Richard P. Richter, president of Ursinus College, has signed an agreement enabling St. Joseph's University, Philadelphia, Pa., to offer their Master of Business Administration (MBA) program on the Ursinus campus.

The five-year agreement calls for most of the MBA course requirements to be offered on the Collegeville campus, with plans to offer all requirements if enrollment is sufficient. Courses will be offered during evening hours beginning this summer and will be coordinated through the Ursinus College Office of Continuing Education.

According to C. Joseph Nace, director of the Ursinus College Evening School, “adding a graduate level program to the existing undergraduate business administration program offered by the Evening School was a natural direction of the College to pursue.”

By offering this program at Ursinus, students who seek an MBA degree will find the campus convenient and accessible. The services available to Ursinus Evening School students will be extended to MBA candidates as well.

The enrollment in the 33-year old evening division increased by 40 percent over the past five years. By 1982 24 percent of the students enrolled in evening courses already held the baccalaureate or higher degree and were adding selected business courses to their education.

“The number of requests for the MBA degree program steadily increased during these five years,” notes Nace. “It became apparent the business/industrial growth along the Route 202 corridor carried with it the need for advanced education in business practices for our community.”

Sensing the needs of the community, Ursinus felt a strong MBA program would be an asset to the area. Since Ursinus has no graduate division, it was their thinking that this need could be addressed through a joint effort with a university with an established MBA program.

In their search for a respected university with which to join forces, Ursinus approached St. Joseph's University. The match was right: St. Joseph possessed a

Next year the faculty at Ursinus will be joined by a new political science professor Dr. Richard Matthews. He replaces Dr. Donald Zucker, who is taking a leave of absence. Dr. Matthews is presently a member of the political science department at Lafayette College.

Born in Scranton, Pa., Dr. Matthews attended Muhlenberg College where he majored in political science and minored in economics. He received his B.A. in 1974 and graduated Magna Cum Laude with honors in political science. In 1976 he received his M.A. in political science from the University of Delaware. From 1976 to 1981 he attended the University of Toronto, one of the leading universities in political science. Here, he received his Ph.D. in Political Economy.

Throughout his career, Dr. Matthews has received many academic honors, including the 1976 Connaught Fellowship, a 1977 and a 1978 University of Toronto Fellowship, and in 1980, 1983 and 1984 he received the Superior Teaching Award from the Lafayette College Student Government.

Dr. Matthews has had many of his works published, including two books, one on the politics of Thomas Jefferson and another on the philosophic roots of modern ideology. He is currently working on a book about the politics of James Madison.

For the past six years Dr. Matthews has been teaching political science courses at Lafayette College. They cover a wide range of topics, such as Political Ideologies, Democracy, Marxism, Ancient and Medieval Political Theory, and many more. It is not yet known which courses Dr. Matthews will be teaching here at Ursinus, but his specialty is Political Philosophy and Theory. Dr. (Nicholas) Berry of the Political Science department feels Dr. Matthews will be an asset to Ursinus, “We welcome him because he is an exciting, articulate, innovative teacher.”

New Men's Dorm is no longer. Call it Reimert Complex. Women will live there next year. The Board of Directors, the USGA, the Campus Life Committee, and the Office of Student Life have finalized plans to accommodate a "flexible housing" plan for Ursinus. It will be instituted in September, 1985.

Women will now be able to live in suites 201 through 207. This will provide rooms for approximately 14 students (9 regular women students and 5 RA's). According to a memo sent out by the Office of Student Life, some modifications will be made to these suites. The suites will be repainted, closets will be constructed in the bedrooms, new rugs will be installed, and furniture will be supplied for the suite living rooms. Depending on the success of these improvements, other suites may be renovated in the future.

The returning men who are now living in suites 201 through 207 will be given displaced status for this year's room selection process. This year, displaced juniors will choose rooms ahead of other juniors, displaced sophomores ahead of other sophomores, and displaced freshmen ahead of other freshmen.

The houses being converted from women's to men's houses are Schaff Hall and 624 Main Street. Two newly acquired houses, 702 and 722 Main Street, will be utilized if the space is needed. These houses will be wait-listed during the room selection process.

While students relax during their summer vacation, Ursinus will be hard at work renovating campus buildings as part of the new Residential Village Project.

The residences of Hobson Hall, Sturgis House, Shreiner Hall, 702 Main Street, and South Hall will undergo full restoration in order to be functional and modern, according to Vice President of College Relations, Dr. John Van Ness. Construction on these dormitories will be contracted out to private contractors, states Dean of Student Life, David Rebuck, "Bids are out now and are being accepted."

Two non-residential buildings, Fetterolf House (the art studio) and Superhouse (a faculty residence), will also be renovated. Fetterolf will be fully restored in the same manner as the residence halls, while Superhouse will only have its exterior redone. In addition, the house at Eighth and Main Street, which was recently acquired by Ursinus, will undergo enough major repairs by the school maintenance staff to allow students to reside there in the fall.

All mentioned residence halls will be completed this summer, with the exception of South Hall. In addition to its full renovation, South will have a new residential wing built. Van Ness says that because of South's extended construction period, current residents will be displaced during the upcoming academic year.

Besides house restoration, the Residential Village Project will include "adding parking, which will be behind the housing, carefully landscaped so that it will not be intrusive," states Van Ness.

Hopefully, the funding for this $2.6 million dollar project will come from a Kresge Challenge Grant, which would amount to $500 thousand dollars and would "challenge" other foundations, corporations, and individuals to raise the balance of the funds. Competition for the grant is extremely stiff. "They have 1,300 applications, roughly," states Van Ness, "and they make about 200 grants."

There is no need for students to worry if the Kresge Grant doesn't come through. Rebuck assures the project will be completed regardless of whether Ursinus receives this particular grant; the money will be raised somehow.

The fraternities and sororities of Ursinus campus have long been involved in competitions with one another. The fun of the Greek Week games is something most of us look forward to each spring, whether we are members of Greek organizations or not. The crazy competitions provide excitement, and they bring a majority of the students on campus closer together in a spirit of friendly rivalry. SIG NU AND ZX WIN SONGFEST
Alpha Sigma Nu and Zeta Chi were declared the winners at Pi Nu Epsilon's annual Fraternity Sorority Songfest last Monday evening (March 2).

All five sororities and three of the six fraternities participated in a song-filled program which was emceed by Bob Livingston. The competition was judged by Dr. Phillips. Chairman of the Music Department, Miss Ruth Rothenberger, Dean of Women, and Dr. Dwight Kirkpatrick, of the Psychology Department.

The winning groups were judged on musical quality, appearance and organization. Sig Nu sang, as its non-sorority number “Everything’s Coming Up Roses,” led by Sue Tucker and accompanied by Sandy Gerger. They also sang “A Sig Nu Girl,” which Diane Williams led. Zeta Chi sang “Kum Ba Ya” and “The Zeta Chi Song.” They were accompanied on the guitar by Bill Swinfurth and Harry Pote.

Plaques were given to the winning groups by Dr. Phillips. These will remain in their possession until the next songfest when they will be passed on to new winners.

A wide variety of songs were sung by the other participants. O Chi presented “Omega Chi” and “September Song.” Delta Pi sang “I Had A Hammer” and “Delta Pi.” The sisters of Phi Psi sang and danced to a lively rendition of “Side by Side” and then offered their traditional “Pals.” The Betans sang “Down by the Riverside” and “The New Beta Sig Song” with help from UC’s own Beaus. Tau Sig presented “Go Tell It On the Mountain” and “Tau Sig Sisters.” The sisters of KD rendered “It’s a Grand Night for Singing” and “Kappa Delta Kappa.”

How would you like to live in a community in which everyone carried a handgun? Would you feel safer than you do now? If you answered no then you are in agreement with most of the people at the Open Dialog presented last Wednesday, March 20. About 50 students and faculty members joined Mr. Ted Xaras in the parents’ lounge to spend a half hour discussing the pros and cons of vigilantism in America.

Last December the vigilante issue became the focus of much national media attention when New Yorker Bernhard Goetz shot four would-be muggers aboard a subway car. At the Open Dialog the question of what would happen if everyone turned into a “Goetz” was raised: Mr. Xaras pointed out that before the 20th century it was normal to be always armed, and it is only in this century that crime has become such a big problem. It was then that numerous arguments against armed citizens came out. Dr. Berry thought that requiring everyone to carry a gun would only increase fear in society. It was also said that armed citizens would encourage criminals to first shoot their victims and then find out if they had a gun. President Richter brought up a point when he said that human life is dignified and should be respected. In his opinion right now there are only a few criminals out there that think nothing of killing one another, but if everyone carried handguns, everyone might lose respect for life.

Is there a way to control crime without vigilantes? Senior John Feest said that the judicial system had to stop releasing known criminals because of stupid complications. Not everybody shared his opinion however, and the discussion continued.

No one is sure how to successfully deter crime, but when the answer comes it will probably come from discussions like last Wednesday’s.

Car Stairs, S.P.E.C.T.E.R. undefeated in college bowl

Others vie for remaining spots in final four

By KIM WALTER
The date October 29, 1984, on this fateful evening the 1984-85 College Bowl season was christened. Twenty teams began their assault on the prestigious title. Today, we have eight teams remaining in the double elimination extravaganza. Two of these squads maintain unblemished records. As we move into the final weeks of the tournament, let’s take a look at our eight survivors.

In Division A, Zack’s Driving enters the home stretch with a 2-1 slate. Captain Leroy Mose’s squad had been undefeated until the Drivers ran out of gas last Monday when the Car Stairs accelerated past them by a score of 245-30. Zack’s Driving will now face the winner of the match between the Bar and Tetrahedral Corpsules.

The Bar, led by the inspired play of that Tom’s River, N.J. sophomore Tom Brown, trashed the dreams of the Braintans with a 250-15 thrashing. The Bar will now take it’s 2-1 record into battle against that awesomely named mental machine, Tetrahedral Corpsules. Led by a group of men from Omwake and a misplaced R.A. Bob Hall, T.C. has compiled a 3-1 season. However, the recent loss of captain Jon Nigrine to part-time employment commitments may hurt the team’s chances as competition grows stiffer in the final weeks.

Reeling out Division A is the only undefeated team left in the league, the Car Stairs. Averaging almost 200 points per game, Dave Risell’s contingent appears to be one of the top contenders for the title. After their third straight victory, they are now guaranteed a spot in the coveted final four, on the road to the championship to be played live on April 29 at the Union Lounge.

In Division B, Demas’ final four hopes were temporarily postponed as a disappointing performance left them on the loser’s side of a 215-45 match against S.P.E.C.T.E.R. Matt Fagan and Don Walz served as the main sparks for the green and gold throughout their campaign.

Demas’ next opponent will be the winner of next Monday’s showdown between the Dandy Lions I and the B.H. Club. The Dandy Lions I are comprised primarily of senior men — women from Phi Alpha Psi. Their team leader thus far this season though has been Dave Bravo. That’s right readers, Dave Bravo, the lone male on the team has proven to be quite a College Bowl force. Behind the play of Bravo, the Dandy Lion I have “weeded out” two straight opponents and have given new meaning to the phase, “a true sororital effort.”

Facing the Dandy Lions I will be the B.H. Club operating now without former captain Jim Doghramji, the B.H. Club features a balanced attack composed of a nucleus of Phi Omega Delta brothers. The B.H.’ers have “wasted” a strong Zippy and the Pinheads along with the Dandy Lions I in a previous meeting.

The final team remaining in Division B is the undefeated S.P.E.C.T.E.R. (Special Executive Counter Intelligence for Terrorism, Extortion and Revenge.) Captained by Jim DiFougeris, S.P.E.C.T.E.R. has breezed by its three opponents defeating each of them by over 100 points. Along with the Car Stairs, S.P.E.C.T.E.R. has also clinched a berth in the final four.

On Monday, April 1 the Bar will square off against Tetrahedral Corpsules in the first match, and the B.H. Club will be pitted against Dandy Lions I in the night cap. Only four spots in the final four remain to be seized. Who will meet the challenge of the Car Stairs and S.P.E.C.T.E.R.? Who will remain on the evening of April 29th, the final stop on the long College Bowl road? The stage is set and the players are prepared. Stay tuned for the final outcome of College Bowl! The varsity Sport of the Mind.

The MBA program at St. Joseph’s University is designed for the career-oriented man or woman in profit and non-profit enterprises. Broadly defined, its mission is to foster personal and professional on-going development of managers by cultivation of a discerning, sensitive, moral judgment; development of a high level of competence in a specific area of study; the fostering of the ability to think with clarity and to deal with problems effectively; and the synthesis of general principles into a personal management style.

Those interested in the program may begin taking courses this summer while completing application requirements for the program. Questions can be directed to St. Joseph’s University, MBA Program Office, 5600 City Line Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. 19131, 872-7666, or Ursinus College, Office of Continuing Education, Collegeville, Pa. 19426 489-4111 or 489-4250.

The selection process, however, because the incoming freshmen class is expected to have a higher percentage of women than men. With the exception of some displaced students, the general student attitude is now positive. Freshman Scott Doughty stated, “I like it. It should have been done before. Segregation forces an unnatural relationship between the sexes.” Junior Forrest Strickland differs, however, “I don’t like the idea because I’m getting kicked out of my room. I’ve lived here (206) for three years and I really wanted to live in a back room for my senior year. I even offered to let the girls live with me but Dean Muench said no. Seriously, though, it’s good in theory; I’m not sure about the practicality of it.” Sally Scanlan, another junior, is “a little worried about losing a good room to a displaced student. I’ve been working through the system for three years and I was hoping to get a good (room selection) number. Now, I might not because of the displaced juniors that will choose before me.”

As for women who might live there next year, freshmen Barb Molloy said, “I like the idea of co-ed dorms. I wouldn’t mind living there.”

There will be a general meeting on April 2 to discuss any changes regarding rooms and the selection process. At another meeting on April 9, any women wishing to live in Reimert Complex may reserve a room. Groups of eight will be given preference in the designation process.

U of MD officials halt dining hall searches
Treat them like adults, administrator says

College Press Service
COLLEGE PARK, Md. — University of Maryland officials now have stopped searching students as they emerge from campus cafeterias, figuring students have learned not to steal silverware.

"We curtailed the stealing," reports Matthew Sheriff, director of food services at the College Park campus, where students have lifted about 15,000 glasses and 25,000 pieces of silverware and stolen countless sandwiches since fall term started.

"We wanted to make students aware they couldn’t take food out," he explains.

The way he did it, however, was to have campus officials search students for food and utensils as they left the cafeterias.

"It’s an invasion of my personal privacy," freshman Steve Broadman told The Diamondback, the student newspaper, after his book bag was searched.

"From what I know about the law, I think it’s illegal." Sheriff adds.

The searches may be "on shaky ground," agrees campus legal aid director William Salmond.

Most colleges figure students will steal food and supplies equivalent to three to seven percent of sales, says Don Jacobs, president-elect of the National Association of College and University Food Services.

And most control theft by using computerized records to monitor purchases and inventories, Jacobs adds.

At the University of Pennsylvania, where Jacobs is dining services director, computerized records help "students know that if they steal something, we’ll find out about it pretty quick," Jacobs says.

But food and utensil theft is getting to be so bad that schools nationwide are relying less on student honor codes and more on stiff fines to control it, he notes.

Jacobs questions whether searches help, however, saying they’re inconsistent with college efforts to get students to behave like adults by treating them as adults.

Maryland’s Sheriff says the policy permitting him to search students’ bags and packages has been "on the books" for a long time, but never instituted until now.

Student Nancy Skinner thinks the issue is more about food than knives and forks.

"(Sheriff) didn’t want people taking out sandwiches and apples" because a percentage of their profit is from people who pay for a meal plan and then don’t eat," Skinner says.

Two weeks ago, the University of Texas announced its food service was in debt because too many students actually were using their campus meal tickets.

Sheriff says the problem at Maryland was that the theft rate had increased.

He has suspended the searches because the theft problem is "now under control."

"We curtailed the stealing. We wanted to make students aware they can’t take food out," Sheriff adds.

College Press Service
AUSTIN, Tex. — Conservative students at the University of Texas are trying to undermine a "suicide pill" anti-nuclear weapons referendum by submitting a petition seeking a vote on a plan to stockpile suicide pills to dramatize the consequences of nuclear war.

"We’re hoping these two proposals will cancel each other out," says UT junior John Colyand, editor of the conservative journal, Texas Review.

The proposal to stockpile suicide pills is at least the third of its kind to be drafted since students at Brown University originated the idea last fall.

Brown students endorsed the plan by a 60-40 percent margin in mid-October.

Later that month, however, the idea was rejected by a 58 to 42 percent margin in a student referendum at the University of Colorado.

Leaders on both sides of the debate at UT expect that backers of the suicide pill referendum will be able to gather sufficient signatures to put the proposal on the March 5-6 ballot.

Still, the leader of the suicide pill referendum group, graduate student Bernard Roth, says he resents the attempt by the conservatives to thwart his proposal.

"They have no constructive goals," Roth told the UT student newspaper, the Daily Texan.

"They just want to confuse people, misdirect them.

"They’re taking a kindergarten kind of attitude and they’re playing kindergarten games." Colyand contends the proposal to stockpile hand guns makes more sense because a Soviet invasion is more likely than a nuclear attack.

Moreover, he says, the hand guns would demonstrate that UT students "are not so cowardly so as to resort to suicide pills."

He acknowledges, however, that the purpose of the proposal is to undermine Roth’s.

"We don’t want the University of Texas name attached to such a proposal," he says of the suicide pills referendum.

Colyand says his group has collected about 500 signatures in 10 days. But he says he expects to fall short of the 1,000 signatures required to make the ballot.

The Texas Review is one of about 75 conservative student publications across the country established with the help of a grant from the Institute for Education Affairs, a conservative foundation based in New York.

Student relates German experience

"The Germans feel as though their soil has been the scene of so many wars in the past that they are very afraid of the nuclear arms race. They’re fearful that they will get caught in a war between the Soviets and the United States. And they haven’t even recovered from World War II. The effect of Hitler is still evident today."

That’s the impression Teresa DeVine, of Huntington Valley, Pa., carried back with her from Bonn, Germany. Teresa, a senior German major at Ursinus, participated in an intensive course at the Academy Niederberg in Germany last summer — a trip that affected her deeply.

"I have deep cultural roots in Germany," says Teresa. "My mother is German and we have relatives there. I feel a very close tie to the country — a sense of warmth."

"But I traveled beyond the East German wall and opened my mind to a different way of life. I realized how lucky we in the United States are to be free in a democratic society."

This summer, Teresa will be able to return to Germany. She has just been awarded a trip to Hamburg, Germany, by the "Verein zur Foerderung der Freundschaft der deutschen und deutschen Frauen in Hamburg-Niedersachsen."

The award is based on participation in a German essay contest sponsored by Keuka College, New York.

Teresa’s winning essay emphasizes her newly found cultural awareness and how she hopes to utilize that awareness in her future endeavors. She depicts the differences between American and German culture and stresses her hopes to someday serve as an economic or political liaison between the two countries.

After taking an extensive one-week language course at Keuka College, Teresa and the other contest winners, 20 to 25 students in all, will depart for a two-week stay in northern Germany which will be highlighted by visits to cultural and industrial centers, and by meeting with German students and politicians.

Teresa is captain of the women’s field hockey team at Ursinus and a varsity lacrosse player. She was a Homecoming Queen nominee this year and was on the Dean’s list. She will graduate this May and, after returning from Germany this summer, hopes to pursue a career in teaching and coaching.

Baseball squad off to sluggish start

By JOSEPH F. PIRRO

About two weeks ago, the Ursinus baseball players returned from their break in Florida. Although they all had darker skin, it was not all fun and games in Daytona. They played five games against tough-competitive teams; winning one and losing four. And now beginning Tuesday, March 19, the team has been quickly thrust into the season.

In the opening game to Muhlenberg, Rob (Clint) Richardson pitched a strong eight innings and led the Bears to a 7-6 victory. Jim Harle came in for a superb inning of relief to pick up a save. The games was filled with excitement and good defensive play. Hitting stars were Dave Bravo with a long homerun and Joe Loeflat with timely run-producing hits.

Two days later the club traveled to Elizabethtown for a confrontation. Once again the Bears put together a victory. Joe Donovan, in his first college start, went the distance allowing no earned runs. Donovan struck out eight hitters, walked five and scattered nine singles. The freshman struggled at first and gave up two unearned runs in the first inning, but for the rest of the game he did not give up more than one hit in any inning. U.C. scored single runs in the third, sixth and seventh to finish out the game's scoring. Shortstop Roger Brewster connected for a single in the seventh inning, driving in Ed Malandro, with the winning run. This third and winning run was executed to perfection. Malandro led off the seventh with a walk and was advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt by Mike Harte. Two players certainly proved that they are “on fire” in this second game. Freshman right fielder John Dillon went 3 for 5 with two stolen bases. Roger Brewster went 2 for 3 at the plate, making him at this point, 5 for 7, which is a .714 average.

The following Saturday there was a double header scheduled at home against Fairleigh-Dickinson. However the rains fell and the game was postponed.

On Monday, March 25 the Bears (2-0) journeyed out to Delaware Valley College for a doubleheader. The team was not as fortunate as they had been in the first two games. The wind was blowing out and Del Val's fences are very short. The Del Val team went on a tear pounding out 29 hits in 10 innings (the second game had to be stopped because of the 10-run rule) as the Bears were beaten both games, 14-8 and 21-4. According to records, the 21 runs in the second game were the most given up by an Ursinus pitching staff in six years. The previous high was a 28-run explosion by Florida Southern in 1979. In the first game U.C. got off to a good start with a five run total in the top of the first inning sparked by back-to-back homeruns by Mike Troemel and Roger Brewster. However, Delaware Valley scored eight runs in their half of the inning. In the second game Ed Woodland homered and walked twice, and Troemel had a single to drive in two runs in his only plate appearance.

The JV squad also played a game this past Tuesday against a poor Penn State Delco Team. The JV team made up mostly of non-starting varsity players had a field day in a 15-1 victory. Their second game was against Delaware Community College yesterday. Varsity will play their MAC opener tomorrow at Swarthmore. It is a doubleheader scheduled for noon.

BEAR BONUSES: Because of various injuries and ailments a few key players have missed some of the early games. These players included Mike Harte, Rich Lafaver, Dave Kulp and Dave Bravo. They have been filled in for adequately by various other players...Roger Brewster and John Dillon are hitting near .500 at the end of the first four games...Joe Donovan struck out eight batters vs. Elizabethtown in his first start...Homerun leaders (with one each) are Dave Bravo, Roger Brewster, Ed Woodland and Mike Troemel.

New coach readies golfers for tough week

By Jim McKeon

The Ursinus golf team, with a record of 21 wins and 6 losses over the past two seasons is looking forward to another strong showing this spring. Led by newly hired Coach Dave Trumbower, the team is intensely preparing for three matches this week.

Captain Tim Efinger, a three year letter winner who finished 10th overall in the MAC championship, heads a squad that includes 5 of its 7 starters from last year. Senior Tom Friel, the second place finisher at the MAC's looks to have regained his fine form from last year and along with Senior Jeff Carson they should add some extra leadership to a basically young team.

Juniors Jim McKeon and Dave "Gorilla" Wilson, the other two returning letterman are both being counted upon to turn in some consistent numbers. The rest of the squad features Senior Rob Volko, Junior Dean Altemose, Sophomores Chuck Brucker, Charlie White and Todd Alderer. Three freshmen are also on the team. They are John Carson, Scott Klee and Brian McGrath.

LINCOLN, Neb. - Nebraska Cornhusker football makes money, and State Senator Ernie Chambers thinks the University of Nebraska players should share the profits.

Chambers submitted a bill to the state legislature in January that would make UN-Lincoln football players state employees, and pay them salaries to play the game for four years.

But college football spokesmen say Chambers' generous plan would transform the Huskers into professional athletes, and disqualify them from National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and Big Eight competition.

"Football players are given little incentive to be scholars... and few persons care how they... perform academically as long as eligibility is maintained," the bill states.

Players are "entitled to some tangible return for the strenuous work they perform and the revenue they generate for the benefit of the university," it says.

"Most athletes' primary purpose for going to school is the pursuit of a diploma," argues Tom Yeager, NCAA spokesman.

"And most schools take exception to the hired-hand status of athletes," Yeager says.

"If you change the rules for some, you must change them for all," he insists. "It's important that we strongly adhere to a code of amateur athletics at the college level.

Crouthamel claims he understands Chambers' belief that student athletes "are not paid or compensated in a comparative way," but "what value is there college degree? It's not just room and board. It's what it prepares them to do upon graduation."

While the bill's passage could open a Pandora's box for college athletic departments and organizations, the fans would lose one of the hardest-fought rivalries in college football.

"I don't know if the bill would make the Cornhuskers professionals," comments Wade Walker, Oklahoma's athletic director. "But there are limitations on who you can play in the NCAA, and we wouldn't be able to play them."

"The legislation would give some student athletes an unfair advantage over others," adds Syracuse Athletic Director John Crouthamel.

"It's a violation of NCAA rules." If these people were declared employees of the athletic department and received pay, they would be declared ineligible and there wouldn't be any football team. You can't play for pay," added assistant athletic director Donald Bryant.

"Nothing in understanding the... rules," Yeager says. "But the bill has little change of passing."

But the senator must have a low opinion of UN-L basketball players," Yeager laughs. "He doesn't include them in his proposal."
AASCU offers guidelines for firing tenured profs

AASCU's president, "We believe that the issue stems from AASCU's president, "We believe that the issue stems from governance needs an additional perspective." The AUP definition improperly is "held up as the AUP definition improperly is "held up as the gospel," according to the president of the New Mexico State University. "I don't know of any institution that cannot plausibly argue that it has some difficulties maintaining high educational quality," Knight asserts.

"This definition would allow broad revocations of tenure for reasons that are hardly serious unusual or extreme," he says.

A substantial number of the schools on the AAUP's list of "censured" schools are there precisely for laying off tenured faculty under what the AUP considered fraudulent declarations of financial emergency. Those schools include the University of Northern Colorado, California State University-Sonoma and the University of Idaho.

Knight acknowledges administrators don't like the AUP's failure to recognize that one department, such as a cooperative farm extension program that receives a separate appropriation from the state legislature, could get in trouble while the campus as a whole thrives.

Knight says he does not consider that a flaw in the definition. Universities are not run so that every tub floats on its own bottom," he argues.

But AASCU's Reinhardt says the AUP does require a campus-wide financial catastrophe before tenured faculty can be laid off.

"Institutions are going to face financial emergencies without it amounting to a financial catastrophe," he says.

Reinhardt says AASCU's broader definition will give courts more to consider when faced with lawsuits from laid-off tenured faculty members.

"In some cases, institutions that tried to make reallocations and phase out programs were blocked by a court that had only the AUP definition of financial emergency before it," he says.

Knight predicts institutions that adopt the AASCU definition of financial emergency will antagonize faculty.

"A definition like this encourages unilateral rather than collegial action," Knight suggests.

Reinhardt says it is "highly unlikely" institutions will misuse the broad AASCU definition to lay off tenured faculty without first exploring other ways to cut costs. If they do, faculty can still appeal to the courts for reinstatement, he notes.

More students need remedial help

College Press Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — More and more college freshmen are enrolling in remedial education courses designed to teach them what they should already know, according to a new report by the U.S. Department of Education.

One out of every four entering freshmen, for instance, takes at least one remedial mathematics class, says the survey of over 500 colleges and universities compiled by the department's National Center for Education Statistics.

More than one of every five students also take remedial writing courses, the study shows, while 15 percent take reading review courses.

"It's just a sign of the times," laments Elaine El-Khawas, vice president for policy analysis and research with the American Council on Education.

"It's a very disturbing reality that many students are not adequately prepared for college," she says, attributing the problem to "a decade of loose high school graduation standards."

And it's getting worse. Among the 500 institutions surveyed, nearly two-thirds offer more remedial courses now than they did in 1978.

One-third of the schools offer the same number of remedial courses as six years ago, while only four percent have cut the number of review courses they provide.

The report suggests many four-year colleges' plans to shift remedial education to junior and two-year colleges have failed.

The University of California System, for instance, two years ago planned to redirect some 2,400 students to nearby community colleges by 1986.

Likewise, Ohio State began admitting only freshmen who had four years of English, three years of math, science, social science and foreign language, and planned to send those not qualified to two-year colleges.

"The reality is that, as good as the policy sounds to shift remedial courses to two-year colleges, it simply has not worked," El-Khawas observes.

"Students who want to get a four-year degree will go to a four-year institution which offers remedial education rather than attend a junior college for two years and then have to move to a four-year school," she says.

Although two-year schools are offering more remedial courses, the majority of four-year colleges have increased their remedial course offerings as well.

Public colleges have the highest number of entering students in so-called catch-up courses, the study says.

Private school students, on the other hand, took the fewest number of catch-up classes. Only 15 percent took remedial classes in math, 12 percent in writing, and nine percent in reading.

Addressing long-standing concerns by some educators that the nation's high schools are not adequately preparing students for college, the report cautions the increased popularity in remedial courses could also be linked to lower college entrance requirements and tougher courses in general.
