On Sunday, November 3, Ursinus College will hold its annual Founders' Day Program. This will be held at 3:00 p.m. in Bomberger Chapel. At this time, honorary degrees will be given to John M. Cummings, the Honorable Richard S. Schweiker, The Rev. Paul C. Scheiter, and Mr. John M. Cummings.

The Rev. Paul C. Scheiter
Pre-Med Society
Hear Hues Dr. Frank

The Roomman-Antler Pre-Medical Society held its second meeting of the year on Friday evening, October 22. Dr. F. D. Schlosser, Dean of the School of Medicine at Jefferson Medical College, delivered the annual address. The speaker, who has just returned from a trip to the Orient, discussed the uniting factors that make up the medical profession today. He stressed the importance of the medical profession to the community, and the need for all members of the profession to work together for the betterment of the community. The meeting was attended by over 50 students and faculty members.

Biggest Bargain of the Year: 1964 "Ruby" Sales Begin

Going on sale today is the 1964 edition of the Ursinus yearbook, the RUBY. Business managers Linda Kachel and Carl Berlinger have announced that sales representatives will be calling on each dormitory and will personally contact all students.

Barry Goldwater has a very much current conversation. It is interesting to find out how many people know so little about him, though his supporters do not seem to be among them. The fundamental question is, do they not seem to know what they are opposing?

It is impossible, of course, to present an accurate survey in this column in any certainty that he would say or do anything different from what Goldwater said, but studying his "speeches and actions and votes" lands one a personal candidate for the presidency. This can be done in a condensed form.

The book "The Leadership of Barry Goldwater" by William K. Colby is condensed. Colby has done the book's ideas on the basis of speaking and voting. The book is candid because, at the time it was written, the Democratic Party was eyeing a presidential run.

After reading this book, one is still left with the question of whether he is obviously an American nationalist. As defined, his nationalism is dangerous to the Constitution, the well-being of the country, and individuals.

One may also assert that the real danger is not so much to the country, but rather to the individual who votes for him. In his book, "The Constitution of America," Colby has written:

"For the American is a monist, a liberal, a nationalist, and a nationalist in the sense that he believes the country should be self-sufficient. The American believes in the principle of 'self-reliance.'"

It is easy to agree with Mr. Goldwater on this point, but it must also be reemphasized. Colby further presents the idea that the philosophy of doing nothing is a philosophy of maintaining the status quo. He further presents the idea that Goldwater has of the country that is the status quo. He further presents the idea that the status quo is anything that is not Goldwater's plan for the country.

The controversy which is the theme in domestic affairs seems to be the increasing reliance on the government for strength of state power. The argument is that the federal government should have more power so that it can protect the state from its enemies. The federal government should have the power to make the state strong in order to protect the state and its citizens.

Penn. Seeks Librarians

The State's program to encourage more college graduates to consider librarianship as a career will be brought to the University of Pennsylvania on Tuesday, October 29. The State of Pennsylvania is currently initiating a program to improve and develop public libraries throughout the Commonwealth. However, there are fewer, at present, fewer than half enough librarians in the state to do the job.

As part of this program, Donald J. Hunt, of the University of Pennsylvania, will be visiting professor at Our Special Library Science Department. The conference will be held in the Phifer Hall. The conference will be the first in a series of three career conferences which are designed for the student body interested in obtaining employment opportunities for librarians. Many students take advantage of these conferences, but many others do not. The Placement Office feels that this was due to the students' inadequate knowledge about the conferences. The Placement Office and the student body cooperates to help the students plan their careers.

The Career Center on October 29 will conduct a career placement agency. Five representatives of the Career Center will conduct two-hour lectures on the first day of the conference to acquaint the students with the branches of government which employ librarians. The placement agency will show the students how to use the Placement Office facilities and enable the students to plan their careers.

The Placement Office is interested in being a career consultant for students at the University of Pennsylvania. To receive an appointment, please contact Dr. C. W. Yowl, Librarian, Library Science Department.

Federal Service Exam November 20

For the convenience of Ur-
Bears Topple Swarthmore
On Fine Team Eff 14-6

A hopped-up Ursinus eleven dealt arch-rival Swarthmore its first loss of the season coming by a 14-6 count. It was the second in two years that the Bears had sunk the Pennsylvanians.

The Swarthmore offense finally got under way with a 20 yard punt deep in their own territory. It was forced to play defense when Chuck Schaal was forced to play defense when the Bears were on top to 20.

In the first half Swarthmore gave signs of life when the Bears were on top to 20. With Beitman eating up most of the game, the Bears offense struggled to get nowhere.

Senior Ron Emmert, in good health for the first time this season, played a fine game, but couldn't muster the juice to get 178 Bridge Street. Emmert fumbled deep in Swarthmore territory for a score that put the Bears up 10-0. As Elverson pulled all stops to avenge the series 33-17-2, into command, he fought hard, ending the game with two successful field goals on the UC goal.

Brilliant defensive work, especially by spaly Murphy, made the tandem of Emmert and Stone his effort to salvage a tie. John Sadler, putting in a sound showing from start to finish, and Greg Eckardt, who got his chance to contribute, joined others as the Swarthmore defense kept the UC offense from scoring.

The UC JV team tried but unhurt, rallies to win another in the UC/Elverson battle by a 14-6 count. It was the second time in a month the Bears defeated the Lions. UC's only score came when Emmert fumbled deep in Swarthmore territory and the Lions recovered for a TD.

Punter Dave Wiesel was perfect and had 2 punts on the board before the Swarthmore offense got their first break. The first period the Quakers got their first break. The Bears put them on the 21 yard stripe with an inch penalty. Wiesel's kick was perfect, and Swarthmore's offense struggled but getting nowhere stood out even above team effort.

At the outset of the second stanza began Ursinus' best possession of the game with a change of punts, senior QB Ron Emmert had a latent ability to play hard. The Bears offense dug in and held in side the game on defense also and his

When Everything Goes Right

The day was perfect for an upset. Dunkel had inserted his size 12 foot into his mouth byouting Swarthmore as a sure 20 point pick over Ursinus. Swarthmore coach Lew Everard was rolling hopefully in his pants billings in which he personally guaranteed a reprisal for the nasty upset which the Bears had pulled off in '62. A large part of the 2500 Homecoming fans had journeyed to see the Garnets make mince-meat out of the visitors who sported an impressive 0-2-1 skin. Only one thing went wrong; UC was an uncooperative guest.

The Bears asserted themselves from the beginning, and the Centennial Homecoming folks realized that the Dunkel-Elverson duo had goofed for the second straight year. Led by the Mutt-and-Jeff combine of Emmert and Sermoni, UC's offense looked exciting for the first time this season. Emmert displayed his usual 110% effort and his 63 yard TD spurt was a masterpiece in broken field running. Senior Ron Emmert, in good health for the first time this season, kept the Swarthmore defenses guessing wrong all afternoon with his clever play calling. And, to top off the satisfying victory, the Bears' defense played hard-nosed football in tight situations.

Everything seems to go right when an upset is perpetrated, yet it seemed that Coach Whatley utilized his material to the fullest. Former bench-sitters Weisel, Videon, Fackler and Larzerle played key roles in the victory as well as regular line stalwarts Maschock, Swann, Molendyke and Siebenstock. Every member of the UC squad knew they were as good, if not better than the Swarthmanians, and at last they decided to prove their point. It's still not impossible to salvage a winning season, so let's just hope the Bears play up to their potential for the remainder of the 63 campaign.
