A LADY OF THE LAW.

VOLUME III.

COLLEGEVILLE, PENNA., NOVEMBER 19, 1815.

WHOLE NUMBER, 544.

The Providence Independent.

Life in the Wild West.

The desperadoes of the plains, the cowboys and cattle drivers, the herds of buffalo and the blooming plains, the vast spaces of the West, are all familiar topics to the reader. The life of a cowhand in the West is one of danger and excitement. The cowboys were responsible for the care and protection of the cattle, and they were often subject to attacks by Indians or other unfriendly forces.

The law of the West was often unenforceable, and the cowboys were often forced to rely on their own resources for protection. They were known for their independence and their willingness to take matters into their own hands. The cowboys were often referred to as "outlaws," but they were more likely to be referred to as "laws of the land." In the Wild West, the cowboys were often the law, and they were respected for their courage and their ability to protect the cattle.

The life of a cowhand was often lonely and艰苦的, but it was also one of adventure and excitement. The cowboys were often referred to as "outlaws," but they were more likely to be referred to as "laws of the land." In the Wild West, the cowboys were often the law, and they were respected for their courage and their ability to protect the cattle.

The Woodland factory between the pennsylvania and Montco roads has just been completed. It is a two story stone structure surrounded on three sides by large glass windows against the midge-proof, sealing out the storms. The first floor is taken up by the show room, and the second floor is occupied by the offices. The building is well ventilated and lighted, and is in every respect an improvement on the old structure.
