2-27-1996

The Grizzly, February 27, 1996

Marc Ellman
Ursinus College

Mark Leiser
Ursinus College

Megan McShane
Ursinus College

Joanna Doyle
Ursinus College

Anne-Marie McMahon
Ursinus College

See next page for additional authors

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.ursinus.edu/grizzlynews

Part of the Cultural History Commons, Higher Education Commons, Liberal Studies Commons, Social History Commons, and the United States History Commons

Click here to let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation
Ellman, Marc; Leiser, Mark; McShane, Megan; Doyle, Joanna; McMahon, Anne-Marie; Bechtel, Jason; Schumann, Kristen; Tucker, Colin; May, Beatrice; Walker, Hera; McLachlan, Brandy; Urban, Jennifer; Sofka, Christine; Forbes, Melissa; Schofer, Joel; and Weingroff, Charlie, "The Grizzly, February 27, 1996" (1996). Ursinus College Grizzly Newspaper. 376.
https://digitalcommons.ursinus.edu/grizzlynews/376

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Newspapers at Digital Commons @ Ursinus College. It has been accepted for inclusion in Ursinus College Grizzly Newspaper by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Ursinus College. For more information, please contact aprock@ursinus.edu.
Koestner Gives First-Hand Account of Date Rape

by Joanna Doyle
Of The Grizzly

One in four female students will be a victim of sexual assault during their four years of college. Even a fact as disturbing as this can be meaningless if it is just a nameless statistic. But on Wednesday, Feb. 21, Katie Koestner put a face to the numbers.

Koestner, a national speaker and rape survivor, spoke to Ursinus students about date rape awareness and prevention. She told the audience, “I did not come here just to tell you my own story.... I came here to tell you how to help stop rape.”

A graduate of the College of William and Mary, Koestner was a victim of date rape in her first month of college. However, the tragedy of Koestner’s story continued long after the rape. No one, including the dean of the college, believed her. Her classmates accused her of lying about her popular classmate, and even her parents blamed her for the rape because she had invited the man into her room. According to Koestner, the district attorney told her there was not sufficient evidence to support her accusations, so her case never went to trial. Her rapist was later found guilty by the college’s disciplinary committee. His sentence was that he was banned from the women’s dorm for the rest of the term. Although Koestner’s ordeal was never really closed, she has managed to deal with the rape and return to a basically normal life. She has since graduated magna cum laude from William and Mary with a Phi Beta Kappa membership.

Koestner lost her poise and mostly cheerful tone only once in the hour-long lecture. She related stories from other schools during one of which, she said, the men laughed as they described gang-raping several girls. “They were laughing, so at first I thought it was a joke. But then I thought maybe it was one of those one in four mothers, sisters, girlfriends, and daughters.” Koestner said. “That wasn’t all that funny.... I’m asking the men here tonight to take a stand to stop rape,” Koestner said.

Koestner has been a guest speaker at colleges and high schools nationwide, including the first annual International Student Sexual Assault Awareness Conference at the University of Florida. Her story was the subject of the June 3, 1991, Time magazine cover story on date rape, as well as an HBO original movie.

J-Board Charges Reimert Residents

by Megan McShane
Of The Grizzly

Two Reimert residents were brought before the Judiciary board (J-board) on Feb. 20 after being charged with a combined total of 15 violations.

They pleaded guilty to all charges and were sentenced to removal from residence halls and disciplinary probation, as well as alcohol counseling until May of this year. This is a reduction from the executive J-board decision of removal until the end of this semester and disciplinary probation until May of 1997.

On February 13, 1996, a suite in Reimert had a gathering of friends that became too loud. After the suite received two warnings, security was called and asked to break up the party.

One of the suite mates was charged with failure to comply, disorderly conduct, and impeding the operations of the college for allegedly throwing a beer bottle against the wall as he was walking to his room. The other suite mate was charged with the above plus infringing on the safety and rights of another student, which was reduced to infringing on the rights of a student, for allegedly threatening an RA. The party was closed and all non-residents were asked to leave.

Security continued to receive complaints and returned to the suite charging all suite mates present with underage drinking, public intoxication, noise violation and vandalism of school property.

The students from the suite feel that the J-board “set out to make an example of them.” They feel that the punishment is too harsh for the crime. The general consensus of the suite members was that they were treated unfairly and that the J-board had “already made up their mind before we had even spoke.” “[The ruling] was very consistent with cases in the past,” said Kimberly Taylor, Assistant Director of Residence Life. She explained that cases from previous years with similar circumstances had been examined before a punishment was determined.

She went on to say that it was the job of the J-board to “be as consistent as possible in order to maintain the integrity of the process.” Brian McCullough, Director of Security, stated that he also felt the J-board’s decision was “consistent.”
Buchanan Wins New Hampshire

by Jason Bechtel
Of The Grizzly

Tuesday, February 20: The first presidential primary of 1996 is held in New Hampshire. Granite State residents, recently bombarded by negative advertising campaigns at every turn, went dutifully to the voting booths to cast their ballots.

Charles Croteau, a custodian in Derry, NH, was expecting the voting booth to be a game of eenie-meenie-minie-mo. He compared the primary to a TV show filled with "a lot of bickering." He also complained that the candidates didn't connect with the real world. His town is still feeling the pinch of the corporate downsizing that struck the area earlier in this decade.

Another resident, Anna Willis, who runs a social center for teenage parents, spoke for her area when she said that they want, "someone who cares about their kids. I've got an answer, I've got a place where we can all go, and we need to get there together."

Until that day Senator Bob Dole was the clear front-runner. Even New Hampshire's popular governor, Stephen Merrill, was on his side. Now he is stride for stride with Buchanan. If one of his top aides has ties to a militia group. Alexander is now being confronted with reports of highly profitable investments made while he was governor of Tennes- see. Steve Forbes now needs to alter the image he made for himself with all the negative ads he ran in Iowa.

The race is clearly far from over, but with 26 primaries in the next five weeks, the candidates are more lively than ever.

Results of the New Hampshire Primary

- Buchanan 28%
- Dole 27%
- Alexander 23%
- Forbes 12%
- Lugar 5%

Swastikas Are Removed from Bomberger Hall

by Kristen Schumann
Of The Grizzly

An intriguing yet puzzling element of Ursinus history has recently been unearthed. Bomberger Hall once carried it controversial symbols that modern-day society associates with the evil massacre of the human spirit. Swastikas were once imprinted on the landing to the entrance of Bomberger. These swastikas were recently removed.

The swastika is a symbol of ancient and historical tradition dating from before the era of World War II, when it became a worldwide emblem of destruction. The swastika is traditionally a symbol of prosperity and good luck. It is a type of cross known as a gammadion cross, or crux gammata. The swastika itself is an equilateral cross fashioned from four Greek gamma (Γ) attached at a common base and usually pointing clockwise. It has appeared in early Byzantine and Christian art, marking tombs as the veiled symbol of the cross. It has been adopted worldwide by the Mayans in South and Central America and by the Navajo Indians. It is still used in India as the symbol for Hindus, Jainas, and Buddhists.

As mentioned, the swastika is a part of Christian and religious history. Ursinus College is of the German Reformed faith and it is known that Reformed churches did not display crosses until the 20th century. Then suddenly, ornamental crosses began to appear on church buildings.

ATTENTION CLUBS!
Now is the time to order custom silk-screened t-shirts at reduced rates!

Call now for more information

1-800-481-3998

SILK-SCREENED T-SHIRTS

February 27, 1996
SECURITY ADVISORY

The following information is being provided for your safety and protection. Please take the time to read this advisory and abide by the precautions listed below.

On Fri, Feb. 23 at 2:40 a.m., two unidentified white males driving west on Main Street followed an Ursinus student in a suspicious manner. The student, who was walking on the north side of Main near Pfahler Hall, saw an older model blue pickup truck moving slowly behind her with its lights off. She ran towards Pfahler, pursued on foot by the truck’s passenger, but successfully eluded him, arriving at her residence hall unharmed. Campus Security and Collegeville Police were notified immediately, and the police are investigating the matter.

Although there was a similar, more serious, occurrence on the Beaver College campus Tuesday night, we do not believe that the two incidents are connected.

If you have questions or concerns about this matter, please feel free to contact your RA, any member of the Residence Life staff, Dean Nolan or Brain McCullough. The Residence Life Office is at ext. 2425. Security can be reached at ext. 2377.

FOR YOUR OWN SAFETY, PLEASE TAKE THE FOLLOWING PRECAUTIONS:

• When walking on or off campus after dark, please travel in pairs or groups.
• We encourage you to call the Campus Security Office at ext. 2377 regardless of the hour to request an escort, especially if there is no one to walk with you.
• Please assist us in keeping the Ursinus campus safe by reporting any suspicious persons or activities to Security at ext. 2377.

Don't Miss ESS Career Night

On Tuesday, Feb. 27, the ESS Club is sponsoring Career Night. This event will be held in Helf 201 (the mirror room) at 7:30 pm, and is open to all students.

Rick Hess will discuss the Teaching Track; Sue Anderson Hess, Physical Therapy; Shannon Savidge, Corporate Fitness at PKI; Jeff Davidson, Recreational Therapy; Ginny Nelson, nursing; and Tim Mulvihill, Athletic Training at Cabrini College. Refreshments will be served.

CAREER NIGHT

On Tuesday, Feb. 27, the ESS Club is sponsoring Career Night. This event will be held in Helf 201 (the mirror room) at 7:30 pm, and is open to all students.

Rick Hess will discuss the Teaching Track; Sue Anderson Hess, Physical Therapy; Shannon Savidge, Corporate Fitness at PKI; Jeff Davidson, Recreational Therapy; Ginny Nelson, nursing; and Tim Mulvihill, Athletic Training at Cabrini College. Refreshments will be served.

J.D.S.'s - The Skipped Diploma

This is the second week that The Grizzly is reprinting portions of articles written by J.D. Salinger when he was a student at Ursinus in the fall of 1938.

October 10, 1938
Book Dept.:
For Hollywood's sake, it would be well for the authoress of "Gone With the Wind" to rewrite same, giving Miss Scarlett O'Hara either one slightly crossed eye, one bucked tooth, or one size-nine shoe.

October 24, 1938
Book Dept.:
Ernest Hemingway has completed his first full-length play. We hope it is worthy of him. Ernest, we feel, has underworked and overdoored ever since "The Sun Also Rises," "The Killers," and "Farewell to Arms."

November 14, 1938
Radio Dept.:
... There is utter chaos on the third floor of Curtis Hall every weekday at 5:45 p.m. At said time, there is a very wee voice on the radio which squeaks: "Hey, fellas! It's the circus!" Promptly, the Curtis kiddies begin to shout with gusto for all their friends - whose names, apparently, are Stinky and Skinny.

December 12, 1938
Train Ride:
After swabbing his hairy overcoat several times across our face, a ruddy-faced gentleman (whom we shall refer to as Mr. X) sat down beside us on the Philadelphia-New York bound train. Mr. X was particularly friendly, and in no time at all we were taken into the fold. The details of our short association are hereforth revealed...

Mr. X: College feller?
Us: (cautiously) Yes.
Mr. X: Thought so. Heh! heh! Larry - that's my oldest boy - he goes to college too. Plays football - you play?
Us: N-no.
Mr. X: Well, I guess ya need a little weight. Heh! heh!
Us: Heh! heh!
At that point, Mr. X modestly informed me that his oldest boy, Larry, was not only an expert football player, but also an Assistant Scoutmaster, an old-lady-across-the-street-taker, and the indifferent object of Miss., Mrs., and Grandmother America's violent affections. In short, Larry has fallen heir to all the goodies beneath the X family tree.)

Mr. X: (after a bit, but with the same determination) Ya really wanna gain some weight though.
Us: (between gritted young, strong teeth) Can you suggest a plan? I refuse to eat breakfast foods.
Mr. X: (happily) Well, why don't ya drop my oldest boy, Larry, a line? He'll be able to tell ya.
Us: (momentarily struck with brilliance) You have been so kind that you don't deserve to be kept in the dark...The truth is, unfortunately, that for generations our family has suffered from beriberi.
Mr. X: (retreating slightly) Oh.
(From this point on, the conversation became pleasantly sluggish. Mr. X being most considerate of our condition. Our farewell at Pennsylvania Station was friendly, and with little ado Mr. X took leave of our skinny person.)
To the Editors of The Grizzly:

During December of 1995, an article concerning evolutionary theory was published in The Grizzly in response to Dr. Johnson’s lecture at Ursinus. Dr. Robert Dawley explained that although evolution can never be a fact because it has never been directly observed, a careful investigation of the evidence would probably make one a believer. I would like to raise two important issues that cause me to doubt evolutionary theory.

The first issue that bothers me concerns the fossil record. Darwin believed that evolution occurred by a gradual change in species descended from a common ancestor. This theory is compatible with the current knowledge of mutation and how DNA is transmitted. Single mutations are either favored or rejected by natural selection. However, evidence of this gradual change is completely absent in the fossil history. Darwin dismissed this inconsistency because the record was incomplete at the time. Now, over 100 years later, the record is much more conclusive. Over 100 million fossils have been identified; none show any evidence of the intermediate species that would have resulted from gradual evolution.

Leading evolutionists, Stephen Jay Gould and Niles Eldredge, admitted that not one of them was able to form a new species appear all at the same time rather than being spread out over time.

The second issue that continues to linger in my mind was briefly mentioned by Dr. Johnson. How did the original organism arise? Luther Sunderland states that “selection cannot operate until there is raw material for it to preserve.”

I am aware of Miller and Urey’s synthesis of organic molecules from the primeval sea and the nature of prebiotic, but the simplicity of these molecules seems to be far removed from an organism that natural selection could act upon.

Dr. Sunderland concludes Darwin’s Enigma by calculating the extraordinarily small chance that the raw material necessary for evolution could arise spontaneously. He quotes a French scientist and mathematician as saying that “on average, one such molecule in a material volume equal to that of our terrestrial globe is about 10^42 years.”

These two questions prevent me from completely accepting evolutionary theory. Why do we not see intermediate organisms within the fossil record? Evolutionary theory states that they must have existed. Are we to believe that not one of them was able to form a successful species?

Secondly, mutation followed by natural selection may make sense, but how did that process originate? Dr. Eden once stated at a conference that if “random processes cannot be shown to produce even a fraction of the intelligence contained in the simplest DNA, then some nonrandom mechanism must be found.”

Keith Beaulieu
Class of 1997

Fighting for "Real Social Change"

by Anne-Marie McMahon
Of The Grizzly

Most of the Republican candidates for the presidency are anti-abortion, and would like to see it made illegal. However, dealing with the ultimate structural problems that cause women to terminate their pregnancies is a much more effective way of stopping abortion. Pro-lifers often engage in silly activities such as chaining themselves across the doors of abortion clinics, which is as useless as making abortion illegal because it does not change things at the root of the whole problem. I see the problem stemming from severely limited sex education, a lack of tolerance concerning the distribution of birth control to young people, a lack of socially-acceptable options for pregnant women, and a lack of education about fetal development. Why all these “lacks”?

One big factor is religion, which directly or indirectly contributes to most of the reasons women have abortions. "Sex education and the distribution of condoms encourages sex before marriage," the religious right argues, but I think it is really encourages abortions. If people don’t have these things, they may be more likely to say, "Oh well, I’ll just cross my fingers and hope that nothing happens...". This is generally a very ineffective method of birth control. People do not always have sex for the sole purpose of procreation, meaning that unmarried people who don’t want children might have sex, too. These people shouldn’t be denied access to the means of preventing pregnancy because of other people’s beliefs about when and with whom sex is acceptable.

There is also a great social stigma attached to unmarried pregnant women. The thought of reprovals from family, friends, and the church may also feel that they cannot support a baby, especially if their partners have left them, or that a baby would prevent them from living their lives. These might cease to be problems if there were more infrastructural provisions that would help pregnant women carry their babies to term and care for them after birth. Options include maternity "safe" houses, subsidies or insurance for medical bills, day care in high schools and universities, and adoption counseling, among others.

Lastly, if women have a right to choose, then they should also have a right to know about fetal development, an opportunity which rarely arises in abortion counseling. With-out this information, women are not making fully-informed decisions about abortion. By means of ultrasound, for example, a fetus can see the cells to being a developing baby, which alone could cause many women to carry their pregnancies to term.

All in all, there are many things that could be done to eliminate the ultimate causes for abortion, changes which must be made before America can even think about making abortion illegal. If you’re pro-life, the best thing you can do is work for real social change - not elect a president who thinks stopping abortion is as simple as passing a law.
In Support of Healthier Relationships

To the Editors of The Grizzly:

My previous article ended with the statement that sex outside of marriage causes emotional pain. You may doubt the validity of this statement, so I would like to compare America before the Sexual Revolution of the 1960s to America today, using the figure below.

In the 1950s, most Americans believed that parents should stay in a bad marriage for the sake of their children, but most rejected that view in the mid 1970s.

In the past thirty years, juvenile crime increased six times, teen suicide increased three times, and "drug abuse, eating disorders, and depression among youth have soared, while SAT scores have dropped eighty points."

Reports of neglect and abuse of children have increased five times since just 1976.

So what do these facts have to do with the emotional scars of extra-marital sex? Myron Magnet says that "as a result of the liberation movement of the 1960s, mainstream culture began to be intoxicated with its own sexual liberation -- premarital, extramarital, you name it."

If marriages broke up, as increasingly they did, that was okay, because...personal fulfillment was more important than family stability."

Americans today view sex merely as a means for pleasure, and if they do not feel fulfilled, they will move on.

Once an unmarried couple has sex, the physical aspect begins to take control of the relationship. When the relationship breaks off, the scars left are immense, until it happens so many times that the scars cannot occur any longer and sex has no meaning.

"Survey after survey shows that Americans are less inclined than they were a generation ago to value sexual fidelity, lifelong marriage, and parenthood as worthwhile personal goals." This is borne out by the fact that 31% of children born to married parents see the marriage end in divorce, and 56% of children born to unmarried parents later see the resulting marriage end in divorce.

The answer to satisfaction does not lie in more sex. It will just provide less and less pleasure. The answer lies with God. "Our culture has," in the words of Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, "forgotten God," and so lost the very thing that gives meaning to our relational duties and obligations.

You don't have to continue in the vicious circle of sexual promiscuity, because God is willing to forgive you.

Why not pledge that you will abstain from any further intercourse before marriage? Practice "secondary virginity" if you have already lost yours -- it is the best wedding gift that you could give to your spouse.

Benjamin Baehr
Class of 1999

---

Relationships in America: Now and Then

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Percentage of Americans said it was not wrong for women to have children out of wedlock</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1950s</td>
<td>11%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1960s</td>
<td>5%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1969</td>
<td>two-thirds of Americans condemned premarital sex</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

The Cave

Hello friends. If you've read my column for the last two weeks, you would see a trend developing that is pretty anti-school.

The more I think about this, the more I see that the advice I gave might not be for all of us. The whole student body at Ursinus is not just going to up and leave school because I said we should, so it probably isn't applicable to most of us.

I've been thinking about it, and I've decided that what I've been writing about, mainly that we should seriously rethink school, and we should have less work, and basically we should all move to Tibet where we can be hermits and seek only Nirvana or other more hedonistic pleasures, is not really going to persuade you all to do it. Hell, it didn't even persuade me to do it.

So I've come up with a new plan. First, let me say that for a few people, the advice that I have given still stands.

School is not the best or only choice for everybody. Also, I do think that many professors are insensitive to our lives outside of class by giving way too many tedious assignments.

The problem is that most of us have learned to live with these things, and it would be too much of a shock to do anything else.

So here's where my new idea comes in to play. It is roughly based upon an idea that a high school Latin teacher gave me many years ago.

He said that in the 1960s and '70s, he encouraged students to hitchike across the country and back. He said that this was not only a way to see how the rest of the country looked, and how people in other areas of the US lived, but it was a way to experience freedom and responsibility at the same time.

We all can pretty much agree that safe hitchiking is a thing of the past, but there are other more contemporary ways which we can accomplish the same thing. Most of us have cars or access to one. If not, we all have friends that do.

My suggestion is this: take a week or a few days off. Save yourself a little bit of money if you can, and put it aside. When you feel like you have enough, you should find a friend or two, or maybe even on your own, go on a road trip to some place you've never been before.

Don't mean Disney World, or New York City. I mean just get in your car and head south or west or somewhere and just drive until you get someplace interesting.

Don't plan where you are going to stop for gas, what hotel you want to stay in, what attractions you want to see; don't plan anything. To take a phrase from Nike, Just Do It! Just go.

Get away from the world you know. Go see something new. Be completely free and bohemian for just a few days. Then you can come back with a fresh new perspective on things.

But imagine for those few days, what life would be like. No homework. No deadlines. No meetings, or phone calls, or visits, or obligations. Just you, your friends, and the open road. Then you can come back and go back to your normal lives and just maybe you will have found something about yourself.

This is what I wholeheartedly encourage. Go now. Go tonight. Go two weeks from now. But seriously think about doing it soon.

Once we get a job and get married and have bills to pay, it's too late. We have to do it now.

I don't usually make any New Year's resolutions, but this year I decided that I owed it to myself to do this. And I will. Will you?

-Captain Jack
Movie Mania

Scottish Special

by Colin Tucker

Arts & Entertainment Editor

Put on your kilts and get out the haggis, kids! This week I am reviewing the best movies about the beautiful highlands at the northern end of Great Britain.

Rob Roy: Liam Neeson stars as Robert Roy MacGregor, the legendary Scottish folk hero. He presides over a group of tenant farmers. He borrows 1,000 pounds from the English marquis of Montrose, who owns Rob Roy's land. The evil Englishman Archibald Cunningham (Tim Roth, nominated for Best Supporting Actor) steals the money and leads a terrorist assault on Rob Roy's village.

Do not watch this movie if you want to see an action-packed movie full of swordfights and battles, because this is certainly not it. I did not find the movie boring, but it relies on its characters, rather than action, to drive the movie. The acting was excellent. Liam Neeson, as usual, was superb. Alicia, here is your chance to see Liam Neeson in a kilt. Jessica Lange did an equally great job as Rob Roy's wife. She is as strong as her husband, and the chemistry between Neeson and Lange is wonderful. Tim Roth's eerily creepy performance as the villain is worthy of an Oscar nomination.

The movie ends with one of the greatest sword duels in movie history. Rather than becoming a swashbuckling Errol Flynn-Kevin Costneresque romp, it is a fierce, bloody fight pitting Cunningham's superior swordmanship against Rob Roy's willpower.

Although Rob Roy is not choked full of edge-of-your-seat action, the movie is worth renting because of the good story and top-notch acting. Rating: 8 (Very Good)

Braveheart - If you do desire action, this is the movie to check out.

Even though this movie will be on video in less than a month, I felt I had to see it on the big screen because of its scope and battle scenes. What a good choice I made. Because the movie has been out since June of last year, I was expecting an empty theater, but it was almost full. Apparently, ten Oscar nominations can do a lot for a film.

Mel Gibson is William Wallace, a commoner whose parents and wife were killed by Englishmen. He sparks a revolt against the English nobles, who established a "first night" policy, which established that the nobles are required to have sex with Scottish women immediately after they are married, in an attempt to slowly eradicate the Scottish race.

This film is the classic epic, truly superb in every respect. The battle scenes, partially assisted by computer technology, are the best, most detailed, and most life-like I have ever seen. Kudos to director and star Mel Gibson for giving such detail and realism to these battle scenes. However, these scenes are not for the squeamish, with impalements galore, as well as blood and body parts flying everywhere.

The plot was very unpredictable and superbly written, with many subplots such as infighting among the Scottish nobles, and a romance between Wallace and the princess of England. The movie is a lengthy three hours, but three hours are needed to tell the story, and it doesn't plod along like other overly long overdone epics such as The Godfather Part II and Gandhi.

Although Gibson is the only widely known actor in the film, the performances of all the actors are excellent, especially that of a rather nutty Irishman who joins Wallace's army. This movie was truly deserving of all of its Academy Award nominations, and, if it is lucky, will overtake the Masterpiece Theatre factor of Sense and Sensibility and win Best Picture. Make sure you see this in the theater while it is still there, because Braveheart will definitely lose some of its magic on a TV screen. Rating: 10 (A masterpiece of filmmaking)

Movie quote of the week - Last week's quote, "I'm the ghost with the most, babe" was from Beetlejuice and was identified very quickly by senior East Asian studies major Alison Heely. This week's really obvious quote is "That's classified. I'd tell you, but then I'd have to kill you."

---

The Silver Screen

by Hera Walker

Of The Grizzly

I've always been a big aficionado of the "Classics." Watching the slapstick comedy of Cary Grant, the sultry seduction of Marlene Dietrich, and the rough, tough guy act of Alan Ladd. I fell in love with Gene Kelly in "Singin' in the Rain" and Ray Milland in "Golden Earrings." And now, I share this love with all of you.

The Academy Awards are just around the corner and we all anxiously await the moment to see who will be named the best of the best for 1995. But until then we can be content to watch the great performances of the past winners.

Mrs. Miniver

C.C. Baxter (Jack Lemmon) will do anything to climb the corporate ladder. This 1960 Oscar winning film, deals with the old saying "I'll scratch your back, if you scratch mine." Baxter allows the top executives of his company to use his apartment for their personal enjoyment in exchange for career advancement. All goes well until he discovers that the girl he loves, Fran Kubelik (Shirley MacLaine), is the boss's mistress. Things get worse when he finds her in his bed with a bottle of sleeping pills. Look for the hilarious scene where Lemmon uses a tennis racket for a strainer. Also stars Fred MacMurray (My Three Sons) playing J.D. Sheldrake, Baxter's boss. Approx. time: 2 hrs, 6 min.

The Apartment

The best aspect of this 1942 Oscar winner is its depiction of normal people struggling to survive the devastation of World War II. The action lags at times but is made up for by many heart-touching and sentimental scenes. Mrs. Miniver (Greer Garson) is the epitomal unsung hero, captivating and caring for a gunned-down enemy pilot, bravely comforting her children during a frightening air-raid, then dealing with the loss of family. Through it all, she and those around her retain their "indomitable British resolve." This movie is typical of most of the War movies, all of which are morale boosting, pro-patriotic messages. Approx. time: 2 hrs, 15 min. B&W.

---

Come out and support the arts!

---

Alan Morrison to Perform Recital

by Beatrice May

Opinions Editor

College organist Alan Morrison will present the fifth concert in the 1995-1996 Heefner Organ Recital Series on Sunday, March 3, at 4 p.m. in Bomberger Auditorium. His program is set to include music by Vidor, Vivaldi, Langlais, Demessieux and Hampton.

Morrison is the director of music at the historic First Baptist Church in Philadelphia. He is also a graduate of Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, where he studied with John Weaver, Dr. Vladimir Sokoloff and Susan Starr, and was the winner of prestigious organ competitions.

Morrison is scheduled to perform this season in the Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall, the Meyerson Symphony Center in Dallas and Spivey Hall in Atlanta. With such an itinerary, it is no wonder Morrison is one of the most sought-after concert organists of his generation.

Come out and support this great event!
"Darn these cutbacks!"

Spring Break '96

SPRING BREAK - Nassau/Paradise Island, Cancun and Jamaica from $299. Air, hotel, transfers, parties, and more! Organize small group - earn FREE trips plus commissions! Call 1-800-822-0321.

Ski & Snowboard - CAMPUS REPS NEEDED. SPRING-BREAK '96 Intercollegiate Ski Weeks - 5 day lift ticket / condo lodging, 5 nights parties & activities. Mt. Orford, Canada (Near Vermont) (Drinking age-18) TRIP ONLY $219. REPS EARN FREE Trips, CASH, New Equip, etc. CALL Ski Travel Unlimited: 1-800-999-Ski-9.

Wanted!!! Individuals, student organizations, and small groups to promote SPRING BREAK '96. Earn MONEY and FREE TRIPS. Call the nation's leader, Inter-Campus Programs. 1-800-327-6013. http://www.icpt.com
The sophomores are having a meeting with their half-time half-court shots are not the only Wednesday at Olin 108. All students are invited to join us every other Wednesday at 12:30 pm in Olin 108. We would really appreciate your input.

The class officers have been busy organizing fund-raising events. The "96th Day Before Graduation" party was a huge success for the senior class. If anyone would like to help out with Senior Week, let a class officer know (you can email CLASS96). The sophomores are having a meeting with their half-time half-court shots at the basketball games, and the freshman class is planning a raffle. The sophomores are having a Bermanweiser "Beremanweiser"-shirt sale and all the profit will go to Airband '96. Rice is busy with a summer school program, and there is a committee searching for a Dean of Student Life. IFC and ISC are working to make a President's Council which will be part of the Omega Chapter, and the Campus Planning Committee passed the women's soccer team's proposal to join the NCAA. The Campus Housing Committee has been talking about making the Quad and BWC co-ed! (more about that later...)

Bhavesh Vaidya presented a constitution for a new club called the South Asian Student Association, and USGA voted in favor of the club. Rocco Iacullo has been doing some intense "Call Box" research and we may see them on campus in the near future. Ryan Rhodes and his committee have come up with a proposed Honor Code and it is now in the process of fine-tuning. Also, thanks to Fred Klee and the maintenance staff for some of the new lights that students requested! The rest of the lighting must wait for good weather.

Don't forget Airband '96 is March 1st. USGA is proud to announce that we have donated $250 to the cause. See you next week in Olin 108!

RAPE AGGRESSION DEFENSE PROGRAM

Starting this Thursday night, 2-29-96, thirteen students will begin the fastest growing and largest's women's self defense program in the country. Over 100 colleges and universities, 10 municipal departments, 5 sexual assault resource centers and private training facilities in 22 states and Canada offer this structured program that presents a consistent curriculum with easy to teach and easy to learn techniques that have realistic and practical applications. Ursinus Security Officer Paul Smith, a certified physical defense instructor for the Ursinus RAD program will be the primary instructor with Valerie Weston, also a certified RAD instructor and member of the Pottstown Police Department.

If interested, contact Officer Smith, extension 2737.

SECURITY PHONES

In the past three weeks, security phones have been installed at the following campus locations:

Helfferich Gym - basement wall across from the women's locker room.
Reinert Lobby - located directly across from the Security Office.
Wismer Hall - Lobby A near the stairwell.

PUSH THE BUTTON ON THE PHONE AND THE CONNECTION IS MADE TO THE SECURITY DEPARTMENT

What's Up in Wellness?

Skin Cancer

by Jennifer Urban
Of The Grizzly

Spring Break is only about 11 days away! Do you have plans to travel to Florida or Cancun? Most travelers head someplace warm with plans of basking in the sun in search of the "savage tan". While a tan might make you look better for a short period of time, the long-term effects can be deadly! More than 600,000 Americans develop skin cancer each year, and people in their twenties are among the fastest growing number of cases. The Skin Cancer Foundation believes that overexposure to ultraviolet rays from the sun is the primary cause in 90% of skin cancer cases. This UV radiation from the sun is believed to stimulate the production of free radicals in the skin, which mutate DNA molecules allowing cells to grow rapidly and without order. The uncontrolled cell growth leads to the development of a tumor.

More than 600,000 Americans develop skin cancer each year...

Dr. Peter Perreten

Art Museum opening all go hand in hand in improving the quality of students at Ursinus." Another improvement Perreten would like to see in the future is the addition of Fine and Performing arts majors. This will hopefully contribute to a wider diversity of students at Ursinus.

Perreten, when teaching, likes to show the literature in its original form so students can see the piece in the form that the author meant it to be seen. He likes to use visual aids as much as possible and will even write out the assignments he gives to his students. By writing out an assignment Perreten makes sure the assignment can be accomplished, while also helping himself to understand the process students must go through to accomplish this task.

Like all teachers Dr. Peter Perreten's foremost concern is the education of his students. He wants everyone to leave his classroom having learned something.

Art Museum opening all go hand in hand in improving the quality of students at Ursinus." Another improvement Perreten would like to see in the future is the addition of Fine and Performing arts majors. This will hopefully contribute to a wider diversity of students at Ursinus.

Perreten, when teaching, likes to show the literature in its original form so students can see the piece in the form that the author meant it to be seen. He likes to use visual aids as much as possible and will even write out the assignments he gives to his students. By writing out an assignment Perreten makes sure the assignment can be accomplished, while also helping himself to understand the process students must go through to accomplish this task.

Like all teachers Dr. Peter Perreten's foremost concern is the education of his students. He wants everyone to leave his classroom having learned something. And what student wouldn't be inspired to learn when he or she knows that stepping into Dr. Perreten's classroom means the teacher will be working as hard, if not harder, than the student. Thanks go out to the teacher who fulfills students' dearest wish, while still being able to give students an education.
Todd McKinney

by Brandy McLachlan
Of The Grizzly

Todd McKinney is probably the most difficult man on campus to find. That is due to the fact that he is in charge of so many student life activities. Many of us do not remember McKinney as the man at summer orientation who assisted in the organization of the activities that helped make our transition into Ursinus so much easier. But McKinney’s job does not end there.

With an office in the Leadership Development and Student Activities, McKinney is the man responsible for many of the activities the students of Ursinus participate in. He is the advisor to the Campus Activities Board (CAB), the Multi-Cultural and Student Diversity Group, Advisor to the freshman class, Advisor to AFAC, and a Student Advisor.

He also assists in the community service program and the Summer Bridge Program. McKinney is also a part of the Greek Organization. This year, he has been responsible for the overseeing of a year round pledging policy for both the fraternities and sororities.

McKinney can also be seen around the campus on the occasional weekend. He is one of the Duty Deans responsible for monitoring the weekend activities. So what does Todd have to say to the student body? He would like to see more of the campus getting involved in what happens at Ursinus. He feels the student body should be “not only riding in the car but driving.”

Todd believes it is the student’s responsibility to continue their development outside of classes and become mature citizens of the community. As he puts it, “It is my job to advise and mentor, not to do.” Is there anything Todd McKinney does not do?

Harley David Rubin, former Grizzly sports editor, has joined Aloysius Butler and Clark, one of Delaware's leading full-service advertising and public relations agencies. Rubin has taken the position of copywriter.

Rubin spent the past year with the Philadelphia-based Al Paul Lefton Company where he was responsible for feature and technical writing in his public relations account executive position.

Rubin graduated from Ursinus in 1994, and is currently pursuing a Master's degree in journalism at Temple University. The staff of The Grizzly congratulates Harley!

WHAT TO DO BEFORE LEAVING FOR SPRING BREAK...

Residence Hall Closing Information

All residence halls will be closed and locked on Friday, March 8, 1996 at 5:30 PM. Students who are unable to arrange transportation to leave campus by 5:30 PM will be permitted to wait with their belongings in the Wismer Lower Lounge. The Wismer Lower Lounge will remain open until 8:00 PM.

1. The residence halls will reopen on Sunday, March 17 at 12 noon. Please do not plan to return until that time. During the recess period, halls will NOT be open for procurement of personal belongings. Residents will NOT be permitted to enter the residence halls for any reason during the spring recess.

2. The residence halls will reopen on Sunday, March 17 at 12 noon. Please do not plan to return until that time. During the recess period, halls will NOT be open for procurement of personal belongings. Residents will NOT be permitted to enter the residence halls for any reason during the spring recess.

3. The Dining Hall will be closed after lunch at 1:30 PM on Friday, March 8, 1996. It will reopen for breakfast at 7:30 AM on Monday, March 18.

4. ZACK’S will close at 2:00 PM on Friday, March 8, 1996. It will reopen Monday, March 18, at 6:00 PM.

5. The College is not responsible for personal possessions. Items of value should be taken home. See Student Handbook, page 27, item seven.

6. In an effort to maintain security and conserve energy, students are required to do the following:

A. Windows closed and locked, shades drawn.
B. Lights out, door locked.
C. Unplug all electrical equipment, with the exception of aquariums.
D. Empty, clean, and unplug refrigerator, leave door open.
E. Sweep and clean floor.

HAVE A GREAT SPRING BREAK!
If this were a ranking for Olympic Hockey, we would be outraged.

It’s time we became just as concerned with how well we compete in the classroom. The fact is, America’s schools haven’t kept pace with the rest of the world. Our standards are not high enough. Our teachers are undervalued. Our communities need to be more involved. But it’s not too late to turn things around. In some places, it’s already happening. Find out how together we can bring about the kind of improvement we desperately need.

For a free booklet outlining how we can keep the promise of real education for all of America’s children, call 1-800-96-PROMISE.

Keep the Promise.

Education Excellence Partnership

The Grizzly Needs You!!

Do you attend Ursinus sporting events? Are you interested in writing? How about covering sports for The Grizzly?

If you are interested, contact Charlie Weingroff or Joel Schofer.

The Grizzly would like to congratulate all winter sports teams for successful seasons!!

A PHILLY FAN

backer Bill Romanowski is already gone, having signed with the Denver Broncos on Friday. It looks like wide receiver Fred Barnett is also going to leave Philadelphia.

One person it looks like we won't lose is starting quarterback Rodney Peete, who is close to signing a $1.3 million contract with incentives that could push it as high as $1.8 million.

This really upsets me, but when you consider that the other two options, options which are still being considered, are Oakland Raider Jeff Hostetler and Green Bay Packer Ty Detmer, Peete doesn't look like such a bad investment after all.

I could live with a training camp showdown between Peete and Detmer, but I could NOT live with Hostetler. He's as old as my grandfather, but my grandfather hasn't thrown as many passes as Mr. Hostetler has.

Gymnastics

Gymnasts End Season With A Win

by Joel Schofer
Assistant Sports Editor

A split squad of Ursinus gymnasts defeated Navy 167.25 to 163.65 in Helfferich Hall on February 24th in what would be the final home meet for six Ursinus seniors.

Angela Mullan led the Bears with a 34.80 in the all-around and tied Navy's Joy Zelninski for top honors. Jen Courtney danced her way to a made her season debut on the vault and floor exercise.

Caggiano, who scored a season high 8.5 with a near flawless performance on the uneven bars, will be among four Bears competing in the National Collegiate Gymnastics Association championships March 1st and 2nd at Ithaca College. Mullan, Courtney, and Caggiano will compete in the all-around competition.

Carrie Luka has qualified on the balance beam routine of the season. Not fine. Bad. Very bad. Deplorable! Horrible!! Idiotic!!

To top it all off, Mr. Coleman, upon his much awaited return to the floor, reinscribes his bad ankle against the Pacers Friday night and is possibly out for the season.

A team that at least had a potential superstar, Coleman, and someone to play center, Wright, now has neither. This team is now not only bad, but is also small. Being small helps in the NBA. It really helps.

The more I write about the Eagles the more it pisses me off, so let's move on to something more interesting...

The Philadelphia Eagles have come up blank so far as far as free agent signings go, but it's not for lack of trying.

They made a tremendous offer to former Pittsburgh Steeler right offensive tackle Leon Searey, but he spurned their offer because of Pennsylvania's taxes or some other financial crap.

They tried to bring in San Diego Charger wide receiver Quinn Early for an interview, but he decided, after looking at the list of the Eagles currently signed quarterbacks, that he'd rather play for a team that will have someone to pass to him. I personally don't know what turned him off to the Eagles. On the list of quarterbacks, or should I say quarterbacks, was Jay Fiedler. What more could a wide receiver want?

Lomas Brown, the left offensive tackle from the Detroit Lions who put his foot in his mouth before the Eagles kicked his butt in last season's playoffs, has become the Eagles top free agent priority. He interviewed last week and it's rumored that the Eagles are his first choice, so we might get lucky yet.

As far as we're going to lose from our own roster, outside line-
Women's Basketball

Lady Bears Fall
In Conference Semis

by Charlie Weingroff
Sports Editor

Megan Larkin's potential game-tying three-point shot hit the back of the rim with three seconds to play and Johns Hopkins added two late free throws to down defending champion Ursinus, 64-59, in the semifinals of the Centennial Conference playoffs.

Hopkins (15-7) dominated the boards and out-rebounded Ursinus (15-9) 50-35, including 32-12 at the Ursinus end of the floor. The Bears were limited to one shot most of the game. Ursinus led 21-20 on Jaime Eissler's jumper with 8:35 to play in the first half. But Hopkins went on a 16-6 run to take a 36-27 lead at the intermission.

In the second half, the Bears closed to within one, 60-59, on Megan Larkin's jumper with 35 seconds remaining. However, Angie Arnold and Kristin McKeel of Hopkins sank a pair of free throws in the final 14 seconds. Steph Casperson led Ursinus with a game-high 25 points. That ties her career best, which occurred in last season's conference semifinal win over Gettysburg. Casperson scored 17 of the Bears' first 23 points to keep Ursinus in the game early.

Larkin and Eissler both added 11 points for the Bears. Julie Anderson led Hopkins with 17 points. McKee added 16, while Lori Anderson had 14. Leonard had a game-high 24 rebounds, while Anderson pulled down 14.

The Bears ended the regular season on a high note with an 86-61 rout of Allentown on Feb. 19. Laura Coultier scored a career-best 28 points, and Larkin tied her own single-game record with 22 rebounds to lead Ursinus to the win in a non-conference game.

Ursinus never trailed in the game and steadily pulled away to a 41-26 halftime lead. Allentown, ranked 7th in the Mid-Atlantic Region, never got closer than nine points in the second half. The Bears dominated the boards and held a 59-24 edge in rebounds.

Three Ursinus players joined Coultier in double figures. Casperson scored 16 points, while Larkin added 12. Dede Boies contributed 10. Larkin also broke the Ursinus single-season rebounding record. She ended the game with 267, 10 better than Trina Derstine-Stutzman's standard set during the 1990-91 season.

CHUCK'S WAGON

Pat Riley better have a plan. He better have a plan A, a plan B, and a plan Z just in case the other 23 plans don't work. When a new coach takes over a team, like Pat Riley did with the Miami Heat, you can expect changes. You can expect the fringe and maybe some mediocre players to be given the boot and the stars to stay.

There's a shocker. What I mean is in school and a little new school. Maybe that's why many football coaches ever. But he did win with what he's doing.

Christian Laettner to the Hawks gives the Hawks four players who want 50 shots a game. Add Laettner to Stacey Augmon, Mookie Blaylock, and Steve Smith, and you have 200 shots a game at least. You see 45% of them fall, and you have at least 180 points. Hey, 180 points minimum isn't that bad. Maybe the Hawks got themselves a sleeper with this deal.

Scoring 50 goals in one NHL season is pretty good. It doesn't write your ticket to Toronto or the Hall of Fame, but it does mean you have some pretty good skills. It's like 25 points a game in basketball, a .300 batting average, or 3000 yards for a quarterback.

Scoring 50 goals in a season less than a year after recovering from Hodgkin's Disease is pretty damn good. Scoring 50 goals in 50 games less than a year after recovering from Hodgkin's Disease is incredible. I guess using the associative property, Mario Lemieux is incredible. Mario Lemieux is incredible no matter what property you use. I like the Rangers so by law, I'm forced to hate the Penguins, but I can't hate Mario Lemieux. What he has done this year for the Penguins is unbelievable. The Penguins probably won't win much in the postseason, but every time they do, the reason will be Mario Lemieux.

Hockey seems to have had generation players. There's usually one guy who dominated a decade. Wayne Gretzky in the 80's. Maurice Richard (pronounced Joey Simione, with a shwah sound at the end) in the 50's. Gordie Howe in the 60's, and Bobby Orr in the 70's. Well, Mario Lemieux has covered Gretzky's final year and is trampling into Eric Lindros current tenure. If this keeps up, we need new head and shoulders about the rest players popping up every ten years, maybe Mario Lemieux will just fit in as another superstar. But for now, see what this generation has accomplished is rather remarkable. I guess the Penguins' tickets will sell all those games in 1984 was worth the price.

And all the Devils had to do was bring up the young kids.

Last week Ashok was the first guy out of many, to know that The Mon-Rick Martel's fragrance that was sprayed in many a man's face was called Arrogance. That wholesale thing in the face stuff led to the double-blindfold match with Jake The Snake way back when. For the next night Wrestling Federation Title. Question of the Week: Who was Bernard Bar the Barber Beefcake's first victim of a haircut? That's all for the week, and the pleasure was all yours.