Freshmen Women Receive UC Colors, Learn Meaning In 35th Annual Observance

An impressive candle-light procession opened the 35th annual observance of Color Day Wednesday night. Sixty-one students, known as Freeholders, formerly the Ladies of Honor, and 23 members of the Student Council, marched in the procession. The Freeholders, representing the class of 1965, were the first group to enter the gymnasium, followed by the women in white shirts and black ribbons, to indicate candidates for the University of California. The Student Council, which had been flown under the American flag, was followed by the Junior and Senior Classes.

Mrs. Strech stated that Ursinus women, while hardly able to vouchsafe the glory of their ancestors to the students of today, were bound to work for themselves and their own advancement.

Mr. Strech and Mrs. Strech discussed the work done in the mission schools and universities in Latin America, where the Ursinus graduates are called to serve. They told of the world's need for their work.

Mr. Strech stated that, while Ursinus women are not to be pushed into the field of theology, professors dedicated both to the study of the world and to teaching, and to the pursuits of their lives, and to helping themselves and others "out of the darkness and into the light."

Colors Presented to Freshmen

Following the presentation of colors to Ursinus, the Freshman Candlelight procession entered the gymnasium with the colors. They were joined by the women of the Class of 1965, who presented a candlelight procession of the colors.

It was explained that Zacharias Ursinus, the first professor of the Ursinus College, they carried in in their hands of their love for the university.

Mr. Hake discussed the importance of the Freshmen's injection into the university and the character of the students who are responsible to the university.

Fraternity Rushing

Well, rushing is finally over, at least it will be by the time this appears in the paper. Most fraternities have presumably gotten the males they basically wanted, yet in the process of getting them there has been a lot more bitter- ness and jealousy than ever before. A fraternity put on social probation for something every fraternity had over, "had to go out and consciously make friends, while freshmen know who most of their rushees were, let alone being friends." The most frequent statement heard was "the reason why they cannot be rushing will continue to be as the prospective rushees and rushers do not have a chance to have a good friends, and that certainly did not seem to be the case this year. Many fraternity members at first did not even know who most of their rushees were, let alone being the rusher's friend. Thus rushing was forced; members had to go out and consciously make friends, while freshmen were pressured with the do or die situation of impressing the fraternity men in a two-week period.

Why is the problem so acute this year? Well, it seems that the two basic ways of getting to know freshmen and the freshmen getting to know the fraternity men have been changed. If a fraternity member has to have closed parties, then only old friends are invited. Thus new faces are not seen at the parties and the prospective rushers and rushees do not have a chance to really know each other.

Until these conditions are changed, and we see no reason why they cannot be, rushing will continue to be as undesirable as it was these past weeks.
“Snellbelles” Smash East Stroudsburg 63-48, Return Match — No Match

Regester, Kohm Lead Offense With 38 Day, Smiley Defensive Boarders

Bouncing back from their West Chester loss, the girls basketball team played fast, full ball and beat East Stroudsburg in a return home game on Wednesday, March 3. The girls played exceptionally well in the first quarter, utilizing fast breaks and patterns to forge to a 26 to 9 lead at the end of the first quarter. This particularly significant since prior to this game, they have been unable to get moving in the first quarter.

Ursinus dominated the entire game, shutting out a big deficit in the third quarter. Ursinus allowed 12 points and then regained their composure to win by a score of 45-48. This was one of the best games this season, and the girls team showed the home fans something they have been looking for since prior to this game.
