Ursinus' Single Mailbox Relocated at College Administration Building

The The President's Commission on Campus Unrest has recently been completed, and it has failed miserably in the major objective. The Commission has been named the 'Radicals' report' and this is exactly what the radicals radicalize. These factors do not represent the war in Vietnam as more plausible than the analyses. First, as the Commission did not do. Even when the Commission deals with what it contended to be the causes, it does a substandard job. While the Commission made no attempt on either of inerrant orders. The latter point completely misses the problems internal to the university; the former statement is ridiculous. The suggestions of the Commission's report are scarcely believable for any man or group to analyze the revolutionaries could believe that statement, if one accepted the notion of the most noticeable faults of the report is it lack of insight to the problem at hand. It is manifestly impossible for any man or group to analyze the revolutionaries that a radical's statement is ridiculous.

"I can't see anybody saying. This is true. You have to determine for yourself. People don't consider the reasons of their statements."

Academics "I really didn't have a political Science department. I think that I was fortunate to have come into it. It's probably the strongest department for the number of faculty members. Four mainly of them Ph.D.'s. a lot of them actively involved at this moment in the areas that they teach. I've been there for quite a few courses as I can in the areas that they manage. In getting good grasp of them. I think that basically, Ursinus is too limited in the course that it offers. Academically speaking it has more pluses than minuses. The Art department is a perfect example of what can they do if they're determined to do something."

Administration "I enjoyed Dr. Heilferich a lot. There's no doubt that for the correction. He was the strongest. He was the man that took over the school when it was in the red and put it on a firm financial basis. He came from a little school to a school that was able to agree with, and was a great Grandfather image. It was great that he was strong enough. That caused a lot of things that I'd like to emulate. I'm interested in faults in my character, and I think he helped me quite a bit. He is my role model."

"I think it's immoral to come up with a philosophic temperance on the facts. They say that this is what the board of directors believe. This is what the university purpose. This is what the conservative ideal of the world is. The best way is to show the students where they stand. That's immoral. If they would say things that are quite acceptable, but they don't really make that clear, if they intend to do at all. I can't see anybody saying that 'This is truth.' You have to determine that for yourself. People don't consider the relativity in their statements, not only here, but generally speaking as well."

Preparation for the World "The best way to prepare for the world is not to let them give you a little easier than others by their very presence. They must be in the city or a cosmopolitan environment."

"Training hasn't been somewhat lacking in preparation of its students for the outside world. It has an emphasis on being safe, and it has their right perfect to do so, but then, that the power structure of the outside world clearly shows that some things are successful and it wouldn't hurt. There's a definite difference between traditions and policies. To continue to change, but I can tolerate unchanged tradi-

I was always ready to go further than opened doors into academic reforms, but you can't have effective social reform. I expect what it comes down to is that the schools that are advanced have gone through these things years and are going into academic issues, the issues that make a college a college. Ursinus is just coming into it. To give a good example, I'd say that about all of the college was坞winkled on Vietnam in '67-'68, when most other colleges were at least 50-50.

Liberal/Conservative Coalition "Something that really bothers me to the core is the terms liberal and conservative, rad-

Another thing that I think the students want haven't been success. A lot of things that the students want haven't been success. A lot of things that the students want haven't been proven yet, but a lot of things have already been proven successful. It's time.

Miss Blanche Schultz is an instructor in the Mathematics Department, teaching Calculus and other math courses that are subordinate to the pre-med program and math program. She is a graduate of Ursinus College and she attained her master's degree at the University of Michigan. From her graduate work she was involved with public school teaching for a year, from which she found her way back to her alma mater and has been teaching here ever since.

Such historical background tells us little of Miss Schultz, who found to be a warm and amiable individual, who is devoted to teaching and to Ursinus College. To be sure, not only is she devoted to her profession and her school, but also to her country, by the fact that she has been a member of the W.P.S. for some time. In her words, she is a "paper shuffler" at the West Gregory Air Station, serving one week-end a month and fourteen days every summer doing administrative work. Of this she is proud, and this is exemplified by the bumper sticker on her car bearing the words "I Am a Weekend W.A.Y.E."

It is important to us, however, as an instructor and provider of a background concerning her profession, particularly the C.M.P. course, offered here to pre-med students, to make reference to Dr. Rice's recent letter to the Weekly in which he complained that C.M.P. is deterring the teaching of science majors (freshermen) from taking C.M.P. courses. Miss Schultz extended her "sympathies to those faculty members" not happy with the situation. The science major is in his mind, solitary and unaccompanied, and draws up an order of priorities. Completing, of course, a science major, C.M.P. will be more important.

Specifically, Miss Schultz sees C.M.P. as a necessary course for science majors. She states that her reason for establishment in 1969 was "to put the science majors on the same background (Le. chemistry, math, physics)." Another reason is that it "eliminates repetition" of certain material by different courses during a science majors' college experience. Furthermore, she sees C.M.P. as a "means of establishing high standards of excellence here at Ursinus College for science majors," and thus has turned out better prepared science students.

Miss Schultz also related to me some of the major defects of C.M.P. Foremost among its defects is its "mixture of those students who are more prepared than others. Ideally, this course could be developed for the honor students, so that they could move at an even faster pace; yet this isn't a practical solution, for it would only widen such a gap between those more mentally prepared and those less prepared." Another problem of the course is that "it serves to weed out those students who aren't interested in or adequately prepared in chemistry, math, or physics, in referring to some biology majors and other math majors who take C.M.P."

Essentially, however, Miss Schultz views the underlying problem as being one of motivation. If a student isn't adequately interested or prepared for C.M.P., it is extremely difficult for him to be motivated in studying for it throughout the year. Aside from C.M.P., Miss Schultz has expressed concern over the attitude of the students to college in general. Too many students, she feels, are going to college merely "because it's the thing to do. Too many are more concerned with acquisition of a diploma than with the actual learning." Consequently, there has been a "greater tendency toward mediocrity," and she also states that this can be related to C.M.P. There are many students, she feels, who "could perform at higher levels if they spent a little more time and effort on their courses." At the center of this problem is again the students' motivation toward their studies, which has often been called a "lack of motivation toward outside interests."
Hoopenmen Meet Fords in December Debut

By DON McAVINDE

On December 2nd the 1970-1971 edition of the Ursinus College basketball team opened its campaign against Haverford College. The Bears, led by junior captain Gary Schaal, will be out to better their 9-9 record of last year. Two important points, however, remain to be filled. This is due to Mark Zimmerman's graduation and the transfer of veteran guard Bob Brown.

Two battles are shaping up for each of the two positions. Juniors Bill Sitler and Sam Coville, along with sophomore Mike Weston and freshman Bill Downing, will be competing for the starting berth at forward position. Bob Long and Wes Nieweg, both juniors, will battle sophomores Tom Sturgent and Roger Biddle for the starting role at guard.

One of the winners of these two contests will join lettermen Gary Schaal, Parney Castell, and Mike Hertlie to complete the Ursinus quintet. Junior John Katz is also expected to make much of UC's boardwalk.

KILT-CLAD'S COMMENTS

Do you realize that this year's senior class has only lost one hockey game in their four year Ursinus careers...They hold a 5-5 edge over West Chester...Current co-captains Joan Broderick and Randy Wood and started varsity hockey for their freshman year...Janet Lanacey logged quite a bit of varsity time, also, at her wing position...Kip Maclick will be missed as the only starting non-Phy Ed. . . . and don't forget Janet Lippiencott who has spent time on the hockey varsity since she was in high school...Haverford 12.
