Alan Gold, Weekly Win Press Awards

The Ursinus Weekly under the Editorship of Alan C. Gold was the recipient of two awards at the recent National Intercollegiate Press Convention sponsored by Saint Bonaventure University.

These awards represent the first time in nearly forty years that the Ursinus College newspaper has been honored in a national press contest. The Weekly was first honored with a "General Publications Award" for quality achievement in collegiate journalism. The second award was presented to Alan C. Gold, Editor-in-Chief and Publisher of The Ursinus Weekly, for his competent leadership of the newspaper and for his editorial statements during the academic year 1969-70.

Newspaper Landmarks

Upon notification of the awards, Mr. Gold commented: "I am both highly pleased and honored that the Weekly has been recognized for its fine journalistic standards and accomplishments this past year. These awards stand as landmarks in the history of the newspaper, and hopefully will be followed by additional honors in the years ahead. It is extremely gratifying to know that we are publishing a newspaper which is comparable, if not superior, to the finest products of collegiate journalism in the nation."

First Contest Invitation

This year marks the first time in several decades that the Weekly has been invited to compete in a national press contest. It is interesting to note that the Ursinus College newspaper was the only one of the four Pennsylvania universities (Duquesne University, Brandeis University, Penn State, Georgetown University, Albright College, Franklin and Marshall College, Carnegie College, Colorado State University, State University of New York, University of Delaware, and University of New Mexico.) The award-winning Ursinus Weekly has served the College community since 1901.

1970. C. C. C. Promises New Approach to Frosh

The newly formed Central Coordinating Council (C.C.C.) of Jay Abbott, Kevin Aker, Carol Crane, Chris Crum, Bruce Hess, and Susie Jensen has set up a unique orientation program for the incoming Class of 1974. The new program, which will consist of all general activities with the addition of more seminars, will be based on the traditional "fresh" concept. (Continued on Page 4, Col. 5)

Carol Haas, Ed Leinbach Win in ISC

By LISA SPACEK

Every two years Ursinus is big on tradition. The chemistry department, being a vital part of the College community, is no exception. In four years of ISC (Intercollegiate Student Chemists) competition, Ursinus has had six prize winners out of seven entrants. This year's winners, consisting of two first place winners, and two second place winners, will graduate with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and have the title of Ed's research project.

Students' Advantage

At this year's ISC conference at Swarthmore University on April 25th, Carol Haas and Ed Leinbach were cited for their dissertation in chemistry. The award was presented to Alan C. Gold, Editor-in-Chief and Publisher of The Ursinus Weekly, for his competent leadership of the newspaper and for his editorial statements during the academic year 1969-70.

Three Profs Hired

Three men have signed contracts to join the faculty of Ursinus as members of the department of English, Psychology, and Sociology departments.

Replacing Mr. Edelreich is Albert Campbell, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania with an M.A. from the University of Maine. He is presently an Instructor of English at Pennsylvania State University and Hillsborough College. Mr. Campbell has published several volumes of poetry.

Dr. George C. Fago, 27, received his degree from the University of Pennsylvania last year after undergraduate work at Franklin and Marshall College. His areas of major interest are discrimination, learning and punishment in animals, and comparative learning.

Instructing in Sociology next year will be Dean of Men's Residence Hall, Mr. Charles Schultz, major in Anthropology at the University of Colorado and presently working for his doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania.

Brooks Hays Selected for 289 UC Seniors

By JOHN WEAVER

On Monday, May 1st, the UC College seniors and 36 Evening School students will receive their diplomas in Commencement ceremonies held at 11:00 a.m. on Main Street. Each student who graduates, 158 will graduate with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and have the title of Ed's research project.

Eight of the students graduating will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science, ten the Degree Science. Graduating summa cum laude are

Student Pass Bill; Negotiations Enlarge

By CHUCK CHAMBERS

The College is moving slowly but surely toward a new Bill of Rights for campus students. It will be impossible to compromise between two documents.

The first document, a statement of student privileges by the Board of Directors, was ratified in 1967 and is still in effect. The second document is the Bill of Rights authorized by the Governing Council of the USA and approved this week by a wide majority as a more realistic statement of the spirit of the liberal arts college. Negotiations begin the week of February 4, 1970, with both Curtin, Karl Weilman, Chairman of the Governing Council, and Dr. Helfrich, President of Ursinus, in attendance. J. Nelson, and Frank Alain will also be invited to join the negotiations.

Brooks Hays was named the new Student President of the College last week.

No hopes that as much of the document will be accepted. In an interview he stated: "Since Brooks had a one-third stake in the student body, he might be important in the negotiations. (Continued on Page 5, Col. 2)
Year of Involvement

The Ursinus College has witnessed in the past year a decrease in the level of student involvement and concern unprecedented in its history. Students are no longer content to remain isolated and detached from the developments occurring around our nation and the world. Although this is not uncommon on American college and university campuses today, it is a new experience for Ursinus. In the wake of recent events, many colleges have been forced to cancel graduation exercises and suspend classes for the remainder of the academic year primarily because of a sense of "over-involvement." It is a new experience for us all.

The President of the Student Senate, the President of the Junior Class, and the President of the Senior Class all agreed that student involvement and concern unprecedented in our nation and around the world have all been observed the involvement of the Ursinus student body.

It is our sincere hope that the Ursinus student body will continue to be involved and to bear it, because everyone is an individual.

Goodbye, And All That

This issue of The Ursinus Weekly marks the close of our publication year, with the exception of a special Graduation Issue on June 8. Therefore, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for reading and responding to our publication this year. Hopefully, you have been more informed and more intelligent than in 1970. Finally, I would like to thank the hundreds of people who were responsible for creating the news of this past year. I would like to extend a special thanks to my staff, my college, and the Ursinus Weekly. I would like to thank my college for its support and for its lack of communication, which has allowed me to develop my own ideas and my own opinions. I would like to thank the Ursinus Weekly for its support and for its lack of communication, which has allowed me to develop my own ideas and my own opinions.
PUBLICLY PASSIONATE

DEAR MR. GOLD,

After reading the letter from "Publicly pinned but not publicly pinned" recently, I am extremely concerned. For the first time, the young and the old, the students and the professors are being publicly pinned. How about personally, girls? Maybe that's what's wrong with this world, anyway. Respectfully submitted.

IN LOVE

Dear Editor,

I would like to congratulate the residents of Maples Hall for their interruption of the international Peace March on May 4th by tossing water-bal­loons, and for their active participa­tion in that senselessly active event. The action was a very commendable and patriotic. May I suggest, however, that future generations should not freaks be filled with hydrochloric acid rather than love.

Students, Administration, Board Members Discuss Students Rights At Skytop

By JUDY EARLE

The second "Ursinus at Skytop" meetings commenced on Friday evening, April 26th. Ursinus students, administration, faculty and board members met to discuss Skytop, the weekend-long conference aimed at opening discussion among the three major groups. The purpose of the conference was to facilitate the collation of differing and conflicting viewpoints on different levels.

On Friday evening, Alan Novak was called to the podium. "The Student: Rights and Duties," he presented student views on the Bill of Rights. Dr. Harry Helfferich, Professor and Dean, introduced the floor.

Discourse followed. In formal conversations were cited by Dr. Helfferich and Dean Pettit as major expedients to a productive discussion. The production office rarely had coordination involved in running Ursinus and the availability of college rules. Dean Pettit stated that some changes will probably result from the presentations and discussions as far as rule changes are concerned. To mand the group to a negotiable prob­lem. Point of view. Dr. Helfferich and Dean Pettit stressed cooperation on all levels between the students, provide a variety of college rules. Dean Pettit also stated that some changes will most likely result from the presentations and discussions as far as rule changes are concerned. To mandate the group to a negotiable problem. Point of view. Dr. Helfferich and Dean Pettit stressed cooperation on all levels between the students, provide a variety of college rules.

THE KITCHEN CYNIC: "Wind Blown"

By JEFF KARPINSKI

This was going to be a humorous column. I had invented a mythical university and populated it with stereotypes and caricatures of all the assorted extremists, shouters, marchers, haranguers and other misanthropes that in lesser numbers inhabit most of our campuses. By examining their words and deeds, I had hoped to bring out some of the mundane contradictions in the New Left's ideas, and presumably do it with enough levity that people will be willing to sit rather than give the standard true-false rejection of a position that might be somewhere to the right of Gene McCarthy. Unfortunately, it seems an impossible task at this point. The waves must come.

A few weeks ago I spoke without thinking and told the 300 members of my audience to tell a local continental official, "To go fk himself if he doesn't have a better one." Apparently somebody in the Dean of the College has never been revealed to me.

I did not speak in such terms for many years. In the first case, the person who objected to the Dean of the College has never been revealed to me. I believe that whatever or whoever the complainant complained of true moral outrage, or whether it was an impromptu vendetta or simply that I knew that I was to be brought to trial for uttering a bad word in time or the charges. So instead of paying the fine, I am apologizing to the entire student body.

I apologize for my use of one obverse word; I do not apologize for any of the other words. I apologize to the Moratorium Committee, and for myself. The actions I initiated that day were the result of several weeks of discussion by the Committee, the population in attendance, or by individual action. Nobody was required to attend the rally, and it is impossible to "apologize" for any statements (the only one that was made was one mentioning that the next night might be "college night" at the Philhills).

Remember, with the summer term to follow, the enormous cavi¬tating, building behind it. No, the campus may be gone from the Moratorium covenants, but that doesn't mean that the spirit has been diminished. Please, stay active over the summer. You will be working with the heart of the nation's "silent majority"—what better way to tantalize the community of Confront them, or be polite. At¬ tempt to engage them in discussion. The American flag decals. Do whatever you can. If you are with the Consumer movement in every grass-roots aspect of the peace movement.

Love and Peace,

DAVID SEARS

Summer Reading Program

The book list for the 1970 Summer Reading Program has been released. Due to a lack of interest in the program in past years this year's book list will be elected. The candidates for election, in alphabetical order, are:

- The Making of a Counter Culture, by Albert Kukulas
- Nothingness, by Martin Friedman, Delta
- The Territorial Impoverishing, by E. Ar- ky, Delta, Miami-Beach, I. N. "No one"
- Man, Medicine and Environ¬ ment, by R. E. W. Skoog
- Voices, A. Chapman (ed.), Mentor, 1970
- Summer, by M. K. P. Store
- The Temporary Society, W. G. Bennis and P. E. Siler, Harvard
- An Aggression, K. Lontz, Dell
- The Little King, L. M. Hutchison, Mentor, for Him¬ self, The Same Society, E. Fromm, Harvard, So Hunted an Animal, by B. Delaware, Boston, and many others. Of course, no one will ever do anything near the "know the ropes!"

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

From the Other Side: "An Exercise In Contraction"

By JEFF KARPINSKI

There is no way we can discuss the whole issue of contraction in one column, I am trained to think logically, not ask the student government, the YWCA, the ASU, or the President's office to make that decision. I am trained to ask the student government, the YWCA, and the President's office to make that decision. I am trained to ask the student government, the YWCA, and the President's office to make that decision. The first order of business is the academic calendar, which, I am told, will be 1970-71 weeks.

Win, Lose or Drawn, Cricket Season Ends

CRICKET VICTORY

By Donald G. Baker and the Ursinus cricket team defeated Haverford College in the school year 1969-1970 for the first time in several decades. Each team had a 3-3 tie in the previous 1968 season, but this year both played a good and uncompromising brand of cricket. The Haverford team, which had been consistently weak in recent seasons, was not able to improve their form. The Ursinus team showed a steady improvement throughout the season, and the match was a good test of both teams' skills.

In the Wake of Earth Day

Ursinus Moviemakers Explore Daring Field

By JANET STEMEL

"You always hitch-hike because it's too cheap from buying film," said Jim Klauning. That's one of the many movie-making hardships at Ursinus, but taking to Jim and his partner in cinematography Wayne Ehrlich, I knew that they wouldn't give it up because of a hassle like money.

Their camera caps began earlier this semester when Mr. Melvin Kehr, their English instructor, encouraged his freshman English students to do creative projects. The film was not his only suggestion, and he has received in lieu of writing assignments a concerto for the piano, sculpture, paintings, and other media compositions.

"Air Pollution," a three-minute production including footage from Philadelphia, Pottstown, New York and New Jersey was their initial effort. This film initiated them into what they call the "daring business" of movie-making. "A lot of companies get up-light with air-pollution," says Jim and they've gotten more than dirty looks in their filming expeditions. Both the Ursinus and a local high school's Earth Day program planners asked to show the film which is coordinated with the "Air" from Huntington's Dollars song "When the Music's Over."

Since then, Wayne and Jim have each produced a film individually."The Perishing Pleasures of Man!" by another is inspired by and a visual interpretation of William Cowper's "The Poplar-Field." The poets tells of trees and forests enjoyed in youth being sawed down, destroyed and wanted for no good reason. Wayne develops this idea visually and also relates the growth of a tree with the life of a human, showing the circle game we're in. In the class presentation, Wayne read the poem and a description his idea in recreating the poem and what he hoped it accomplished.

Jim's film is called "People in the City" and is related to the theories Jane Jacobs proposes in Life and Death in American Cities. His movie visually supports her ideas about how physical parts of the city influence people. Park shots show relaxed people while sidewalk scenes are tense and forceful. Stiles Davis music provides a unifying effect.

Chris Vereck's "Unsassy Rider," both a person and "Rider" and active on Ursinus has been the most mammoth production, using campus actors and lasting for thirty minutes.

Wayne feels that "Comps limit your communication," and Jim sees "if you're going to use a thousand words in one picture" idea magnified.

A recent year Ursinus Plan includes expansion of the Fine Arts department which might mean a course dealing with the mechanics of movie-making. But even before then Mr. Kehr is hopeful that a course called "Film as Literature" or "The Study of Film as an Art Form" can be added to the curriculum.
