Board approves $825 increase in annual tuition, room and board

Financial aid budget to increase, as well

By ROSE WUENSCHEL

The Board of Directors of Ursinus set the tuition rate for 1985-86 at $6,550 and the room and board charge at $3,000 in their last meeting. It is an increase of $825 from the 1984-85 rates.

In a published report of the meeting, President Richter said that the charges at Ursinus are traditionally lower than at most Pennsylvania independent colleges of comparable quality. He established Dickinson, Muhlenberg, Gettysburg and Franklin and Marshall as comparable colleges. He does not expect the increases to affect that relative position next year.

The budget for student financial aid will be increased to assist students with demonstrated need to attend Ursinus. Richter said that it will be difficult to maintain the college's level of Federal support next year because of expected cuts in education on the federal level.

When asked if he expected the administration to try to cut student aid, Garvin Hudgins, communications director of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, "There will be very little growth in (the programs), but we hope to have support from Congress."

Since 1982, Congress repeatedly has rebuffed presidential requests for further drastic cuts in aid programs, and the recent elections did not alter Congress's makeup substantially.

"We want to discourage people from running to the feds first off for loans," he continues. In sum, "I'd estimate the next four years will be like the past four years."

"We have added to our expenses in a number of areas," Richter said, "to assure the quality that families and students expect of an excellent college. We plan to continue in this direction. The new rates will enable Ursinus to stay on a deliberate course of further improvement in academic program and in support services."

Specific programs that Richter cited were computers, student counseling and the maintenance of the playing fields.

The new rates also will accommodate increases in operating cost expected from inflation. The board is going by the predictions of a 4 percent increase in inflation for the next year.

"There has been a loss of grants, 25 percent since 1980, and that's with Congress rejecting most of Reagan's proposals," says Kathy Oser, US Student Association's lobbyist.

"The continued improvement of faculty salaries remains a top priority," according to Richter. Currently the salaries of Ursinus faculty are much lower in comparison to comparable colleges. Richter said that the college has been working to close that gap in the past few years. "We hope to move from the 70th percentile to the 80th in the National average by 1987-88." Richter hopes that by moving toward this target Ursinus will continue to retain, attract and motivate its faculty.

In his annual report to the Board, Richter spoke optimistically about the prospects for the college. "Many of us," he said, "feel that the improvements of the past few weeks are but a staging ground for what the college can aspire to be in the years before us. We seem prepared to take a large step closer to the ideal of excellent that has long motivated Ursinus."

Glick summons students

Wood responds to Roving Reporter

By JOSEPH F. PIRO

In the Nov. 16 issue of The Grizzly, the Roving Reporter asked the question, "If there was one way in which you could improve Wismser, what would it be?" Four of the students' comments were printed, and shortly afterwards Tom Glick, who is managing director of Wimser Dining Hall, sent out four letters requesting appointments to meet with these students.

Mr. Glick said he is not out to reprimand these students for expressing their views, but only wanted to talk with them. The reason for sending out letters to the individuals also kept standard operating procedures in tact. He treated the four responses as if they were comments on those familiar green comment cards found on the Wimser dining tables. When Mr. Glick receives these cards, he sends a letter to the person who signed the card and asks to talk one on one with the author. Tom Glick believes, "If someone takes the time to make or write a comment, then he should come in and talk about it." If a person is given this chance, Glick said, he should take it seriously and use it to an advantage.

Mr. Glick also believes that the question in the Roving Reporter itself was not taken seriously. He is glad that the issue was addressed, but he wishes that there were more good points offered. Glick thought Tom Kershner's statements, expressing the need for more varieties of food and that Wimser is not a zoo, were very valid. The kitchen workers were reported to be laughing at such comments as "Fire the chef," by Carrie Rathburn. Mr. Glick said that would be the first person to fire the chef if this was the answer to the problem, but it is not.

The real problem is in communicating with the students. Mr. Glick believes that the people at Wimser are "perceived as being simple, but food service is much more of an art or science." There are large amounts of paper work that must be done everyday to insure the delivery of fresh products, and that everything runs smoothly. Glick said that students are not always realistic in their requests. Many ask for steak and lobster, but this is as impossible as having "topless waitresses" as Mike Pascali suggested in the Roving Reporter.

There is a Dining Hall Committee which few people on campus are aware of. It is headed by Dean Whalley. The committee is made up of administrators, supervisors of the Wood Food Co. and students. The committee has addressed problems with busing and menu selection and other concerns aired by the students.

This committee hopes to promote a "recipe from home" contest next semester, whereby one entry will be chosen and used as a regular Wimser food item.

Mr. Glick said that he and his staff are always open for comments. As he expressed, "The food service business is such a difficult profession, because every one is an expert on food, since they have been fed from day one."
The Grizzly was founded in 1978, replacing the previous campus newspaper, The Ursinus Weekly. It is published by students ten weeks each semester. The Grizzly is edited entirely by students and the views expressed in the paper are not necessarily those held by the administration, faculty, or a consensus of the student body. The staff of The Grizzly invites opinions from the college community and will publish them as time and space permit.

GUIDE TO URSINUS VOCABULARY
In any situation where a group of people are working together on a specialized task, there develops among the group a specialized vocabulary. In highly technical areas such as engineering or medicine, a system of nomenclature is necessary. Surely a neurosurgeon or nuclear physicist could not perform his or her job without a lexicon longer than the Yellow Brick Road. But such vocabularies have developed in many of the more commonplace occupations as well, where they are not so essential.

Chefs and short order cooks say they are "86" on certain menu items. "Brickees" build walls of bricks and "mud." And we have the astronauts to thank for making "all systems go." To those on the inside such phrases become conventional, but to outsiders they are often impossible to decipher. We all know to what lengths truck drivers have gone to keep "smokies" and "local yokels" out of their C.B. conversations.

The students of Ursinus have established a similar situation. Grouped together to acquire an education, they have responded with a glossary I.K. Funk would have been proud of. Listed below in no particular order are what I found to be the ten most prevalent "Ursinisms" on campus.
1) the U — Starting off with an easy one, what else? It's the College Union, home of the famous Roids machine.
2) dweeb — Come on now, we've all seen one of these — the calculator in one hand, stack of books in the other, sixteen pencils and an electron microscope in the back pocket. This word initially referred to someone who constantly studies, but since no one constantly studies, it refers to anyone with the intent to study.
3) brar — Another campus landmark, the library, heavily (See YESTERYEAR, P4)

Government report may initiate college reform

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE
WASHINGTON — Student and college officials nationwide think a newly-released government report on higher education probably has begun a long reform period for the nation's colleges, and could eventually make students go to school longer and take more liberal arts courses to get a degree.

While most sources agree the report has brought much-needed attention to colleges, they're more concerned about the thoroughness and reliability of the study itself.

The new study, together with others due to be released in the next two years, signal that "this will be an important decade for the re-assignment of higher education and for setting new goals," says Ernest Boyer, President of the Carnegie Foundation, and author of last year's highly-acclaimed study, "High Schools," which made secondary education a major political issue.

"We hope the report will generate as much interest in higher education — both its strengths and weaknesses — as the 'Nation At Risk' report on secondary education did for junior high and high schools last year," says Bill Kroger, spokesman for the American Council on Education (ACE). "Although we don't expect the new report to draw the same kind of attention for colleges that was seen last year for high schools, you certainly could look at it as the announcing of higher education as a political issue," agrees Cliff Adelman, spokesman for the Department of Education's National Institute on Education (NIE), which sponsored the new study.

The report, "Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education," was prepared by a seven-member panel of higher education experts at the behest of U.S. Education Secretary Terrel Bell.

Comparing colleges' problems to a mild case of the flu, Bell says the report shows that "American higher education has the sniffles," adding "it might come down with a bad cold or even pneumonia if we don't do something about it."

"I don't know how a case of the sniffles compares to a rising tide," jokes Boyer, referring to Bell's 1983 characterization of public education as "a rising tide of mediocrity."

"But I guess he means the problems in higher education aren't as bad as in the public schools," Boyer adds.

The NIE report charges American colleges are plagued by problems. For example, faculty salaries are so low that "(the teaching profession itself has become less attractive to our brightest students," the report says.

In addition, "increasing numbers of students are majoring in narrow specialties" in which the programs are "isolated from one another." Thus, "many students end up with fragmented and limited knowledge."

The panelists want all students to take at least two years of liberal arts courses — even if it means extending the length of time, in the past few years," she says. "So they're better preparing themselves to look for jobs."
DeLorean to join lecture circuit

College Press Service
NEW YORK — Former auto industry magnate John DeLorean is planning to join the campus lecture circuit. He's currently freighting cocaine to raise money to bail out his foundering DeLorean Motor Company.

Supporters insist he was set up and framed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Now DeLorean is booked tentatively to give seven campus lecture in a few months. He's planning to join the campus lecture circuit soon. DeLorean is planning to join the campus lecture circuit soon.

DeLorean gained auto industry prominence in the mid-sixties as the creator of GM’s Pontiac Firebird, and later established his ill-fated auto company in Ireland. Newman expects good student and community response to DeLorean.

There are lots of people who want to come see the famous, he contends. “People are very interested in how he got into his situation with the FBI.”

DeLorean has told his agent the lecture will detail the FBI’s surveillance of 90,000 business people, Newman says.

Greater Talent’s Stankey confirms that DeLorean’s “corporate espionage” topic covers government investigation of private business.

“Government scrutiny of foreign and U.S. companies is a brand new thing,” he adds. “It elicits a lot of interest.”

DeLorean’s drawing power depends on “a certain mystique, and the public’s fascination with people in the public eye.”

Messiah

The Ursinus College Choir will present its annual Christmas Festival "Messiah" on Saturday, Dec. 8 at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday, Dec. 9 at 3 p.m. in Bomberger Hall on the college campus. These performances will continue a 47-year-old tradition at the college.

The Ursinus College Choir, an a cappella group consisting of Ursinus students and faculty as well as many area residents, is conducted by John French, chairperson of the music department.

This year’s guest soloists are Edwina Dunkle, soprano; Harriet Harris, alto; Jeremy Slavin, tenor, and Gregory Cantwell, bass.

The performance of the “Messiah” has become a featured holiday event in the Collegeville area. This year for the first time, the college will sponsor a second performance on Sunday afternoon. Since seating is limited, interested persons should order tickets before Dec. 3. Tickets are $7 and are available by sending a check or money order, made payable to Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa. 19425.

Springs jobs

There will be a limited number of jobs available in the library for the Spring semester. You must be able to work a minimum of five hours a week (including mornings — 8 a.m. — evenings and weekends). Please see Miss Tuscano at the Circulation Desk for an application. Deadline to apply is Dec. 1.

Shyness workshop

The Institute for Rational- Emotive Therapy, Philadelphia, will sponsor two workshops during December.

On Dec. 7, a workshop on overcoming shyness and maximizing social skills will be held at the Ethical Society of Philadelphia, 1900 Rittenhouse Square, from 8 to 10 p.m.

The workshop is designed to help participants develop social skills by practicing taking risks in social situations. The cost is $10. For further information, or to make reservations, call 545-7071.

A day long workshop on Dec. 9 will focus on a cognitive/behavioral analysis of depression. The several types of depression and intervention techniques will be discussed.

The workshop will be held at Thomas Jefferson University, 1020 Locust Street, Philadelphia. The cost is $65. For more information, or to make reservations call Karen Bizzo, 545-7000.

Ice fishing

An ice fishing clinic, a free education clinic on the basic techniques of ice fishing, will be held at Struble Lake, Honey Brook Township on Saturday, Jan. 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. rain or shine.

The clinic is co-sponsored by the PA Fish Commission and Chester County Parks and Recreation Department. Vendors will display fishing equipment and clothing, and hot refreshments will be served. For more information call 431-6415.

Booters finish great season

By KENNY BULL

Ursinus College ended its 1984 soccer season on Sunday, Nov. 18 with a loss to Clark University. Ursinus bowed 3-1. After a spectacular showing against Haverford College who they defeated 2-1 and William Patterson who they defeated 3-1, Ursinus was probably participating a championship a little too early. They forget about Clark. The only goal scored in the game against Clark was scored by Steve Popescu from a pass by Kenny Bull. This goal came late in the second half. Although it seemed like Ursinus was dominating it was too late. Clark already had scored three goals. Their first goal was scored with 40 seconds left in the first half. Their second goal was scored within two minutes of the second half. These two goals dented Ursinus’ hopes for victory.

Mers and vers attend Bloomsburg invitational

By SCOTT WILLIS

Last weekend the Fighting Ursini made their annual pilgrimage to Bloomsburg University for the fourth annual Bloomsburg invitational relay carnival.

The Ursini went in with visions of sugarplums (and meet records) dancing in their heads. The relay carnival pitted the Ursini against the likes of Kutztown University, West Chester University, Lycoming College, Kings College and of course, Bloomsburg University. The Ursini had hopes of felling some of the state university swimming powers. And while the scoreboard showed the Ursini in fourth place (by two points) they actually did much better than this. The Ursini went into Bloomsburg with a big shadow looming ominously over their heads. This was the Ursini’s lack of divers (vers for short). But along came some help in the guise of Rich “Reds” Smith and Davey “I can do every event” McDevitt. Both did a commendable job and got the Ursini some points but not enough against some very tough competition.

The swimming event score showed Ursini in a much more pleasing second overall. Just a few points behind Kutztown. The high points of the meet were the four meet records broken by the gallant Ursini. These records came in the 400 fly relay, the 400 I.M. relay, the 400 breast relay and the freestyle crescento relay. The 400 freestyle relay also broke the record but had to settle for second place behind Kutztown. All in all we had a “simply awesome” day, says coach Bob Sieracki.

Special thanks goes out to ‘mer chicks who made the trek with us to Bloomsburg and to Paul Barrone’s sister Mary and Melissa (her roommate) who came to cheer us on even though they go to Bloomsburg.

This Saturday (Dec. 1) the Ursini will blast the ’mers from Swarthmore out of the pool. The meet is home so we want to see EVERYONE there. It is mandatory that everyone go for a half hour. (This is equivalent to a forum, so bring your cards) and refreshments will be available (at 7-11). So bring the kids to the pool on Saturday at 2 p.m. Hey Lou, that means you too. Are you going to let us swim at your school?

Hoop team upsets West Chester in opener

By JOHN CALLAHAN

The men’s basketball team opened their season convincing last Monday with a 74-67 upset over Division II West Chester University. The victory also marked the first win for new head coach Gerry Gasser at the college level.

The first meeting ever between the two teams saw the Ursini jump out to an early lead on the strength of some excellent outside shooting by guards Rob Volko and John Boyle. Even though out sized by West Chester, the Bears held their own on the boards thanks to some strong rebounding by John Ginley and Mike Schaffer.

The Bears never trailed in the contest and held a 31-26 lead at halftime. The opening minutes of the second half saw much of the same as U.C. rolled off 10 unanswered points to open up a 15 point lead. After a Volko steal Freshmen Mike Schaffer and Mike Sarubbi turned in excellent performances as they finished with 12 and 7 points respectively. Both showed alot of poise and confidence out on the court.

After the game Coach Gasser said he was very pleased with the victory. “The players all gave 100 percent and went all out. We out hustled West Chester and controlled for tempo of the game for 35 minutes. We did things we had to do to win. We executed and rebounded well, which was the key to the victory.”

and layup, the Bears lead 47-30. Their largest lead of the ballgame. With about 10 minutes left to go, West Chester staged a comeback. They managed to close the gap at four points, but never got any closer. Foul shooting was the key down the stretch as Ursinus converted 17 of 18 attempts from the line, hitting 13 straight at one point. Paul Udovich hit all seven of his four shots during the final 4½ minutes to seal the victory.

The balanced scoring attack was led by Rob Volko’s 16 points, followed by Udovich with 14. Mike Harte had a fine all-around thing we had to do to win. We made our annual pilgrimage to Bloomsburg with a big shadow looming ominously over their heads. This was the Ursini’s second overall.

Whatley plans to expand intramurals

By JOHN CALLAHAN

This year Dean Richard Whatley is in charge of intramurals. He is expanding the program to include a variety of sports and activities which all students can participate in.

The Intramural season kicked off with flag football and co-ed volleyball during the fall. Both leagues were very successful and well organized. Intramural racquetball is currently taking place. Among the events scheduled is a foul-shooting contest which will be held before the end of this semester and is open to all students except members of the basketball team.

Next semester Intramural basketball will begin. There will be both men's and women's leagues. The men's will probably be divided into two leagues, A and B. Other activities Whatley has scheduled include a floor hockey league, a wrestling tournament, a weight-lifting competition, badminton, bowling, track, and swimming. During the spring men's and women's softball leagues will be organized, along with golf and tennis tournaments.

Dean Whatley says the success of the program depends on the level of interest generated by the students. He encourages students to sign up for Intramural activities and to organize teams for the various sports. Sign up sheets are posted on the bulletin boards downstairs in the gym, across from the weight room. Scores and league standings will also be posted on the board. For more information about any of the Intramural events talk to Dean Whatley.

Co-ed volleyball ends

The co-ed intramural volleyball league came to a climactic close last week. The final match pitted Beck's Busters against the No Names. Both teams finished the regular season with 9-1 records. The Wake, a disheartened when they lost their first five games and finished a lowly 1-9-1, cruised to a decisive victory and won the championship.

Beck's Busters squeaked out a dramatic come from behind victory to win the first match while the No Names dominated the second time.

Beck's Busters took control of the third match early winning the first game 15-3 with Dave Wilson having numerous kills. The No Names put up a tough fight in the second game but Wilson was not to be denied his devastating spike. With Sue Graham handling the setting, Becks' Busters cruised to a decisive victory and won the championship. Congratulations to the members of Beck's Busters.

Fencing in first competition

By KURT RICHTER

On Wednesday, Nov. 14, the Ursinus Fencing Club had its first competition of the year. Stu Sacks, Jim DeRugeriis and Matt Zamites had the task of continuing the four year winning streak of the club.

Against the Wilmington Fencing Club, Ursinus got the competition started with an advantage. Matt Zamites won the first bout with ease by a score of 5-1, Matt, continuing the tradition of Ursinus novice fencers, made significant gains for the team, contributing three wins.

Stu Sacks, a veteran fencer, dominated Wilmington with a perfect 6-0 record, including several shutouts. None of Stu's opponents were able to score more than three points on him.

Jim DeRugeriis gave the extra effort needed to win the competition, winning four of his bouts. Jim was the winner of last year's Bucks County Academy of Fencing tournament.

The Bear Blades final winning score was 13-9 against Wilmington. The Blades would like to thank the Phoenix Fencing Club for their help in preparation for the competition. If you are interested in joining the Fencing Club, contact, Stu Sacks, at 489-1534.

game and finished with 12 points.

Gasser, who replaced Skip Werley after last season, was Werley's assistant for two years. Prior to joining the coaching staff at Ursinus, he was head coach at Conestoga High School from 1969-76. In his final season there, Gasser led the team to their first and only league title. After that season he moved up to athletic director at Conestoga, a position he held until coming to Ursinus.

As far as the rest of the season goes, Gasser is optimistic. "We're smaller than alot of teams, so we have to make up for it with hustle and hard work. We have to control the tempo of the games we're in and make the other teams play our game."

Hoop team congers with new coach, Gerry Gasser, during season opening victory over West Chester.
It's finally finals time!

Don't Forget to "Buckle-Up"

Physical therapists in the state of Pennsylvania treat thousands of patients yearly who have suffered disabling injuries in moving vehicle accidents.

The Pennsylvania Physical Therapy Association reminds us that the use of seat belts may significantly reduce the chances that you will need physical therapy if you are involved in a car accident.

Like all good habits, remembering to "buckle-up" may require some effort at first, but that can in no way compare to the exertion needed to cope with the pain of injury.
