Lyon looks to be in the Frenchies. What are they waiting for? And why? she asks, reproachfully, as she steps on the street. She looks at me with a smile and says, "Who knows, perhaps it's something we need, but we're just not ready for it yet."

"But why wait?" I ask, "Can't we just jump straight into it?"

"Well," she says, "we've been through so much, and we've come so far. It's a bit daunting to think about what comes next."

"But isn't it worth the wait? Don't we deserve a break after all this?"

"Of course," she says, "but sometimes we have to take things one step at a time."

I nod in agreement. We both know this is true, and we continue our conversation as we walk. I can't help but think about how far we've come and how much more we still have to learn. But for now, we'll just enjoy the journey.
The democratic members of the Legislative body were Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in session, and were called to order by the Speaker. The House was then in order. The Speaker then declared the roll called, and a quorum being present, proceeded to call questions of business, and after disposing of various matters, the House adjourned.
