Unjust, Unfair, Unwise

On December 19 it was announced that publication of the Monmouth College (West Long Branch, N.J.) weekly newspaper, THE COLLEGE, had been halted by the administration of the college, as action on the recommendation of an ad hoc investigation committee. Following the naming of the president, Dr. William G. Van Note, Dr. Van Note also announced that the paper's editor-in-chief, Stanley Leister, and others were suspended from the newspaper and that the paper's staff was being fired.

We Get So Many Letters...

Dear Editor: I must say that I find football games and political rallies in a straight-line extreme exciting at the basketball games. Really, aren't there enough people who want to see a good game instead of just repartee? Perhaps even a little movement to the left of the center might help.

Dear Editor: We would like to inquire if the administration has been discontented with the rapidity in which the budget has been spent, and, if so, what is being done about it. Also, what is being done about the choice of either giving our football game with Stevens a tryout for the Bowl, or making the game the first of our series or just leaving it out entirely? We hope the students have a chance to express their opinions and feel that the administration is being fair to all.

3. Servings as a means of the development of efficiency and experience in many fields, including programming, equipment servicing, announcing, and music playing.

Dear Editor:

I am not easily discouraged and am seeking others who have the same determination and perseverance and are willing to work towards this goal.

Sincerely yours,
Robert R. Daniels

Peek Around the Campus

Did you ever stop to think about the taxation of books in the state of Pennsylvania - particularly the taxation of textbooks? When a student purchases from five to fifty dollars worth of textbooks per semester, the added 4 per cent state sales tax can amount to a substantial amount.

The 4 per cent sales tax levied against the sale of textbooks in the state of Pennsylvania seems to me quite unfair. If the government were to allow any book to be registered, suppose that a 25 per cent or 50 per cent tax were to be levied against one book or another?

Is 97% Next?

And suppose, for example, that the government were allowed to tax books that were not considered "proper reading"?

The Ursinus wrestling team swamped Haverford College in a hotly anticipated showdown between the over-whelmingly victorious 31-3. The opening victory of the 1963 season made Coach Bob McCready's debut a happy one. The rout began when the first round was over and the excitement, nobody remembered to lock the north gate. "Brother, that second one looks like a Dean, doesn't he? He's half as well built as that guy over there! I thought he was a miniature sized Dick Dean out there." Then the fan realized that it was Dick's younger brother, Kenny, mauling miniature sized Dick Dean out of the ring. "Well, who were the first three clad in the Red, Gold, and Black? Somebody shouted the name "Joe" during the first match; so naturally the fan came to the conclusion, "Oh! that man who knows all the moves" that he had been hearing about.
