Local History.

By F. G. Hodson, Esq.

To write a complete and explicit history of the Township of Providence, would first be to present the most remunerative prize to the authours of the following pages. However, this is not the intention of the writer. He proposes rather to jot down the history of a few of the many events during the Revolutionary War, which may interest the reader in the present history of the Township in preparing for himself the true state of Providence.

Right through the war, Providence's farm was in the possession of the Government, and was occupied by the British forces. Very few, if any, then, had the courage to remain, and still fewer to volunteer. The few that remained, however, did not desert their post, and continued to serve their country.

There were many stories told of the heroism of the men who volunteered to serve in the war. One of the most famous of these stories was that of the volunteer from Providence. He was a sturdy young man, and had been a farmer all his life. When the war broke out, he joined the army, and was soon promoted to the rank of captain.

When war was declared against England, he was called to the colors. He immediately volunteered, and was soon promoted to the rank of captain.

He was a brave and faithful soldier, and was soon promoted to the rank of captain. He was always ready to do his duty, and was never known to desert his post.

The enemy was always on the lookout for him, and he was frequently captured. But he always managed to escape, and was soon back in his old岗位. He was always ready to do his duty, and was never known to desert his post.

As the war progressed, he was promoted to the rank of colonel. He was always ready to do his duty, and was never known to desert his post. He was always ready to do his duty, and was never known to desert his post.
