The annual student teachers' theme of the annual Fall Retreat of the combined Practical Theology at Lancaster YWCA religion, and to confirm our own Theological Seminary, who will give some background information throughout the coming academic year. The purpose of the retreat is to explore the existing types of agnosticism from the student's viewpoint, to be aware of the arguments against agnosticism and to confirm our own convictions in this field. The keynote speaker will be the Rev. Robert H. Detwiler, Professor of Practical Theology at Lancaster Theological Seminary, who will give some background information on the subject of agnosticism. After Mr. Dr. Rice's talk there will be a square dance (Florey Scheuer will be the caller) and refreshments.

"Mr. and Mrs. North," a three-act comedy, is the Curtin Club's selection for the fall play to be held November 17 and 18.

The plot centers around the investigation of a murder which occurred in the apartment of Pam and Jerry North during their absence. Suspicions are cast upon the Norths and their friends Ben Wilson, Louis Beres, and Clinton reunion, but they certainly did not have the time of their lives during their absence. Suspicion is cast upon the Norths and their friends Ben Wilson, Louis Beres, and Clinton

Semester Films
Top-Rate
"I don't believe it!" ordered the professor, while looking through the semester calendar. "Just don't believe it."

It turns out, of course, that he was referring to the series of films scheduled for showing the semester on campus. The series which was led off by "From Here to Eternity" and "The Eddy Duchin Story" for the past two weeks.

A Welcome Change

Deeply Creative Scientific Mind, Candid Manner Mark Dr. Staiger
by Fred Yocum

Whether playing Santa Claus at the Ursinus Christmas Dance, riding a bicycle in the Campus Chest's race, or working in his lab, Dr. Roger Staiger appears to be a happy fun-loving soul. His rare combination of a deeply creative scientific mind and a very easy-going, candid manner serve him to do activities.

Practically the only uniting factor in his life is that he has centered around Ursinus and Collegeville ever since he entered the college here in 1940. In September of 1943 he began teaching in the chemistry department as an instructor. And, with the exception of two years in the Navy, he has been teaching ever since. Shortly after his return to the Navy, he married the former Margaret Brown, who had been his college sweetheart. One in the company of three Ursinus alumni, he was second in command on a destroyer escort at the close of his discharge.

His most shareable experience during the War was an oc- casion one month when one of his men fell overboard from a landing craft. He jumped over- board to aid the drowning man, and with the aid of his boat, jackets were pulled overboard. The man, who had caused a crisis and made it necessary for him to escape from his job, managed to save his man. Immediately, a rope thrown overboard rescued the original victim. However, the boat lost sight of Blager's boat and the man on board so many ropes had been thrown in by the three other life- boats of the police boat. The fortune of the day was the man's to be rectified at dawn.

Before going to America he and his wife didn't have time to recover from the shock of his experiences. He began taking the course in the department of physics at Pennsylvania and received his B.S. in three years.

"It's Not Our Fault"

"Whatever you do, don't criticize us for the distribu- tion of the book," roared a 53 RUBY editor, "It's not our fault!"

And so it isn't. Understandably, any innovation brings about a period of protest, but those who claim that a distribution of its yearbook, it was commended by many students for having made a wise decision. Such a distribu- tion enables the school to cover for all spring events, in- cluding graduation.

But problems have arisen. Through an oversight on the part of last year's advertising manager, lists of students having purchased yearbooks were not promptly forwarded to this year's business managers—by agree- ment distributors for this year's RUBY.

Precautions will be taken to avoid the same situation next year, but in the meantime students must realize that the book may be obtained by coming under a handicap. They are doing their best to distribute yearbooks to those who want them.

We Get Letters...

All letters to the editor must be signed. We will not be held if sufficient reason is given. They may be published, or delivered under the WEEKLY at the request of the committee.

The Ursinus tornado of Kay O'Donnell, Jeannine Esmer, Sharon Rotenberg and Frank Rapp are pictured along with co-workers Mr. Dickman and Mrs. Wannemacher at the fare-well dinner preceding their honor toward the end of the summer.

Summer school is informal due to summer activities and student vacations. The students in the classes in the mornings and swam or did craft clubs in the afternoons. Part of our goal was to teach English and arithmetic and handle the craft clubs.

The Ursinus Bears registered their first gridiron victory 20-12 on Saturday afternoon. A capacity crowd was on hand as Ursinus observed its second annual Parents’ Day. The Bears played fine football in defeating Hopkins for the first time since the two teams in tug Easton.

The Bears opened the scoring when they marched 14 yards to score late in the first quarter. The drive began when Bill McPherson intercepted a Johns Hopkins pass and ran 47-yard pass from Denny Quinn to Bill Kehl er up on the line of scrimmage.

Bears opened the scoring two points, and the Bears led it was five yards and the Bears scored on the drive, and he capped off the trip to begin their series in 1958.
