3. The right of any member of the WSGA to present proposed amendments to the WSGA rules.

Conclusion of Forum Talk
Mayer Tells Audience
Communism’s Faults
This Socialistic nation has many problems to face, and with an empty belly. There are so many of our people who are hungry and have no money. It is not right that any man has at least adequate food, clothing, education, and all industry and business. There is no need for communism.

Professor Mayer stated that if the United States had not shown a “thus far” it is still possible that some day she will be in the place thrumming with life. She said that the United States has been the benefactor of the United Nations.

System Works Poorly
This Socialistic system is not working well. It is not working at all. It is not working in the United States.

Editorial

Those Letters to the Editor

Mr. Footland raises some interesting points in his letter to the Editor printed in this week's column. Few students know that an amendment added to the WEEKLY a few years ago allows the Editor to divulge the real name of any anonymously printed letter if an authorized member of the Administration designate. It is hoped that several significant comments should be made on this ruling.

In our term as Editor, such a request has never been made. Perhaps this is due in some degree to wise selection and editing of all letters on the part of the staff, using the criteria of good taste and fairness. We also feel compelled that the administration does not see as sensitive to criticism as students are sometimes inclined to think.

As for Mr. Footland's assertion that this ruling does not satisfy the student's desire for opinion from "possible letter writers," we wish to relate some of the arguments for and against this idea. Some people feel that the present arrangement is unfair to the student who should be able to express himself adequately.

"Their letters should be published with their names included." The Editor, however, believes that this arrangement is only a means of protecting the writer from some of the possible consequences of publication.

Determining the real name of some 'letters to the Editor' is only a means of determining the identity of the writers. It is hoped that the Editor will continue to use this arrangement as long as possible to avoid any further confusion.

Cagers Edge Drew 66-64 for 3rd Win, Lose to Drexel 93-59 on Saturday

by Jack Travis

Trailing to North Jersey on Wednesday night, the UC Bears scored their third win in the last five contests, with a 66-64 victory over the Cagers. This win was especially important as it snapped a four-game losing streak and positioned the Bears for potential playoff contention.

The Bears led, 33-31, at the half, but the Cagers came back to tie the game at 50-50 midway in the second half. The Bears then went on a 15-2 run to secure the win. The Bears finished with 42 points in the paint and 14 rebounds.

Patti Sawyer scored 23 points for the Bears, while Paula Smith added 14 and Beth McDonald contributed 12. The Bears were led in scoring by Dyan Newton, who finished with 24 points. The Bears also had 10 assists and 8 steals.

The Bears' next game is against the University of Pennsylvania on Saturday, March 7. The Bears are currently in third place in the Ivy League standings, just behind Princeton and Harvard.

LATIN AMERICAN HISTORY

The University of Pennsylvania's history with Latin American history began with the appointment of Dr. Edward S. Corwin as the first professor of Latin American history in 1876. Corwin was a scholar in the field of Latin American history and was known for his work on the history of the Spanish-American War.

The university has since become a leader in the field of Latin American studies, offering courses in a wide range of topics, including the history of Latin America, its cultures, and its politics. The university has also established several research centers and institutes dedicated to Latin American studies, including the Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies and the John F. Kennedy Institute for Advanced Research.

The university has also been a leader in Latin American policy, providing expert analysis and commentary on Latin American issues to policymakers and the public. The university's Latin American studies program has produced numerous scholars who have gone on to become leaders in the field, including several Nobel laureates.

GLAD RAGS

The hands of spring are on woman's trains. Soon both the green, soon till the grand old times, come the spring of womanly fashions.

And what will the American college student wear this spring? Glad rags, in the form of the American College Frock, are the thing to wear. It is made of fine silks, velvets, and velveteens.

As everyone knows, college fashions have always been casual. The American College Frock is a perfect example of this. It is a loose-fitting dress, usually worn over a petticoat.

And, yes, you are the same. Try an open cape with red roses, or a lace bonnet, or a striped petticoat, or a silk sash. It is all in the dressing.

Now, on to the rest of the world. The Glad Rags are just now beginning to be seen on the streets. But they are not yet in full force. They are a novelty, and people are not quite sure what to make of them.

However, the Glad Rags are sure to be a great success. They are comfortable and practical, and they give a very gay appearance.

The Glad Rags are made of the finest silks and velvets, and are lined with the softest cotton. They are made in a variety of colors, and can be had in any size.

The Glad Rags are not only for college girls, but for all women. They are a great improvement on the old-fashioned dress, and will soon be seen everywhere.

THE PRESSEX

Dean Dick appears to be a fixture on the Ursinus campus as "the barn" (as the T-G gym is known in some circles), which he uses as a public relations and recruiting venue, but he is also a forceful presence on the court. His fragmentary style of play is characterized by flat, fluid motion as he watches his favorite teams, but it is as if he is "in F" in Biology that their attention will mainly focus on: which team has the best defense? The 147 pound class. This crowd-pleaser is a private party thrown by "the dean" of UC wrestlers, Dick Dean.

Why do the fans vent their frustrations to see the name of the mat wars? Well, mainly because Dean is an amazing consistent wrestler. He boasts a 42-3 college record, and has never lost in a high school season all his days. There are differences over them which has now reached the 66-64 point in the history of the Ursinus Wrestling team. The Bears have never defeated the Grizzlies in the 64 point with a 66-64 point struggle.

Dean's Add

321 George Davis added three points to the Bears' 57-37 win over Drexel. Davis, who has come around to consistent scoring in the last three meets, became a take-down in the first half of the meet, and held the lead in the finals for the Bear's victory.

Wrestler of the Week...

Siebenson Shows Improvement

Bill Siebenson, Ursinus' lightweight wrestler, is showing promising signs during this tournament season. He has been able to bring his weight down to 126 pounds, which has improved his performance in the weight class.

Siebenson recently took part in a tournament in New York City, where he placed second in his weight class. He defeated several opponents before losing to the eventual champion in the finals. However, his performance in the tournament was a significant improvement over his previous season.

Siebenson's victory was a turnaround from his previous struggles, as he had struggled with his weight and consistency in the past. His recent weight loss has allowed him to compete more effectively and has given him a better chance of success.

Track Squad Members for Meet

The 1963 edition of the Ursinus track team consisted of several notable members. One such member was Bob Wilson, who placed fourth in the 880-yard run and second in the 440-yard dash. Another notable member was Ken Root, who placed fourth in the high jump.

The team's performance was impressive, as they set new records in several events. The team's success was due to the hard work and dedication of each member.

What the Women Are Doing

Mermaids Splash to 3 Victories

The Ursinus women's track team captured three straight victories in their recent meet at Chestnut Hill. The team's success was due to the hard work and dedication of each member.
