguan dictatorship advice on how to circumvent U.S. Foreign policy. He quoted Congressional liberals' assurances over the years that, if we would only abandon our allies in Southeast Asia (and Angola, and Nicaragua, and El Salvador, etc., etc.), we would help make the world a peaceful place.

Gingrich proved beyond a doubt, that on issues like the Soviet threat in Central America, arms control, defense spending, and new weapons systems, liberal Democrats in Congress take the position that the weaker we get involved, the better. They do not see that they are unpatriotic, but apparently because they think that communism poses no threat. How light is the link between them, communism is not (as I believe) a variant of fascism; instead, it is "liberalism in a hurry."

Present-day liberals ignore the fervent anti-communism that is part of the liberal tradition and the tradition of the Democratic Party. For example, Gary Hart and his contemporaries on the left tell us that the cause of revolution isn't communism; it's poverty.

As new young voters, who overwhelmingly support a verifiable, bilateral freeze, come to understand this, they cannot help but turn to Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro, who are not afraid to negotiate with Moscow.

On the deficit, too, policy is now imposed by a fringe group — this case a group that is taxing the future to pay for the past. The President thinks young voters are so shortsighted that they will ignore these monstrous deficits — if he can distract them with a few dollars to spend now. He is wrong. Debt may be an abstraction. Interest is not. In the last four years, the interest payments on the debt have reached $110 billion a year. By 1989, interest alone will soar to more than $200 billion a year — fourteen times higher than when Mr. Reagan took over.

In contrast, in choosing to spell out his plans to deal with the debt, Walter Mondale has outlined a path not of least resistance but of highest responsibility. That is something every generation needs.

In a third area, religion and politics, Ronald Reagan has alarmed independent-minded voters by inviting representatives of one small group of Protestants to prescribe our morals and beliefs. Mr. Reagan apparently interprets religious freedom to mean freedom for one narrow segment of the people to impose its beliefs on the rest. That, too, young voters know, is a threat to our future — to the elemental liberties that stand at the heart of the American tradition.

Finally and perhaps most important to our generation is a group that makes an entirely wrong assumption about today's young voters — that they are self-centered and self-indulgent, that they are nothing for others. Here, the administration is merely projecting its own values, and once the young voters recognize this, I believe they will reject the Republican ticket.

The youth I worked with in my campaign understand the difference between skepticism and cynicism, between true opportunity and sheer greed. They know our society is not made up of 500 million greedy individuals and that we won't become "better off" one person at a time.

New voters have a fait accompli this November — a historic chance. They can choose an administration that is blindly manipulative and contemptuous of the individual, or they can choose a government that can change the world.

I am confident that young voters in spirit will choose the national interest and the common good over the narrow politics of short-term personal gratifications.

Contrast that view with the ideas expressed by John F. Kennedy. JFK believed that the U.S. had a responsibility to assist struggling nations suffering to poor nations, but he had no illusions that poverty was the cause of communist insurrection. The enemy is the communist system itself — implacable, insatiable, unceasing in its drive for world domination," Kennedy said. "For this is not a struggle for the survival of the fittest. This is also a struggle for supremacy between two competing ideologies: Freedom under God versus ruthless, godless tyranny."

The late George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, wrote in 1975, "The 'domino theory' is supposedly out of fashion. But events are reasserting it with a vengeance. We see before our horrified eyes and plain proof that the fate of the Western world rests on a series of interlocking alliances and relationships which cannot be maintained at one point without weakening the whole chain...Everywhere, communism is on the march. Everywhere, the other side has retreat. Such as the fruits, the bitter fruits of detente."

Attacking President Carter's SALT II treaty, former Labor Secretary Henry Jackson, D-Washington, former national chairman of the Democratic Party, said, "To enter into a treaty that favors the Soviets, as this one does, on the ground that we will be in a worse position without it, is appeasement in its purest form."

Today's liberal Democrats bristle at any accusation that they are "soft on communism." They consider the suggestion to be "McCarthyism" and they proceed to attack the character of anyone who dares say such a thing. But a person can be soft on communism — blind to the threat it poses, ignorant of its brutality — without being a communist.

The proper response to the charge of being soft on communism would be to disprove it, not to engage in name-calling.

Want to see a liberal Democratic Congressman start stammering and puffing and turning red in the face? Just ask him this question: In the long history of the liberal Democratism described by John F. Kennedy, between "Freedom under God and "ruthless, godless tyranny..." whose side are you on?
3000 alumni return for Homecoming

BY TRACEY CLARK AND ANDREA BUTLER

"Slicky cotton candy, the aroma of popcorn and barbecued chicken, hayrides, the bright lure of a hot air balloon on a warm autumn day, were all part of our country fair at Ursinus." An estimated 3,000 Ursinus alumni, the largest group ever, "came back to Bear Country" for the 1984 Homecoming festivities last Saturday.

Starting off the day's events were victories for both the field hockey and soccer teams which added more Homecoming spirit to the Ursinus reunion. The field hockey team trampled Villanova, 2-0, increasing their record to 15-4. The soccer team outscored Widener, 5-2, in a grueling match to further their streak to 11 wins and the month-long completion of final exam week. The following article appeared in The Grizzly dated December 18, 1944.

News of Yesteryear

By AMY KISTLER

The highlight of every college student's fall semester is the completion of final exam week and the month-long Christmas break which follows. On the Ursinus campus, the lighted Christmas tree in front of Bomberger Hall and the Christmas caroling help to ease the tension before final exam week. The following article appeared in The Ursinus Weekly dated December 18, 1944. It describes an old tradition on the Ursinus campus 40 years ago of an all-night Christmas dorm party. Although Christmas is two months away, the thought of Christmas break might provide a 'light' to all those students who are finding their semester to be a 'long dark tunnel.' The article also provides a stark contrast between Ursinus campus parties today and Ursinus parties of 40 years ago.

COEDS TO HOLD DORMITORY DAWN PATROLS

After the ball is over, after the last Ursinus coed has kissed her date for the Christmas dance goodnight and signed in, the fun begins. For the benefit of you freshmen and sophomores who have never experienced an all-night dorm party, and for the benefit of you curious men who audibly wonder what goes on at such a hen session, we present this article.

Attired in pajamas and bathrobes, the girls and their preceptors pack themselves into their respective reception rooms like to many sardines each armed with a wacky inexpensive gift and a wacky poem to go with it. Gifts are exchanged and opened and poems read while the other girls try to guess who the gift is from.

It is at this stage of the game that the men formerly came around and serenaded the girls with Christmas carols to which they replied in turn. Whether this tradition will be carried out this year remains to be seen.

The most anticipated part of the evening finally rolls around — food. Silence reigns in the erstwhile noisy room while ever hungry girls apply themselves far more industriously to eating than they ever did to studying. Well fed contented sleepy coeds then lounge about the reception room while the more ambitiousCAROLS..."

Roving Reporter

Compiled by Kim Walter — Pictures by Chuck Brucker

"What is your reaction to the open dialogue concerning the positive and negative aspects of fraternities and sororities?"

---

Ann Kennedy
English Major Jr.
"I thought it was very successful. A lot of mature statements were made and good points were taken by both sides. I'm glad that everything has been brought out in the open."

Jim Ruggiero
"I thought it wasn't bad, except for the stereotyping of the fraternities and sororities. Hopefully the dialogue opened our eyes."

Hai Rippay
Math Major Sr.
"I think that the independents came in the middle that the situation would be discussed openly. Unfortunately, fraternity and sorority members only defended their own position."

Jon Nigrine
Psych Major
"I was impressed by the level of maturity (displayed by the Greeks at the dialogues) but I wonder about those who aren't quite as mature."
Canada's Bear of Beers is here!

Down from the North Woods of Canada comes Grizzly Beer. Not just another Canadian beer, but a rare breed of brew. An authentic Canadian lager—naturally aged, so it's remarkably smooth. With a flavor no other Canadian beer can stand up to. The bear of beers is here!
BY SANDI WENDEL

Debbie Mould, a senior at Ursinus, was a neighbor of Prince Charles and Lady Di last year. Debbie spent her junior year abroad studying psychology at Richmond College in Kensington London. This program was sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Studies.

Although Richmond College has an enrollment of only 250, Debbie feels that her life became enriched last year, both by her peers, who came from all over the world, and by the education she received. Appealing most to Debbie was the humanistic style in psychology with the Europeans she received. Appealing most to her were her family therapy, and by the education she received. Appealing most to Debbie was the humanistic style in psychology with the Europeans she received. Appealing most to Debbie was the humanistic style in psychology with the Europeans she received. Appealing most to Debbie was the humanistic style in psychology with the Europeans she received.

According to Debbie, the British people are friendly, patient and economical, even though London, like any American city, is fast-paced. Debbie discovered that most of the British like and respect the United States although they see this country as wasteful.

In addition to learning a new approach to psychology, Debbie also learned that the White Cliffs of Dover really are white, that the Irish are terrific people, that the tune to "My Country 'Tis of Thee" is also the tune of "God Save the Queen" and, most of all, that she is proud she is an American.

Junior year abroad is a great opportunity, recommended by everyone who has ever participated in the program. Debbie Mould considers it an invaluable experience that has not only given her knowledge in her career field but has also helped her grow as a person.

England was home for Debbie, however she did visit other countries such as: France, Belgium, Wales, Scotland and Ireland. She stayed with families in Scotland, Wales and North Britain. These homestays taught her something: tea and biscuits are the major food of the English. The favorite of Debbie's trips was Ireland.

For someone who died in 1931, former Notre Dame football coach Knute Rockne still gets around pretty well.

One at least his bronze bust does. Over the last year the 100 pound, two-foot tall Knute Rockne bust has attended at least one student graduation party, visited the shores of Lake Michigan, and journeyed to Indianapolis recently for the Notre Dame-Purdue football game.

The bust, affectionately known around campus as "Rockne" first vanished from Notre Dame's Rockne Memorial last May 3rd.

Two weeks later, editors at the student paper, The Observer, were surprised to receive a ransom note and photograph of the campus football legend sunning at an unnamed beach.

Among other things, the note warned that Rockne would not return "until the students get their beer," apparently referring to a new student drinking policy that restricts on-campus beer consumption, explains Observer editor Bob Vonderheide.

The color picture showed the sun-glass-clad Rockne reposing in the sand, surrounded by a boom-box radio, a keg of beer, and a frisbee.

In the meantime, the empty pedestal in Rockne Memorial became too much to bear for many students and administrators. Hoping to recapture at least some of the aura of the missing Rockne, officials replaced it with a smaller replica dubbed "Rockne Junior."

Over the summer campus police, befuddled by the mystery of the missing bust, began working on leads that Rockne was hiding out somewhere in Los Angeles, recalls Notre Dame Security chief Glen Terry.

On Sept. 11, a few days after a Notre Dame-Purdue football game, Observer editors received a second anonymous note and several photographs showing Rockne in a Purdue sweatshirt, standing in front of a welcome sign to Purdue University in Lafayette, Ind.

"I went on a long road trip to see this game," the note began, "and I'm really disappointed. The football team has never scored this poorly."

The one-page, typewritten message was signed "Knute Rockne."

"We still have no idea why the notes and photos were sent to us," says Vonderheide. Rockne, it seems, isn't the first Notre Dame sculpture to take flight in the night.

"There was a similar disappearance in the 1950s involving the statue of Father Theodore Sorin — founder of the university — which was kept on display in one of the residence halls," recalls Dick Conklin, public information director and long-time Notre Dame staffer.

"The statue mysteriously disappeared one night, and later we began getting postcards with postmarks from all around the world — Paris, London, Rome — saying things like 'Having a wonderful time, wish you were here' and signed 'Father Sorin.'"

Eventually, Father Sorin was found buried in a golf course sand trap, "none the worse for wear," according to Vonderheide.

Both the Observer and The Notre Dame Monthly, the campus magazine, did stories last spring recounting the Sorin statue caper, Vonderheide says.

Rockne's bust vanished several days after the articles appeared. It finally was returned at Sept. 23rd pep rally.

"It just showed up during the rally," Vonderheide recalls, "and authorities, quick to whisked Rockne off to secure quarters."

But while everyone was celebrating Rockne's return, the worst happened.

Rockne Junior vanished.

In its place the culprits left a jack-o-lantern," because the bust was anchored to the pedestal by one rod and concrete.

Terry "thinks" the bust is off from future pranksters, but he also concedes there's really no way to stop Rockne from running off with another group determined pranksters, short removing the bust from pedestal display.

Debbie Mould views Stonehenge during her stay in England.
Faculty symposium here tomorrow

How can a small liberal arts college keep its faculty vital and enthusiastic? Is there a conflict between an emphasis on traditional academic research and superior teaching? Can a college institutionalize a successful program of faculty development? Since funds as well as energy and time are limited on the small college campus, how can the college of today assure an atmosphere of avid involvement among faculty members toward their discipline, their students, their colleagues, and their institution?

These are difficult questions. In order to begin to address them, Ursinus College will sponsor a dialogue entitled “Faculty Development in Liberal Arts Colleges: An Unfinished Agenda for the '80s” on Saturday, Nov. 3. The day-long symposium will take place in Wimmer Hall on the Ursinus campus.

Robert H. Edwards will give the morning presentation entitled “The Role of Faculty Development in the Liberal Arts College.” Edwards, president of Carleton College since 1977, formerly served as head of the Middle East and Africa Program at the Ford Foundation. The afternoon presentation, “Institutionalizing Faculty Development Programs at Liberal Arts Colleges,” will be given by Warren B. Martin, Martin’s recently published “College of Character” sparked groans and offers of advice regarding his approach to the revitalization of colleges. Other participants in the program include Peter Beidler, the Office of Institutional Advancement at Ursinus, and Margaret S. Futterman, dean of the International Education Program, Wellesley College, named “Professor of the Year” by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education; Geoffrey Marshall, deputy chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities; and William C. Nelsen, coeditor of “Effective Approaches to Faculty Development and Institutionalization” from the April-August issue of Change.

Ursinus College itself is in the midst of a three-year faculty development program funded by The Glimmede Trust Company. The program was designed to develop a faculty computer advising skills, teaching skills, and scholarship.

Anticipating the completion of the three-year program in 1985, Ursinus is increasingly aware of the many obstacles to the institutionalization of such a program, and has observed that this problem is not confined to the Ursinus campus but affects many area small, liberal arts institutions. The symposium on Nov. 3 is an attempt to draw in other voices from the academy to the Philadelphia community to discuss shared problems and points to possible solutions for the future.

H&PE offers new course

By JOSEPH F. PIRRO

Beginning next semester the Health and Physical Education Department will offer a new, advanced lifeguarding course.

It will be labeled as Lifeguarding 404, and it will be offered in conjunction with the college’s Foyer. The title of the course is “The Perfect Death.”

The first course is designed to present a CPR certificate, First-Aid certificate and an Advanced Lifesaving and Water Safety certificate.

There are few people certified to teach the course in the Eastern part of Pennsylvania. Ursinus is blessed with one of the three in Robert R. Davidson. The purpose of the course is to have students certified in lifesaving by the American Red Cross. This type of training will also be essential in order to become a lifeguard at Ursinus beginning next year.

The course will involve more conditioning than a normal lifesaving course, and will also emphasize a time-frame limit. A few of these time restrictions are as follows: the 200m free style in less than 3 minutes, the 50 yard side strokes, while carrying a 10 pound brick in less than one minute. The course will also emphasize the use of rescue equipment and quick reactions. Because of recent research, which suggest that it takes 40 seconds for a person to submerge after the drowning process begins, the course will stress the importance of using rescue equipment immediately.

Mr. Davidson hopes the course will gain much interest. He also suggests that a course for preparing instructors will begin to be offered next fall.

PWA offers free admission

Any student with a current student identification card will be admitted free of charge to the Philadelphia Museum of Art on Saturday, Nov. 3.

The event is being held to celebrate the multi-media exhibit of the highly touted, controversial artist Jonathan Borofsky, whose work will be on display until Dec. 2.

Borofsky’s exhibit is multi-dimensional and begins with the involvement of the viewer emotionally, physically, aurally and visually. It includes paintings, drawings, cut-out figures, video displays, music, and video recordings.

The exhibit includes more than 50 works created during a span of 12 years.

Also, on the same day, the museum will sponsor a public performance work by James Le Byars, at 12 noon in the East Foyer. The title of the performance is “The Perfect Death.” The artist invites audience response.

Study tours available

The classroom will be quite different for many community people and students at Harrisburg Area Community College during the mid-winter semester break. HACC will be offering four study tours in Europe, on either a credit or non-credit basis, that are open to anyone interested.

Tour programs include Andorra, the picturesque hilltop kingdom which is transferable to any institution, participation for professional development or personal enrichment, as well as Harvard’s Bok Prize, the American Institute of Arts and Letters, as well as Harvard’s Bok Prize, the American Institute of Arts and Letters, and an American Book Award nomination for distinguished science writing.

The program is free and open to the public.
By JOSEPH F. PIRRO

The Career Planning and Placement Center (CPP) has changed its location this year from Corson Hall to the Studio Cottage. However, the service that they offer has not changed, nor has its subjective importance. Jobs for soon-to-be Ursinus graduates. Dr. Cogger directs the program, and now he has the aid of Carla Rinde (Assistant Dean of Student Life), who will serve as career counselor. Other people to see for career information are Dr. Roy Dungan and Mr. Louis Kurg, both of whom teach in the education department.

The Office of Career Planning and Placement assists students in various stages of career/life planning and decision making. The CPP counselors assist students in designing their under graduate experience to insure the best possible preparation for the personal and occupational objectives they have chosen.

The service is open to all students, and alumni, though the program is not used enough. All of the Ursinus community is urged to visit the CPP office early in your college career. According to Dean Rinde most students “wait too long.” She believes that one should start as a freshman in order to make yourself as marketable as possible. Everyone is free to pick up a four year checklist plan in the office, which is a guide to the fundamental stages of each of the four years. If you begin to work with this office early, you are able to start planning for study and internships. The more time you spend with the CPP the better you can look when you are ready to apply.

However, according to Dean Rinde, most seniors do not start until December of their senior years. This is too late. So in an effort to correct this and assist students, Dr. Cogger and Dr. Rinde made an appeal to the freshmen class at orientation. A form was handed out which would be returned if the student was interested in further information about CPP. About 250 forms were returned, and each of Dean Rinde’s Wednesday evening presentations included 12 different freshman in their career plans.

The CPP counselors are happy to provide career planning and assisting with students in personal individual sessions. These discussions range from the major career planning and assistance to actual job search.

Another service provided by the center is the Alumni Career Counseling Group (ACCG), which is basically a listing of over 200 alumni and their current employers and positions. The alumni offer visits and the larger contacts for current students. Other colleges have contacted Ursinus, seeking help in starting similar programs.

Other services provided by CPP are information about job hunting techniques, resume writing, and interviewing strategies. As Dean Rinde said, “It is easier to help an qualified person, but those who know how to search that are awarded with jobs.”

Each semester several programs are presented by the CPP office which focus on topics related to career planning. So far this year the two seminars have been attended by about 150 students. In addition, 30 new seminars are being given this year. Upcoming ones are in resumes, internships and job search strategies.

The majority of the complaints that have been placed against the CPP are in their recruiting problems through many recruiters from the working world and graduate and professional schools do come out to meet Ursinus students. Many companies are simply too big to come to a small, liberal arts college. In addition, the competition in the recruiting area is tremendous. As Dean Rinde expressed, “Recruiting is not our fault. We make all attempts possible to get companies to come to Ursinus, but many companies reject us.” The bigger companies have people coming to them, so why should they recruit.

However, a list of these kinds of corporations has just been given to the faculty to see if any connections can be made. Recently, Bloomberg’s Fidelity Bank and JVB have changed their minds.

Another complaint from the seniors is that the whole CPP program is not working. They want jobs. Dean Rinde emphasizes that the program is “not a placement service.” They only help people have the necessary experience to aid a dedicated senior easily can find results if they put the time in.

The CPP also puts out several newsletters which carry announcements of career seminars, graduate school test dates, job opportunities, and employment trends. The one newsletter is called “Job Flash” and comes out very few weeks. The other is entitled “Exploring” and comes out every month.

Therefore the suggestion is that if you are dedicated you can find great results in the Career Planning and Placement Office. Chuck Dougherty, a second semester Economics major, is one person who has nothing but praise for the program. “They want to help students,” he said, “they want to help me.” He believes that the student must put the effort in by himself. Charlie believes that the office has finally pointed people who want to see the Ursinus student succeed. He has been stopping down at the Studio Cottage since the beginning of the semester. “You never know what possibilities can occur,” he said. Chuck Dougherty suggests that you need to make use of your opportunities, because this is why we are at college. Recently, he was assisted by Dr. Cogger who suggested that he use the Alumni Directory. Charlie called a 1965 graduate that day, and now he is coming up on Homecoming to talk about his job experiences. Perhaps this will lead to something positive.

Thus, the only way to know what the future offers do go down and find out what kind of jobs are available, and their subdivisions. There are plenty of opportunities and a much literature which can only broaden the students prospective down at the center. The setup is now well organized in the Studio Cottage. The service has been expanded and improved. However, as Dean Rinde says, it is not used enough.

Debaters shine

BY TED GALENA

“Ursinus College is the East Coast’s best kept secret.” This saying no longer applies to the Speech and Debate Team. At the West Chester State University Speech and Debate Tournament, Ursinus gained recognition.

Sixteen schools, including Bloomsburg, Shippensburg, La., and the University of Pennsylvania participated in this two day event. The tournament was divided into two separate parts: individual speech events were divided into many debates. Ursinus took third in the debates as a result of Bill Foley’s efforts. In the absence of his partner, Bill competed alone against another two man teams.

The team president Jerry Frazier and the freshman class president Lynne Edwards each ranked second out of 40 competitors on the individual impromptu event. The other three team members who attended the tournament were Kerri Schulte, David Redstone and Jon Verlin.

This tournament was the first time that the Ursinus team participated in a speech contest and the first time in five years they partook in a debate. The 15 member team is all comprised of seniors, the first time in five years they have had a senior. They were comprised of the freshmen and upperclassmen. According to team president Frazier, “A lot of talent is needed to make a good team. The first places are on their way.” The speech and debate team has a bright future, if you would like to join then please contact team president Jerry Frazier or team adviser Dr. Jeannie Crabroff.
Bears upset national power

By DOUG NEVINS

The running Bears of Ursinus shocked the Middle Atlantic Conference as they upset nationally ranked and previously unbeaten Susquehanna, 29-28, in cross country action over the weekend. The quad meet also saw the Grizzlies easily outrun Albright and Moravian to finish their MAC dual meet season with a perfect slate.

"That was a great win," noted Coach Dave Symonds. "Everybody kept telling us how Susquehanna was by far the best team in the MAC and that we didn't have a chance, but I knew we had the talent to surprise some people, and today we showed it. Next week should be a dog fight." The 'next week' Coach Symonds was referring to is tomorrow's MAC championship meet at Lebanon Valley. Twenty three schools are entered and the favorites are Susquehanna, Haverford and Ursinus.

For the Bears to win they'll need some exceptional performances. The front-running trio of Al Fertig, Doug Nevins and Mike Griffin has been as good as any in the conference and will have to be near the lead once again tomorrow. Tom Kerahner might just be the top fourth man in the MAC and has to produce his usual gritty race. The key fifth scorer should be either Jim Harle or John Gelhard. First year scorer Harry has been getting faster each week, while the much talented Gelhard has been beset with injuries all year, but still has the capabilities to crank one out.

Fourth year varsity runner Keith Kerr will be looking to duplicate his fine showing from last year's meet.

It isn't too wise to underestimate these seven runners. The Bearpack faces a tough battle tomorrow, but they're hungry for an MAC championship. Susquehanna learned that the hard way.

Soccer team to visit China

By JOSEPH F. PIRRO

"Ursinus Who? - Salem State No. 1." This was the greeting screamed on a bedsheet banner that greeted Ursinus' soccer team last year when it took the field in the semifinals of the ECAC/Eastern College Athletic Conference Tournament. On that day the Bears upset Salem State, 1-0, and went on to win the ECAC title. Now that same banner hangs in Ursinus' locker room as a symbol of victory.

The Grizzly Bears have received a tentative invitation from the People's Republic of China to play a series of four or five games over a 10-day period in August of 1985. They will be the first American collegiate team and just the fifth American soccer team to compete in China.

The expected trip will not be officially approved by the People's Republic government until a few weeks before the actual event. However, a tentative invitation is a go-ahead to begin planning. Now the Bears wait only for a seal of final approval.

In 1982 a high school all-star team hailing from Washington, D.C. became the first American soccer team to compete in Communist China. This team was followed by the U.S. Junior Olympic team (1983), the U.S. Olympic team (1984) and Wyoming Seminary, which is a high school in the Wilkes-Barre area (1984). These four teams played before large crowds in some of China's largest cities. China has been trying to make better athletic contracts with the West. All of their visiting teams have received massive media coverage, and have been mobbed by autograph hunters. The Ursinus soccer players can expect much of the same. They will also meet with government officials and attend large banquets.

Ursinus's team entered the situation three months ago when Walt Manning, the Bears' coach, was talking to a friend in the State Department, who put him in touch with Tom Furth. "My friend told me that the Chinese were looking for a collegiate team to visit," Manning, a former Temple all-American, now plans to take 16 present players and six incoming freshmen. The entire party will probably mount to about 30.

Furth, who is currently an attorney based in Ohio, will help to make a majority of the arrangements and will accompany the team in China. He has become a trusted friend of the Chinese over the past three years. With these resources they need a rapport with the West and one way to do that is through athletic diplomacy," he noted. "They are very conscious of their athletic programs and feel that by showing strength in those areas it will carry over to political, economic and social arenas as well. That's one reason they took part in the Olympics for the first time in 36 years in Los Angeles." One reason that Furth is excited about Ursinus' trip is because, "They are treating us as much more than just a soccer trip. Ursinus is well aware of the social and cultural significance. They will make excellent ambassadors for the United States. I know this will be a rewarding trip for all involved." Last year the soccer team won its first ECAC title, had its best season in years (14-3), and most of the 16 Scorers that were top marks for the most goals (55), fewest goals allowed (25), most shutouts (6) and longest winning streak (7). This year the Bears were 14-3 as of Oct. 27.

Coach Manning is overjoyed to be a part of this program. "Ursinus is one of few soccer teams in this country made up of just Americans," he said. "That's almost unheard of. I'm sure that's one reason for our appeal." Another reason for this opportunity is the close ties for Far Eastern cultures will carry over to the West and that we will be a part of this program.

"The State Department says it should not be a problem since many large corporations like to help out," he noted. "But we will be planning some things to raise funds." Manning does regret the fact that he will be going as a coach and not as a player. "We have students first and soccer players second here."

Jamie Moyer is the one senior on the team this year who will not be able to go. "Sure I'm disappointed about not being able to go," Moyer said. "It's just a case of bad timing on my part I guess. I'm sure if I wanted to go, they would find a spot for me, but I'll probably be out looking for a job then."

The soccer players will also receive academic credit on their 10-day journey. Dr. Hugh H. Clark, assistant professor of history and a distinguished expert in Far Eastern cultures will be the faculty adviser and coordinator of a study program. He will teach a course in "Chinese History and Society," which will have all the players reading a book and preparing papers before the trip.

"I'm looking forward to seeing a culture seldom seen by westerners," Manning admitted. "I'm reading some books now and hope to learn some Chinese so I can speak to them." Mike O'Malley, a sophomore player, said, "I think it will be a great experience, and I just hope that I will be able to make the trip." Tom Brown, a sophomore goal keeper, expressed his reactions, "I'm really looking forward to it, and I hope the egg rolls are good."

According to present plans, the Bears are expected to play in Beijing (formerly Peking), which is near the Great Wall, the Forbidden City, and the Ming Tombs, and in Shanghai.

Now, more than ever, Ursinus College is proving itself to be a great establishment. As members of this community, we must not only be proud of our soccer team, but we must also realize the social and political importance of this trip. Ursinus will be representing the United States, and if things go as planned, this college could begin to lay down ties with the Far East that are unmatched. This will prove to be one of the greatest events to have taken place at Ursinus. It will promote the school to even greater heights on a national and international level.

Diaphragms stop Delta Pi in football

By JOHN O'DONNELL

The 1984 Intramural football season has finally come to a climactic close. This year's league, run by Commissioner Steve Boccardo, was one of the most balanced in the history of Ursinus College. The 1984 season was the first time no team finished undefeated since 1949.

Semi-final playoff action took place last week. The first game pitted Delta Pi against a physical Kane Mutiny squad. Using a strong ground game the Delta silenced the Mutineers out of sea by edging out a 24-20 victory. In other semi-final action, the Diaphragms led by Steve Boccardo edged out Junk in a classic defensive struggle 16-8. The winning tally came on a second half pass from Boccardo to senior John Hechtley. The championship game featured hard running Delta Pi against the Diaphragms.
Soccer wins two, record at 14-3

By KENNY BULL

Ursinus College beat Swarthmore and Widener this past week to up their record to 14-3. Last Tuesday, Ursinus needed a win against Swarthmore to keep its hopes alive for a Division championship. It seemed bad for the U.C. boosters because at halftime the score was 1-0, Swarthmore, but the second half was totally dominated by Ursinus.

Coach Manning was heard saying "98% of the play was ours (Ursinus), 2% was theirs. Ackerman scored six goals with an assist by Steven Coulter on the second goal. Ursinus' hopes for a division title remained alive but they still had a tough, scrappy Widener to defeat. Saturday, Oct. 27, Widener challenged Ursinus.

After a 1-0 halftime score in favor of Ursinus, on a goal by Kenny Bull from Jeff Jones, Ursinus was wondering why they weren't killing their opponent. The second half for Ursinus was even more surprising as Widener suddenly scored two unanswered goals. But this was enough to wake up Ursinus. Immediately after the goal, John Ackerman scored right off the tap. This began a series of four goals in 15 minutes. Ken Bull scored the next goal from a "Picture Perfect" pass from Steve Popescu, making the score, 3-2. After plenty of hustle by Lester Robbins, Pete Kushinsky crossed in a ball from John Ackerman and Ackerman put in his 20th goal of the season. The final goal was scored by Steve Popescu on a penalty kick. This penalty was created by the hustle of Don "Pargo" Decou which made the final score 5-2.

The team's day was dismal however, since Swarthmore was defeated by Haverford College. This made Haverford division champions and Ursinus was disappointed of any chance to become MAC contenders. Ursinus plays Moravian Saturday at 11 a.m. This game they have a slight chance for an NCAA bid and an excellent chance to strive for two in the ECAA championships.

SOCCER STATS: John Ackerman has 18 goals and 8 assists in MAC play...The team has totaled 47 goals while giving up only 19...Record is now 14-3.
The Grizzly

Magic show tonight

The house lights dim. Enters Kramer, master of illusion, supreme showman. A wave of his hand and a beautiful woman emerges from an empty box, a pair of gloves becomes a dove, a flame turns into a drone. Without pause and with grand flourish, there are more transformations: a flower pot to a bush, a balloon to birds, water from an empty basket in less than seven minutes, Kramer has produced more magic than sometimes composes an entire act. And, of course, there is much more to come.

Kramer and Company are considered by their peers to be among America’s top illusionists; they’ve been aptly described as magician’s magicians. Over the past five years, Kramer and Company have toured 27 states; in the past year alone, their fascinating act has been presented over 290 times throughout the country. They have appeared with performers such as Willie Niles, Oak Ridge Boys, Frank Sinatra, Della Reese, Glen Campbell, Rick Springfield, Statler Bros., the Guess Who, Robert Klein, Roy Clark, Anthony Newley, Loretta Swit, Box Car Willie, Johnny Cash, Tammy Wynette, Barbara Mandrell, Brenda Lee, Donald O’Connor, Kresekini and many national television shows, such as The Tonight Show, David Frost, Mike Douglas. At the present time a television special “Circus Vegas” on HBO with Anthony Newley and Loretta Swit.

What makes Kramer and Company so impressive? At the heart of the show is Bob Kramer, a bald, rotund wizard whose career in magic began about 20 years ago when he saw the great Harry Blackstone perform. From simple card tricks, to full-size illusions, to his own chain of magic shops, Kramer’s repertoire has grown to include his expertise, mastermind, Bob Fath and seventy-thousand dollars in magical effects, many of his own design.

The force of the show’s free-flowing drama is Kramer’s philosophy that illusion is a spell to be woven, a cohesive and original design, which is more than a bag of unrelated tricks. Comprised of a dozen grand illusions with chilling names like “The Levitation,” “The Sword Chamber,” and “The Cremation,” along with scores of smaller mysteries, the Kramer show prompts gasp after gasp of astonishment.

Without thought, without decision, completely transfixed, you hold your breath in suspense. And once the magic ends, you blind, release a pent-up sigh, and sense that you, too, are subject to Kramer’s magic spell.

O’Chi’s Fiftieth

Over the weekend, Omega Chi celebrated its 50th anniversary. To mark the occasion, the sorority had a reunion and invited back every pledge class for a buffet luncheon held in the Union.

The reunion had been in the planning stages since the end of last year. Invitations were sent to every class back to 1934 and the response was wonderful. Jessie Demppery ’36 and Virginia Beck Rahm ’38 were the oldest alumni to attend. They were surprised at how much melding had changed since their hey day at Ursinus.

The buffet included deli trays, vegetable trays and punch. After lunch the current pledge class, the “95th Fiftieth” performed for the guests. Pledges delivered Maureen O’Connell and Sally Scallon received roses from their class before the performance began but the highlight was Dawn Goodwin performing her Jammers’ Looney.

Afterwards everyone returned to Duryea to continue the party. Everyone had a great time. Thanks go everyone who helped to make O’Chi’s 50th Reunion a success. Congratulations and here’s to the next 50 years of Omega Chi.

Limerick

(Continued from Page 1)

premise that PECO has been misinforming the public, and, therefore, the public needs to be enlightened. As a result, the public is bombarded with literature presenting one or the other of two dramatically opposed views. For those who have yet to draw conclusions about the economics, safety, and necessity of Limerick. The education programs are geared to the opponents of nuclear power can be a great source of confusion.

The utilities, and other groups in the industry, have tried to offer a commercial use of nuclear power more widespread have not been telling the public all there is to know, according to Liz Norris, coordinator of the Phoenixville Area Citizen’s Committee.

One hundred seventy nine nuclear power plants worldwide have been built for 1646 plant years (the number of plant times the number of years each has operated), according to the Nuclear Energy Awareness (CEA). CEA claims that “no employee or member of the public has ever been seriously injured from any sort of radiation accident at a commercial nuclear power plant.”

Norris disputes that claim. She says an employee of the Enrico Fermi plant in Lagoona Beach, Mich., was involved in a strange occurrence that killed him. He was actually injured, Norris said, that he had to be buried in three different graves.

The Edison Electric Institute (EEI) claims that in 1979, accident at Three Miles Island exposed the local public to “a small fraction of one percent of the amount of radiation that people living in Harrisburg, receive year-round from natural resources.” The amount of exposure was well below federal standards.

But Dr. John Lupas, a Potterstown physician, told the PECO audience that these figures are inaccurate. People actually received 10 times the amount of radiation that was originally thought.

Find a friend and come to Founders’ Day convocation at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 4 in Bomberger Hall. Gap for the week is filled, but the last three highly of: the entire convocation is dedicated to the central place of the faculty in the life of Ursinus. The faculty includes: G. Seibert Pancost, Professor of Political Science Emeritus. Dr. Pancost, who retired last spring, will deliver a honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

College professors suffer from the criticism that they function in an ivory tower. Whether the criticism is justified or not, it does not apply to Dr. Pancost. He tried to connect the theory in the textbook in the minds of students with the practice of the working system. It was that motive that led him to run for Mayor of Collegeville and later, to seek election to the Pennsylvania General Assembly. He served in Harrisburg for 14 years. He never stopped teaching throughout that period and received his faculty development grant.

How hard it must be for a young adult to understand how completely Dr. Pancost’s career exemplifies the philosophy that illusion is a spell to an institution. Imagine, if you can, that you have taught at Ursinus College more than thirty-three years. That is how many years Dr. Pancost has taught here. What makes him exemplary is that, even in retirement, he still is adding to his knowledge of political science. It is such intellectual vitality that marks the liberally educated person.

Come to the convocation and hear the man who heads up the company that granted Ursinus a half-million dollars for the professional development of our faculty. Mr. Robert T. Norris, President of the Glenmede Trust Company. His company administers the Mabel Pew Myrin Trust Commission. Mr. Norris has received his faculty development grant.

Your education is not just a matter of books and classrooms. It is a matter of your experiences that widen your perspectives. Founders’ Day is one of them. Come to Bomberger Hall and see Ursinus from a sharply different angle. Then join us for great refreshments at a reception after the convocation.

Come Splash: at the Pool Party

Friday, November 9th
p.m. - 2 a.m.

Helfficher Pool - Watch For Details

Sponsored by the Union Program Board

O’CHI’S 50TH ANNIVERSARY MEMO

November 2, 1984

Find a friend and come to Founders’ Day convocation at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 4 in Bomberger Hall. Gap for the week is filled, but the last three highly of: the entire convocation is dedicated to the central place of the faculty in the life of Ursinus. The faculty includes: G. Seibert Pancost, Professor of Political Science Emeritus. Dr. Pancost, who retired last spring, will deliver a honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

College professors suffer from the criticism that they function in an ivory tower. Whether the criticism is justified or not, it does not apply to Dr. Pancost. He tried to connect the theory in the textbook in the minds of students with the practice of the working system. It was that motive that led him to run for Mayor of Collegeville and later, to seek election to the Pennsylvania General Assembly. He served in Harrisburg for 14 years. He never stopped teaching throughout that period and received his faculty development grant.

How hard it must be for a young adult to understand how completely Dr. Pancost’s career exemplifies the philosophy that illusion is a spell to an institution. Imagine, if you can, that you have taught at Ursinus College more than thirty-three years. That is how many years Dr. Pancost has taught here. What makes him exemplary is that, even in retirement, he still is adding to his knowledge of political science. It is such intellectual vitality that marks the liberally educated person.

Come to the convocation and hear the man who heads up the company that granted Ursinus a half-million dollars for the professional development of our faculty. Mr. Robert T. Norris, President of the Glenmede Trust Company. His company administers the Mabel Pew Myrin Trust Commission. Mr. Norris has received his faculty development grant.

Your education is not just a matter of books and classrooms. It is a matter of your experiences that widen your perspectives. Founders’ Day is one of them. Come to Bomberger Hall and see Ursinus from a sharply different angle. Then join us for great refreshments at a reception after the convocation.
FRIDAY
Nov. 2
4:30 p.m. Magic Workshop. Parent's Lounge. Come learn the secrets of magic tricks!
Pro-Theater presents: "A Thürber Carnival," Nov. 1, 2, and 3 in Ritter Center. The play consists of a selection of stories and drawings by leading humorist James Thurber. Don't miss the production. PLAN NOW TO ATTEND!

SATURDAY
Nov. 3
7:30 p.m. Movie: Brian's Song. Wismer Auditorium
Midnight, Movie: Romantic Comedy, Union Lounge

SUNDAY
Nov. 4
7:30 p.m. Movie: Brian's Song. Wismer Auditorium
9 p.m. Movie: Romantic Comedy, Union Lounge

Registration
A list of students who have not completed their registration, because of conflict or because of closed courses, will be available at the Registrar's Office by 8 a.m. of the second day of registration for that class. Lists will also be posted in Wismer and Pfahler Halls.

Class of 1986 (Juniors)
Nov. 5, 6 — Students present course of study sheet to Registrar's Office. Course of study sheets will be processed in a random order at 12 noon. Course of study sheets received after 12 noon will be processed on a first come first served basis.

Class of 1987 (Sophomores)
Nov. 7-9 — Students present course of study sheet to Registrar's Office. Course of study sheets will be processed in a random order at 12 noon. Course of study sheets received after 12 noon will be processed on a first come first served basis.

Help wanted: Port and spring break vacations for major commissions, FREE collegiate travel company. High commissions, FREE TRIPS! Please necessary. Send applications to: Joe Schiarelli, Campus Vocations, 26 Courts St., Brooklyn, N.Y. 11242.

LOST: Denim jacket at last Ritter party. If found, please return to Omwake 3.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE

ACROSS
1 Also
2 Equally
3 Babylonian hero
4 Swatted
5 Mediterranean vessels
6 Near
7 Chore
8 Mother of Apollo
9 Fish eggs
10 Aroma
11 Revised, abbr.
12 Kind of fabric
13 Weight of linen
14 Printed linen
15 Medal awarded by Zeus
16 Anger
17 Slender fijnal
18 Italy. abbr.
19 Mexico
20 Female sheep
21 Leave out
22 Plunge
23 Way out
24 Nerve network
25 Current
26 Cry of owl
27 Temp
28 Therefore
29 Indicate
30 Tasteful
31 Owner of 55
32 Mountain
33 Almond
34 Potassium
35 Iberian
to 36 Neat
37 Tasteful
38 airing 33
39 Naps
40 Fulfill
41 Tax
42 Partner
43 Greek letter
44 Atmospheric conditions
45 Rupee, abbr.
46 Blood
47 Hindu cymbals
48 Allowance for waste
49 Whisker
50 Note of scale
51 Come back
52 Conquered
53 Doctrine
54 French article
55 A month
56 Quark
57 Heaven
58 Left
59 Right
60 Balcony
61 Eyelash
62 Baby
63 Hand
64 Name for Athena
65 Fasting food
66 United Feature Syndicate

DOWNS
1 Former Russian ruler
2 Mr. Preminger
3 Either's partner
4 Performer
5 Slides
6 Most remote
7 Symbol for tellurium
8 Competent
9 Wants
10 Perform
11 As above
12 Indicate
13 Middle
14 I'm a bird
15 A calf
16 A Spanish word
17 A month
18 A month
19 An A-Bolt
20 Norway
21 Japan
22 Greece
23 Russia
24 Canada
25 Austria
26 Sweden
27 Germany
28 Ireland
29 Greece
30 Italy
31 Spain
32 Russia
33 Canada
34 Norway
35 Sweden
36 Greece
37 Russia
38 Austria
39 Canada
40 Norway
41 Sweden
42 Greece
43 Italy
44 Germany
45 Austria
46 Holland
47 Spain
48 Ireland
49 Italy

© 1984 United Feature Syndicate

Peking Chinese Restaurant
M mandarin, Szechuan, Shanghai & Cantonese
Collegeville Shopping Center
489-2959

Take Out Service Special Lunch $2.95 Dinner Special $6.95

MONDAY
Nov. 5
7 p.m. College Bowl, Union Lounge
9 p.m. Movie: Sixteen Candles, Union Lounge

TUESDAY
Tuesday, Nov. 6
7 p.m. Movie: Sixteen Candles, Union Lounge
1 p.m. Election Results, Big Screen TV, Union Lounge

WEDNESDAY
Wednesday & Thursday
9 p.m. Movie: Sixteen Candles, Union Lounge
Nov. 7, Why Reagan was re-elected (Fitzpatrick)

DROP/ADD FEES
Seniors: Fee for all drop/adds after 11/19, $5.
Freshmen: Fee for all drop/adds after 11/14, $5.

PLEASE NOTE: There is no grace period for drop/adds at the beginning of the semester.