Senior Symposium Tours Phila. Settlement Homes
by Susan Yeat

Monday, February 6, the twenty-eight members of the Senior Symposium accompanied by Dr. Armstrong, colleges of the class of 1966, went on a field trip to the University Settlement Homes, South Philadelphia.

As part of their study of poverty the students were confronted with the cooperation of their family, particularly Mr. Philiee, director of the Settlement and a graduate of Ursinus, with the actual process which this agency dedicated to helping the poor.

The students visited each of the Settlement Homes located on South Street and the first of the settlement homes. One of the programs being run by this settlement promises a hot lunch for about 2,000 children who, before that day, had no meal served, simply on the edge of starvation.

The First of These There are many special programs visited for the purpose of the Senior Symposium, one of these new curriculums, the "Poverty War," is being put on at the settlement at this moment. The symposium was in charge of the students who will have a full London experience in all aspects of the area. Each of these students will be encouraged to do some in-depth research in some of the main problems of the area.

Poverty and War

During the spring semester the symposium will concentrate on the importance of our war and poverty. The second will have fully understood the need for the settlement to be open to all students and seniors next fall. It is the purpose, according to the director, to encourage students from all departments, both in the settlement and the first of the Settlement Homes this year, to see some of the main problems in the field.

Folk Sociology Program

The program of the Senior Symposium, in addition to these academic excursions, includes a discussion and the periodical assistance of the students from the various departments who will be working on the problems of the settlement.

During the current semester the students will be taught by professionals from the department of psychology and political science, linguistics, literature, and the classics. The symposium will also encourage students to attend other courses on the Portuguese curriculum of all residents.

The Curtain Club presents "The Ugly American"

The Curtain Club has a number of interesting programs planned for the remainder of the semester. The first of these programs will be presented at 8:15 p.m. in the Little Theater of the Curtin Club. The program will present a cast of six students, with the Ursinus College, in Jean-Paul Sartre's "No Exit," which will play three times a week and will be presented in the Little Theater. Well-versed performers will be on the public with the students. The program will be presented at 8:15 p.m. in the Little Theater, the first of the settlement homes, which will be presented in the Little Theater of the Curtin Club.

The following week a five-student cast will present a play in the Little Theater, "The Ugly American." This play is written and directed by Philip M. Hinkle, Jr., the drama teacher of the Curtain Club. Other faculty members are David G. Thorne, assistant professor of English, and Susan M. Stiecker, assistant professor of English.

"The Ballet Chaffee" to be Wednesday Evening Forum

The Curtain Club will present a program in the Little Theater Forum College Wednesday, March 9, at 8 p.m. The program will be presented in the Little Theater of the Curtin Club, and will be announced by Dr. Eugene H. Miller, director of the Curtain Club. The program will feature various performances, including a ballet performance, a symphony orchestra performance, and a lecture on the history of the Curtain Club.

Young and Old, Rich and Poor
Accepted by Admissions Office

81% of Present Freshmen Placed Near Top of Class

by Ken MacLeod

The backgrounds and personalities of students we accept are as varied as the upper classmen who turn in their applications to student unions and the parents not. "We admit a high percentage of the Negro and the Catholic," said Mr. Dolman. What the admissions office is looking for is that "the college will provide every student with the best opportunity to develop the best in him."

The College does discriminate in favor of students who have generally better academic records and scores on standardized tests. But Mr. Dolman noted that he and his assistants "are interested in the potential of every student." Thus, some students are accepted by the student union where he found them in a "half dozen" of cases. Mr. Dolman contended in a lively interview with this reporter, earlier this week. "Anything the upperclassmen stamp into a mold when they get here.

"These are boys here whose fathers are not wealthy. We select the students we want as much as they will need to try to give them as much as they can," the admissions director continued. "We are not in the business of giving away scholarships. . . . In the fall, Mr. Dolman explained, "I think every student who is accepted here will have a chance to be involved in extracurricular activities."

Mr. Dolman pointed out a number of factors that are the same for most Ursinus students. They are interested in the rather rigid set of high school required courses. Also, "The college looks to interest students in some activities. They must have the athletic talent. And, of course, they can have some other interest."

How do they do it? The Admissions Office credits some of its success to thousands of interviews that are held with an efficient secretarial staff and the growing number of former students who return to the college for interviews. The college has a common complaint that Ursinus is a "closed shop" and students' "minds are more limited than the Ivy colonies in our course requirements."

Mr. Dolman's assistants have had to face some of the problems the college has had to face as well. "We have had some problems," said Mr. Dolman. "We have had some students who have been involved in various activities. But we feel that they have all been involved in some way."

Mr. Dolman noted that he and his assistants "are interested in the potential of every student."

He looked forward to the day when he could say that his student union was "full of potential." The admissions office has made it possible for students to attend productions of Shakespeare plays for a nominal fee.

The college's supply store, opened by students, has made some printed matter to present to anyone who had traveled several hundred miles to come to the college. "We are interested in making sure that no one who had traveled several hundred miles to come to the college," Mr. Dolman explained, "is going to be taken for granted here."

Swim Team Soaks Temple Drops One to E. Sburg

Squashing their way to a score of 54-14, the Ursinus swim team won another overwhelming victory against Temple. The girls placed third in the meet, improving by either a second or third place. Leading the way were Kaufman, Tidwell and Lettiger in the 100-yard Freestyle, with Harriet Mettger taking a second. Placing first in the 100-yard Freestyle was Nancy Holen, with Delky Graham placing third, Freshman Irene Tidwell scoring two more firsts in the 50-yard breaststroke and Butterfy, with Judy Olshefskie coming in with a third and second in the respective events. The 50-yard breaststroke was won by Mary Maushaud with Judi Tidwell placing third. Ann Gibson did a great job as she placed first in the diving. Harriet Mettger scored third. The 50-yard Freestyle was also won by Ursinus, composed of Lettiger, Van Wezel and Holen. The Jayvees did not place.

Though even the girls knew their hard work would pay off; they lost a very close meet to Brandeis State College.

Triathlon Corner

The first week of intramural basketball saw a lot of action from all teams. The Firezont games proving to be the most interesting to watch. The following were the scores:

Presidential: 32, Temple: 28
Clairmont: 17, Firezont: 15
Hallman: 6, Firezont: 5
Barnes: 5, Firezont: 4

The Jayvee only lost their meet. Scoring for Ursinus were Dobey Glasner who placed second in the 50-yard freestyle, Rita Howse who scored first in the 100-yard breaststroke, and Rita Lettiger who placed third in the 50-yard breaststroke.

Girls B’Ball Team Drops Game to WC

On February 14, the West Chester girls journeyed to Ursinus for their biggest game of the season. The meet started off strongly, with Ursinus holding a slight lead over their “big six” but that didn’t last long. As if signal, the West Chester girls began to click, and within a few minutes, WC had an 8-3 lead, which was never to be broken. From then on, they held a lead of between 8 and 14 points, with a final score of 11-47.

It seemed that U.C.’s main trouble was their lack of shooting, and pass connections against East Stroudsburg. U.C.’s four forwards each had at least one goal in the double digits—something WC, Ron Day was the only one to do so. Also, in the final analysis, it was found that West Chester had taken at least as many field goals as WC.

Despite the girls greatly regretting this grave loss, they are quite anxious to demonstrate their full worth when they will meet West Chester on their own court later on in the season.

Well, they went Big Red and from 10-10:15 Saturday night. We plan on having a lot of people at this going on and you'd need to be there! The reason for this is to keep up with the basketball that is in town, what a great game, we had two points in the third period and lost at the buzzer. Under the Rochester Knick's total of 10 (of our new additions to "Erie", on a special hand to Mills and Pulp for their performances on the court last week, but we expect great things from them to come.

By Judy Schneider

The Pumpernickel Players presented a series of hilarious scenes by Judy Peiffer last Wednesday night in Wimer Little Theatre. Situations in adult life were satirized in a "Frivolest," fashion during their short sketches, and the punctuations of which were accentuated by a blackout at the end of each sketch, hence, the origin of their name.

In their third year, the Pumpernickel Players are steadily growing in fame, and for a good reason. Their 'major program at Pompeknicke Preparatory School as shown in relieves, has allowed them to develop their art, and excellence in these new sketches served as a tribute to their difference.

To Stay Young — Maturity

A "beat" character with a beard and placard established the mood of the evening when he said that his generation considered not wanting to grow up a sign of maturity. Surely, after bearing countless various character chatel and a businessman's trivial characters, he should have realized the immaturity of adult life.

Not Geared to College Students

For the college student, however, some of the situations and characters were ones with whom it was difficult to identify. The scenes presented should have been chosen with this idea in mind, and also, should have reflected their personal experiences."
