In view of the consternation in the student body over the use of funds at Ursinus due to the proposed purchase of the new Century II Fund Drive, a meeting of the student representatives was called. The following are excerpts from the minutes of the meeting presented to the Board of Directors on March 13, 1971 and approved. The President, Dr. Sieber, was absent, but he spoke for himself and the Board for all of the student representatives.

Dr. Sieber, President of Ursinus, presented the plan for a ten-year improvement program in Harrisburg for freshmen legislators, and he will be elected to the legislature in 1971. Mrs. Pancoast, former student, was elected to the legislature in 1937. She received a degree in Economics from Ursinus College in 1964, where she is now a member of the Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors is now considering the purchase of a new Century II Fund Drive, which will provide $5 million for the next ten years. The Board felt that the money should be used for the expansion of the library and $500,000 to be spent on educational equipment and the existing facilities (such as attendance at scholarly conferences and fieldwork on the campus). A $1 million goal will be set to help finance additional capital improvements on the campus.

The fund-raising plan will include the following objectives:

1. To raise funds for the academic program in Harrisburg for freshmen legislators.
2. To raise funds for the legislative program in Harrisburg for freshmen legislators.
3. To raise funds for the legislative program in Harrisburg for freshmen legislators.

The Board of Directors has decided to organize a fund-raising committee to support these objectives. The committee will be chaired by Mr. Joseph T. Bearlew, III, 31.

What Has Become of APE's?" by Dave Mowere

This year Ape pilots did not go through any of the rigors usually associated with being an Ape member. But this is only one facet of the major organizational restructuring that has taken place. Ape is no longer a fraternity in the traditional sense of the word. Perhaps, social club would be a more apt description. Under a new constitution the main, and almost exclusive purpose, for having a party is this reflected by the recent incorporation of two social councils. The idea of fraternity reform isn't new for Ape. Three years ago they were given Strick's proposed changes. However, they were defeated when a vote was taken. Last year eighteen philelphs declared a boycott just as the hankel was taken out of piloting. Concessions were granted.

Still in If C'mill? Ape are six members of the Intra-Fraternity Council. Last year they were the only fraternity to pay the assessment for the Brant.

In the academic year building of department courses, staff, material, and equipment. It means new classes, new programs, and programs that are not the exclusive province of any one academic department. It means continued strengthening of the library collection. It means the selective improvement of student activities outside of classroom. It means increased capacity of the college to offer tuition and aide to students.

Building on Strength

This means selective improvement of department courses, staff, material, and equipment. It means new classes, new programs, and programs that are not the exclusive province of any one academic department. It means continued strengthening of the library collection. It means the selective improvement of student activities outside of classroom. It means increased capacity of the college to offer tuition and aide to students.

Fund-Raising Objectives

It is not prudent to depend greatly on government for operating expenditures. Yet most of the planned improvements in the academic program will result in increased annual operating costs. The fund-raising plan will minimize the conflict by seeking gifts primarily for permanently endowed funds. The income obtained from these newly endowed funds will be used, like income from existing endowed funds, for operating expenditures. For example, a total goal of $22 million is proposed for new buildings and improvements. Raising $2 million of this amount will be permanently invested in the endowment and used to generate income. Some gifts will be sought for a Maurice W. Armstrong Professorship in Physics or a D. Sturgis Memorial Scholarship in Chemistry. The careers of both the late Dr. Armstrong and the late Dr. Sturgis symbolize the importance of education. The fund-raising plan specifies $5 million in additional personal gifts.

The fund-raising goals also call for the raising of $500,000 to be spent on the development of student housing.

Pancosan Takes Sabbatical Leave

Dr. Sieber Pancosan, Ursinus President, has been granted a sabbatical leave in fall 1971. He should have an intense interest in Pancoast's work. He is now working on his next book and is also working on a series of articles for the Journal of the American Medical Association. Dr. Pancosan has been a member of the American Medical Association since 1961.

Following this, Dr. Pancosan and his wife, the former Marjorie Brandt '34, have been granted a sabbatical leave in Ireland to study the Irish national legal system. He will direct an orientation program for incoming freshmen legislators, and he will work on a monograph and pamphlet on the experience. Apathy Kills

By DAVE DILLMAN

One of the staunchest advocates for the fraternity system here at Ursinus is a three-year brother of Delta Mu Sigma, Selby Nera. His words on the subject, graced with a broad sense of humor, are as follows:

"Once you have your self together, you become more of a individual and have understood a lot of differences between yourself and the max brother."

"I feel that I am about three weeks each in the states of Illinois, Virginia, New Jersey, and New York. I've spent a summer on Cape Cod in Massachusetts. That's where I worked last summer, and where I am going to work again this summer. I have also been to Montreal, Quebec.

"I like socializing with people of the opposite sex as much as I can because I believe that before a man gets married, he should as much knowledge of short females as he can gather. Most young people come away from being a member of a married couple. Young people think they are being made sex objects... girls should be as aggressive as boys in any love affair... every human has some dignity of their own, and girls should feel equally dignified."

Away from home so much of the time, Selby is not immune to homesickness. The excitement he displayed when he received some photograph records from home last year outweighed his homesickness. As he held the pictures in his hands, we could see him drift away, thinking of the family back in his hometown, or his boarding school per-

"Girls in sororities have less self-confidence than those who are not in sororities.

One begins to wonder whether marriage is necessary any more. "Pre-marital sex is not as alarming as it used to be a few generations ago. It is being instituted everywhere. Pela taken for this campus showed that it is being instituted here really quickly. It is very important for a modern couple to have sex before they get married... it reduces one cause for anxiety in marriage. Once this anxiety is gotten rid of, a couple should decide and see if they have enough spiritual cause to last fifty years. Girls never should base all their arguments on love. They will argue that if there is love, there should not be any problems at all to a marriage. They fail to realize that there are forces that make love possible and there are forces that work to destroy an existing love affair. The result of this misunderstanding is an ever-growing divorce rate all over the world. One begins to wonder whether marriage is necessary any more."
The overreach of the student government this semester has been such that a mild-mannered government, or a responsible government of the students. It has little union with this, it has given the students something...only taken one important point from the meeting, and that is the proposal to extend the image and serve as its secretariat. We hope the faculty will see fit to unite the students' government with facultys's structure in not only a quest for learning but a consideration of so that this proposal will officially go to the faculty before next term. The USGA has also created and supported The Ecological Concern, a program for recycling, waste recycling, waste sampling, packing up waste, and shipping it away. The USGA hopes to expand our student participation in recycling, waste recycling, and waste sampling. They have also created a student advisory committee, a faculty committee, and a student committee. The area where the student government has not taken a strong stance on this issue is the student health center. It is not clear if the student government will support this stance, but members of the student government have been functioning as a group for a long time.

Why then must we keep up the dormitory regulations? The dormitory regulations have been implemented in order that students and faculty from the dormitory may not be caught up with their activities before the next fall. If these students must be regulated, then the regular activities of the student government have been regulated. Many people are participating in activism by acting as a campus legal aid society, combined with a group for the Kent, and a few others who volunteered. Yes, all of these volunteers fit the standards set by the USGA, but the standards are not met by the student government. In general it has been fairly active for the present student government. Some of its members have met with disappointment, but it's my belief that we have the opportunity. Why? Because we are currently in the second semester. Is there any reason for the students to go back to the dormitory so they can sit through all that war, go see the second picture, and be shown how many more people are working for the same old system as the government? Don't misunderstand—we've shattered the image of the students by working for student aid funds, or a state purpose. We have not an easy excuse to gripe. I do not see how a 70-year-old Indian...is saying a great deal about a hoard. I feel the USGA should represent the desired Ur-

Student Union And Bomberger Renovation To Begin Soon

The alterations on the Alumni Memorial Library, so converted to a student union, will be complete by early in mid-June. The architectural firm of Bond and Miller has finished the detailed work for the $750,000 project and set a June 15 deadline. Unfortunately several strikes are currently in progress at the construction site, and further delays could be expected. The university hopes to have the renovation done some time early in July.

Choral Union

The Choral Union, under Dr. Robert Williams, will give its final concert of the year April 26 at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Library. Program features songs by Schubert, Schumann, Grieg, and others.

The English Comprehensive is the sole surviving course requirement for freshmen. Its predecessor, the English 101 freshman seminar, was discontinued in 1947. The first English Comprehensive test administered to all senior English majors, sophomores, and freshmen was given in mid-January.

The comprehensive test is a fairly long test designed to assess the students' general knowledge and ability in all areas of English. The test is divided into three parts: reading comprehension, writing, and critical thinking.

The reading comprehension section consists of five short passages followed by ten multiple-choice questions. The questions test the students' ability to understand and interpret the content of the passages.

The writing section includes two exercises: a paragraph composition and a sentence correction exercise. The students are given a topic and a set of rules for writing a paragraph on the topic. They must ensure that their paragraph contains a clear thesis statement, well-organized sentences, and proper punctuation.

The critical thinking section consists of five multiple-choice questions that test the students' ability to analyze, evaluate, and synthesize information from various sources. The questions are based on short essays or articles, and the students must assess the arguments presented in each essay or article.

The English Comprehensive is designed to help professors assess the students' general knowledge and ability in all areas of English. It also helps professors identify areas where the students need improvement.

President William Pettit Reflects On Year, His First As President

By CANDY SILVER

Weekly: What are some of the outstanding events of the first period of your presidency?

Dr. William Pettit: Some outstanding public events of my presidency to this point have been my inauguration and the dedication of the Myrin Library. I have also been pleased to meet some of the students at small colleges, including Ursinus as well as adding to some of the extracurricular activities.

Weekly: What are some of your personal goals for Ursinus in the future?

Dr. Pettit: I propose to do everything possible to strengthen the academic program of Ursinus as well as promote the increase in our financial standing. I also hope to make Ursinus better known among the public. In the near future, there will be improvements and broadening of the present academic offering, as well as some of the extracurricular activities.

Weekly: Have your ideas of the presidency changed since you took office?

Dr. Pettit: No, I don't think I went into this blindly. I've been here for a good many years, and I've worked closely with our past presidents, Dr. Onwale, Dr. McElveen, and Dr. Heffelrick, so I knew the hard work that goes into it.

Weekly: How do you view the role of the demonstrations in Washington, at large campuses, and at small schools like and including Ursinus?

Dr. Pettit: I am not a demonstrator. I have never accomplished anything by demonstration and I'm not impressed with what demonstrations can do. I can understand the frustration of the young people, but demonstrations won't bring change. While demonstrations are not meritorious in bringing about the complaints are sometimes valid. If the demonstrators are intelligent, they should go to the person who can help them, take their complaint, and step by step, do what is necessary.

If the case of the demonstrations in Washington, all I can say is that the representatives in the Federal government find it difficult to work out offices by the people. They are responsible to their constituents, so I write them a letter, call them, or even go see them.

It should be realized that change cannot happen over night; it has to go through channels, step by step.

Weekly: How do you feel about such ideas as drinking and open dorms here on campus?

Dr. Pettit: Drinking is definitely not in line with an academic way of life, and as for open dorms, well I don't think that the women want running through the halls at all hours of the night. We have a responsibility to the students in regard to privacy.

Weekly: How does next fall's budget look as of now?

Dr. Pettit: Next year's budget will show a larger deficit than previous years, but I believe our way of seeing it may make up this deficit. As you know, we are a non-profit organization, and much of our budget is fixed. However, we try to give the students as much of our funds as is possible.

Also, we have a high degree of loyalty from our alumni. We have many students whose parents and grandparents are Ursinus graduates.

Weekly: Do you see the job of a college president changing from a financial to a student orientation?

Dr. Pettit: I don't think that there is a set time for the job of a college president. A college president has come to his job from a business or entrepreneurial; mine has always been in academic affairs, and I know the least about the financial aspect, and so I work hard to do it.

Weekly: As college president, how do you treat dissent on established policies?

Dr. Pettit: The first thing anyone can do with dissent is to listen. Although dissent takes some forms of which I disapprove, dissenters often have valid complaints, and it is my duty to listen to dissent and make decisions about whether or not the claims are valid and can be corrected. Some issues I am forced to make decisions against dissent, but my decisions are so often based on finances and decisions of the Board or other circumstances beyond my control.

Weekly: Do you feel that such small colleges as Ursinus will continue to flourish, or will they fall into the shadow of big universities who have a better variety of courses, better facilities, and the ability to offer, as well as more liberal rules?

Dr. Pettit: I believe that students prefer to be thought of as individuals rather than as computer cards. In large university, students cannot help but be numbers, to lose their identities and become anonymous. If a college is not in a large city, many small colleges, students are known as individuals, recognized for their personalities as the people they are.

The past season for the Bears has been both disappointing and encouraging. With a little luck the Bears stood a good chance of reversing their 4-9 record, but the breaks never came, and Ursinus closed out its season with losses to Wilkes College and the University of Scranton.

Ursinus took a 4-3 lead into the ninth inning against Wilkes, but was unable to hold it, and lost one by a 4-5 score. Ed Dwynn continued to lead the Ursinus hitting attack and Rob McKinnon went the distance for the Bears. Later in the week Ursinus lost an other one game to the University of Scranton. Kilt Klad’s Comment: After Four Years . . .

By CRIS CRANE

It is difficult to sum up 4 years in 4 columns. Having covered Ursinus women's athletics both objectively and subjectively, here is an attempt to do just that. However, I have one hope to be realized—i.e., that this column has impressed at least some of you with the fact that just how much of a goldmine U.C.'s is for women in athletics, not just in the Philadelphia area, but in the U.S.

In four years I have had direct exposure to an awe-inspiring number of nationally prominent persons in athletics, both men and women, which, because of their rapid frequency and routine regularity, are taken for granted and practically ignored by the entire campus: a national championship hockey team; a nationally prominent basketball team; a championship basketball team; an unprecedented lacrosse team; numerous all-Americans in several sports; countless All-America recipients; nationally prominent coaches. There are, however, less than 1200 students which far outnumber the numbers which would be considered as high in the state of Pennsylvania.

And so I pass my pen to two people, Sue Jensen and Ruth Ann Conn, whose names will appear on the front page of tomorrow. I am looking forward to reading their columns, not only because they will do a good job, but also because they have a kind of enthusiasm for women's athletics in the college that is almost un unrecognized.

R. A. and Suzy—here's hoping you have as many victories to record as I have.

Ursinus is riding at the top of its form and has contributed to its overall quality by a perfect self-perpetuation by its many products. Why is Ursinus so outstanding, despite all of the obvious handicaps it must overcome?

Certainly the raw material is at hand. It is all a matter of belief that the reason boils down to the fact that girls today are more mature and muscular than they ever were before. It is therefore enveloped upon them consciously or unconsciously by people who have never really been able to participate in the fun of the game, or by North America. It is hoped that the girls left behind, those here now coaching who carry the legacy of those who helped establish the legacy will carry it on to future generations of teams.

The general campus atmosphere further contributes an ideal setting for the cultivation and stimulation of athletic competition.

But the student body seems oblivious to the fact that even some of the top girls don't expect any recognition or a brass band. Everyone appears to be rather disheartened when one listens to the typical rap season that is heard from the mouths of other fraternities and fraternities. The chances of earning anything other than a print on the back of the Fraternity Shooting Center, with nothing good to offer its "members" Ursinus does have something to be proud of.

What Has Become Of APE’s? (Continued from Page 1, Col. 2) of the new president for APEs. He was installed. The whole fan of all this change is to bring the campus atmosphere up to date. The change was really bad. No one would come. Now it's different. Any member can pitch in and help with the brothers vote. They don’t even know APE’s any longer. Of course, if the friend comes often it will add up to something better. So I personally hope that we will continue to add people who are already members and form new chapters to join although no one has.

The "only drawback has been the change in the members of the work which goes into planning and organizing and the change due to our de-emphasis of the idea of family. We want every-thing."

"I would really like to see other fraternities that have turbulences fix themselves, in fact the trend has already started—Beta Sigma no longer does business, the Delta Phi Epsilon Rho pledges were granted some months ago, Alpha Xi Delta’s have been held off various chapters, and the Lambda Rho’s were held off various chapters this year it happened in Demas."
