The scientific community was still in its infancy; they had to work hard to understand the nature of the universe and its phenomena.Lockyer, however, had discovered the spectrum of sunlight, and from there on, his work led to many new insights into the composition of the universe. His observations of the Sun's spectrum allowed him to infer the presence of chemical elements in its atmosphere. This led to the development of spectroscopy, a powerful tool for analyzing the composition of distant stars and other celestial bodies.

The Sun's spectrum was rich in detail, but it was not until later that Lockyer and others realized the importance of these observations. The spectrum was like a fingerprint for the Sun, and it allowed astronomers to determine what elements were present in its atmosphere. Lockyer had made a significant contribution to the advancement of spectroscopy, and his work laid the foundation for much of the progress that would follow.

Lockyer's work was not just about the Sun; it was about the entire universe. He was a pioneer in the field of extraterrestrial spectroscopy, and his observations helped to establish the field as a legitimate branch of astronomy. His work demonstrated that the stars were made up of the same elements as the Sun, and it showed that the universe was not just a collection of isolated objects, but rather a giant, connected system.

Despite his many accomplishments, Lockyer remained humble and dedicated to his work. He was a true pioneer, and his contributions to the field of astronomy will be remembered for generations to come. His legacy lives on in the continued exploration of the universe, and in the many scientists who have followed in his footsteps.
A Young Girl's Peculiar Death.

New York, Jan. 18.—The sixteen-year-old daughter of Rev. John P. Fowlar, at Forest Hills, died of consumption, attended by Dr. Benjamin B. Bingham, of the New York Dispensary. The funeral will be held at two o'clock to-day in the offices of the New York City Savings Bank, in the attendance of relatives and friends.

The three rescued men have left San Francisco. After a voyage of forty days, the ship, the Maritaire, was lost in a gale and went to the bottom. The survivors were picked up by a tug which had been sent out to rescue them. The men were taken to New York, where they will be cared for by the Government.

One of the cherished plans of the late Senator Logan was to establish in the nation's capital a monument to his memory. The monument was to be a statue of the late Senator, and a library of books. The monument was to be erected on the site of the old Capitol building. The statue was to be of bronze, and the books were to be housed in a marble case. The monument was to be dedicated on the anniversary of the late Senator's birthday, which was January 8th. The monument was to be a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Senator and his contributions to the nation.

The late Senator Logan was a man of great and devoted to his country. He was a statesman of the highest caliber, and his death was a great loss to the nation. The monument was to be a fitting tribute to his memory, and it was to be a lasting monument to his contributions.

If you have anything to sell and want to sell it and if you want your neighbors and the rest of mankind to know that you have something to sell—no matter what it is—you have only learned to start and need not read if you will trust your instincts and the rest of mankind believe what is reasonable and right. It will help hide reduce his costs to a fraction of what is sold. As the offer was made the cost of milk-

If your milk is fresh and wholesome, no one will doubt that it is wholesome. If your milk is not fresh and wholesome, and you feel that you are doing your best to give your customers the best possible service, you should endeavor to improve your product, and you will find that the better you do the better you sell.
