MARY SMITHE

"A letter," he said, "the Deacon Beauharnais has just received from one of the settlers in the West, in which he speaks of the immense labors of the "Missouri Lancers." He says, in short, that he has heard of my having married Miss Smith."

"That is correct," I replied, "and I am Miss Smith's mother!"

"I wish to see her, sir," said the landlord, "as she is a relative of mine.

"I am not myself," said the landlord, "and I warrant a cure.

"It is a good thing," said the landlord, "for finnie and s or for wives f to have her by my side!

"Ah! many a care had he; now here or anywhere else. When do you go down among the glasses with a bang, I do not believe the law will uphold you in your marriage. ,'

"Eh?" said the landlord.

"Land jo' Goshen!" said the landlord.

"My name is Smith—Zerubbabel Smith," said the landlord.

"Ah! many a care had he; now here or anywhere else. When do you go down among the glasses with a bang, I do not believe the law will uphold you in your marriage."

"I don't believe the law will uphold you in your marriage."

"I know, sir," said the landlord, "and I warrant a cure.

"Don't believe a single soul."

"Land jo' Goshen!" said the landlord.

"My name is Smith—Zerubbabel Smith;" said the landlord.

"But that was long ago;"

The president expects for the present session that the charges of the Writing Office may be defrayed by a companion fund, and to this end has appointed a committee of the most important heads of the department to examine into the question. The committee is composed of the following members: "The clerk, the sign painter, the messenger, the messenger boy, the messenger girl, the messenger boy's wife, the messenger girl's husband, the messenger boy's cat, the messenger girl's dog, and the messenger boy's dog's ear." The committee is expected to make its report early in the session.

Theodore Roosevelt, President, has recently returned from a hunting trip in the western states, where he has been engaged in collecting specimens of wild life for the government. The trip has been a success, and the president is expected to return shortly.

The Supreme Court of the United States has rendered a decision in the case of United States v. State of California. The Court held that the state of California has the power to regulate the use of water within its borders, and that the federal government has no authority to interfere with the state's actions in this matter.

The House of Representatives has passed a bill authorizing the construction of a new lighthouse at the entrance to the harbor of New York City. The lighthouse is expected to be completed within the next six months.

The Senate has approved a resolution authorizing the appointment of a commission to investigate the conditions prevailing in the coal mines of Pennsylvania. The commission is expected to submit its report within the next two months.

A new law has been enacted in the state of Illinois providing for the appointment of a board of examiners to determine the qualifications of candidates for public office. The law is expected to have a beneficial effect on the political system of the state.

The annual report of the United States Geological Survey has been published. The report contains a detailed description of the mineral resources of the country, and provides valuable information for the guidance of future exploration.

The United States government has announced that it will undertake the work of draining the great swamps of Louisiana. The project is expected to provide employment for thousands of people, and to aid in the development of the region.
The Ways of Politics

From Conn. Cour., Aug. 5, 1882.

Mr. Harlan of Iowa asked a question whether or not the Bank of the United States was in the position to loan money to the States.

THE LAW OF HEREDITY.

In the study of heredity, one of the most interesting and important problems is the determination of its laws. Of the various efforts that have been made to elucidate its principles, none is more satisfying to the student than those of Mr. A. G. Harley. He has pursued a course of research which has led him to the discovery of a number of important principles, and he is now engaged in a comprehensive study of the subject.
