S.F.A.R.C. Blocked On Rules Proposals

By JON WEAVER

On Wednesday, May 21, Bob Robison, Mary Elgie McFadden, and GAPARC met with Dean Pettit to learn that new dormitory rules had been promulgated in the face of student complaints. The S.F.A.R.C. met with Dean Pettit to discuss the proposed rules and to suggest changes, but the new rules were promulgated as is.

The new rules involve the following: Dormitories are to be locked by 10:00 P.M. on Sunday, 11:00 P.M. on Monday through Thursday, and 12:00 midnight on Friday and Saturday. No alcohol is permitted in the dorms, and smoking is to be limited to certain areas. The new rules are to be enforced by the residence hall directors and the campus police.

The S.F.A.R.C. feels that the new rules are excessive and that they violate the rights of students. The S.F.A.R.C. will continue to fight for the rights of students and will submit a petition to the administration.

New Vice President-Pettich Richter Named

The Board of Directors of Ursinus College, Collingdale, Pa., announced the appointment of William F. Buckely as new vice president for Administrative Affairs.

Buckely, a graduate of Ursinus in 1953, has a B.S. in chemical engineering from the University of Pennsylvania in 1957 and an M.S. in Chemistry from the same institution in 1962. He is a member of Alpha Chi Sigma, the Society of the Sigma Xi, American Chemical Society, American Association of College Registrars and Admissions Officers, Eastern Association of Deans and Registrars, and Phi Gamma Mu.

Richter has been with the Industrial Relations Department of the Philadelphia Gas Works where he was editor of the company's monthly magazine for employees. He had also been employed by the President Mutual Life Insurance Company, Philadelphia, in a similar capacity.

A native of Phoenixville, where he graduated from Phoenixville High School in 1949, Richter attended Ursinus where he was graduated cum laude. At Ursinus he was graduated cum laude with a major and departmental honors in English.

During his college days he was Managing Editor of the Ursinus Weekly, and he served as president of Phi Gamma Mu, honorary social studies society.

2nd in State

Ursinus College ranks second in the state of Pennsylvania and 16th in the nation in highest percentage of minority students, making it an attractive choice for many students.

Richter earned his B.A. in Chemistry from the University of Pennsylvania in 1962 and an M.S. in Chemistry from the same institution in 1967. He is a member of Alpha Chi Sigma, the Society of the Sigma Xi, American Chemical Society, American Association of College Registrars and Admissions Officers, Eastern Association of Deans and Registrars, and Phi Gamma Mu.

IF Wrap-Up

This year's annual Spring Inter-Fraternity Weekend was held on May 16-18. Due to almost 100% turnout of frat members and excellent weather conditions, this year's event was a resounding success, not only monetarily, but also enjoyment.

In an interview with the Weekly, Andrew Larson, president of the IF council, expressed regret that there was no other independent (95-90% of those attending were frat members).

Larson said, "We would like to see more women in fraternities, which would be more attractive to the student body as a whole. A suggestion would be to include more women in the executive board."
The Proper Emphasis

Amidst ever-expanding pressures for increased social freedom on the Ursinus campus, students may often lose sight of the primary reason for which they are attending college. The pursuit of knowledge and the acquisition of the ability to reason must never be subordinated in importance to other goals in college life. Hence, it seems odd that Ursinus students could become so agitated recently over issues as basic as drinking and open dorms, and not raise even the slightest cry over the inadequacies of the academic sphere of Ursinus.

In colleges and universities across the nation, academic policies are being instituted each year which invest in the students a significant degree of trust in their maturity and level of responsibility. Nevertheless, many of the academic mechanisms at Ursinus are reminiscent of an extremely repressive high school atmosphere.

All-Night Wismer

In view of the fact that many students do their studying in the library and in Wismer Hall, it seems absurd that these buildings are locked up for the night at 10 P.M. and 11 P.M. respectively. Obviously, one's studying is not always completed at the same time as the custodian's workday. There can be no excuse for not leaving Wismer Hall open all-night, provided that the calculator room and dining area are locked, and that a night-watchman supervises. At the very least, Wismer Hall should be open all-night during final examinations; it is too valuable of a study facility to lie in disuse after 10 P.M.

The mention of final examinations reminds one of several other inadequacies in the academic system at Ursinus. While students at other colleges have one or two reading weeks in order to prepare for final examinations, the students at Ursinus are granted only one day to the end of classes in which to prepare for final examinations that may very well fall back-to-back on three consecutive days. This brings me to my next point.

Self-Scheduled Exams

There is no reason that students should not be given the responsibility and freedom (as are Haverford College students) of scheduling their exams on a pass-fail option for courses not in a student's major field of training. This would eliminate the attempts of many students to fill their schedules with courses that are inherently difficult and the option of sleeping off an examination the next day. Students at other colleges have one or two reading weeks in order to prepare for final examinations, the students at Ursinus are granted only one day to the end of classes in which to prepare for final examinations that may very well fall back-to-back on three consecutive days. This brings me to my next point.

Urisinus should be taking a step in yet another direction in order to improve its academic system. The institution of a pass-fail option for courses not in a student's major field would allow students to fill their schedules with so-called "gut" courses in order to achieve the highest possible grades with the least possible effort.

At any rate, students, as well as administrators and faculty members, should consider the feasibility of instituting some of these programs and suggestions, if not all of them; these ideas would certainly serve to intensify the emphasis on the academic nature of the college, and at the same time allow the student to pursue knowledge and get an education without being stifled by a host of administrative mechanisms and policies. And most of all, in the wave of changing social mores on American college campuses, let us not forget where the foremost emphasis in higher education justly belongs.

Goodbye, And All That

This issue of the Ursinus Weekly concludes our publication year, 1968-69. It has been our pleasure to serve the Ursinus community this past year and we look forward to reading the Weekly and reacting to our efforts.

I would like to express a special word of thanks to Mike, Jon, and Ken, and to Judy and Fred for their guiding inspirations in the past. Also, sincerest thanks to H.S. for everything.

To everyone—have a safe, happy, and healthy summer, but remember, as Frost said, "'

The woods are lovely, dark, and deep, And miles to go before I sleep."

A. C. G.
Once upon a time, many years ago, in the soft green-walled village of Collegville, there lived a little girl named Saffy. Saffy loved her mother, Mrs. Ursinus, a pharmacist, and her dad, Dr. John, a physician. She visited them often and played with her little brother, Jack. But one day, tragedy struck, and the family was forever changed.

Saffy's mom and dad were killed in a car accident, leaving her alone in the world. The small town comforted her with its familiar faces, but Saffy was lonely and often felt like she didn't belong. She knew that the two glens people who replied to her column, although one attempted to beat to death the other and they both were interesting and amusing. She knew that this was not always the case.

Secondly, about the two "glens people" who replied to her column, although one attempted to beat to death the other and they both were interesting and amusing. She knew that this was not always the case. (Continued on Page 4, Col. 1)

THE KITCHEN CYCLE: "Story"
The Board of Directors’ meeting was addressed by the President, Dr. Helfferich. He reported that future college growth and improvement would be dependent upon the funds they were able to raise. The president was under the impression that the curriculum must be broadened to meet the increasing demand for a more versatile education. He is planning to appeal to the college for a private college education. He explained his concept and techniques to try to better prepare the graduating students and help many of them.

The college is in the process of expanding its facilities and improving its services. The president’s report showed that the college has made a great deal of progress in recent years. He noted that the college’s enrollments have increased significantly, and that the quality of instruction has improved as well.

The success of the college depends on the support of the community. The president encourages everyone to contribute to the college’s efforts and to help ensure its continued growth and success.
Outing Club Ends Diversified Year

By Jim Williams

The outdoors, anyone? The Outing Club, now eight years old, again filled the needs of Ursinus’ hard-set with a diversified program. This year, the group was able to travel to such places as Hawk Mountain, the Chesapeake Bay, and the Delaware Water Gap. In addition, an informal group of club members organized an expedition to Vermont for skiing.

During the fall, the club received the votes of the class to carry on their activities. They hoped to give Ursinus a chance to experience the wide world of outdoor sports, and many students responded by joining the club.

The club’s main events were the annual Fall Trek, which took place in October, and the Spring Trek, which was held in April.

The Spring Trek was particularly successful, with the club attempting to reach every state in one day. They managed to reach 12 states in one day, and even managed to organize a special bus ride for the students who couldn’t make it to the event.

The club’s success continued throughout the year, with the group organizing several other events, such as the annual Fall Campout, which was held in late October, and the Spring Campout, which was held in late April.

The club succeeded in reaching their goal of “outdoors, anyone?” with the help of the Ursinus community and the support of the club’s members.

of mistrust, you understand. Just look at Loco’s performance last year. He was named team MVP by the coaches and players alike. Loco’s consistent hitting enabled the team to win several close games last season.

When Loco started to hit the ball with authority, the team began to win more games. Last year, he hit .323 with 10 hits in 31 trips. His batting average was a testament to his consistency at the plate.

Loco is not the only one who has impressed the coaches. First baseman Mike Mangan, who had a .250 batting average and 10 runs batted in, is also a key player for the Outing Club. Mangan hit .170 with 3 hits in 17 trips, and was second in average among the Ursinus hitters.

When Loco and Mangan perform at their best, the Outing Club is a formidable team. With players like Loco and Mangan, the Outing Club is set to have another successful season. But it all starts with the team’s approach to the game. Loco believes that the team needs to focus on its fundamentals, such as proper technique and execution.

The team has been working hard in the off-season to improve their game. They have been practicing their hitting and pitching, and are ready to take on the challenges of the upcoming season.

When asked about the team’s goals for the season, Loco stated, “Our main goal is to win as many games as possible. We want to be the best team in the conference.”

The Outing Club is looking forward to a successful season, with Loco and Mangan leading the way. The team is ready to take on the challenges of the season, and is determined to achieve their goals.

The Outing Club is a team of hard-working players who are committed to their sport. With Loco and Mangan leading the way, the Outing Club is set to have another successful season.
