Dr. "Sieb" Pancoast Resigns As Ursinus Dean of Men

Recently the entire student body of the news weekly of Ursinus, The Occident, was held by the news. The O Sieb Pancoast, Dean of Men, an influential man in the student body, is retiring from the post of dean at Ursinus. Dr. Pancoast, who has held the position for 27 years, has decided to resign because he says it has been a strain on his health. He has been a popular figure on campus and has been instrumental in many student activities. Dr. Pancoast has been a key figure in the development of Ursinus College. He has been a member of the faculty for 40 years and has served as chairman of the physics department. His work has been recognized with numerous awards, including the Distinguished Service Medal from the American Association of University Professors. He is a member of several professional organizations, including the American Physical Society and the American Association of Physics Teachers. Dr. Pancoast has been a well-known figure in the scientific community and has made significant contributions to the field of physics. He is a respected leader and a role model for his students and colleagues. His dedication and commitment to his work have been an inspiration to many. Dr. Pancoast's departure marks the end of an era for Ursinus College. His legacy will continue to be felt for many years to come. The Occident will miss him, but his contributions to the College will be remembered for generations to come. Dr. Pancoast's replacement has not been announced yet.
Beginning

Commencement is an exciting time. Parents and relatives of the graduates are on hand to congratulate and rejoicing over their favorite graduate's accomplishment. And it is proper to feel proud, for the graduate has successfully completed four years of preparation for his commencement. Now he must begin.

And beginnings are exciting times, too. For some the new beginning is as long as a stagecoach, a coachman, and a stagecoach horse. This time the preparation will be more advanced and intensive. Graduate and medical schools require the utmost of this preparation, and the student has obtained. For all the graduates, the beginning is going to be something new. But for all the graduates, the beginning is a challenge and an opportunity, the success of which will be determined by the graduate's own ambitions and efforts.

When we were in high school we were told that we were the hope of America's "tomorrow." Now that "tomorrow" is here. And the hope of tomorrow has now accepted the responsibility of adulthood. The results of their decisions will now affect many people more than themselves.

Aside from this more serious aspect of commencement there is also a melancholy atmosphere which pervades all college campuses. "The Class of '59" is here. And the college graduates have now accepted responsibility. And the discussions in our classmen will bring me home. Home just so moved by the talk and the theodolites of fancy and the philosophy of the stars.

The world smiled on me and was too lenient. It took me from a dull, uninterested childhood life and gave me the relatively incalculable blessings of college environment.

It was helpful to bring a any town of Collegeville, amidst the rolling hills which have been so friendly. I was blessed with spectators and friends and the beautiful college. I opened my eyes and revolved to think of others.

I was surrounded by people who talked, and I followed. I was led to listen. Listening brought the realization that the world was vast, varied, complex. I laughed, I sang, and dreamed. I enjoyed thinking of others.

But, as said, the world was so busy that there was much too much freedom and not enough wisdom to know it was too lenient.

And it was. And I ended the first semester of my freshman year with thoughts of changing my major and the second semester with plans of leaving school. The first semester of my sophomore year I sweated the possibilities of being incompletely or completely and at the end of second semester, I have accepted the inevitability of losing my scholarship.

I'm sure there are other"drip stereotypes of fancy" and the philosophy of the stars. But, as said, the world was so busy that there was much too much freedom and not enough wisdom to know it was too lenient.

The 1958-59 sports season will be the end of an era. Although this year will mark the end of an era, the experience and memories that it has brought will last a lifetime. The year 1958-59 will be remembered as a season of triumph and failure, joy and heartbreak. It was a season of ups and downs, of highs and lows, of laughter and tears. It was a season that tested the limits of our abilities and pushed us to our limits. It was a season that taught us the value of hard work, dedication, and perseverance.

Despite the challenges we faced, we emerged stronger and more resilient. We learned that with a strong work ethic, a good attitude, and a willingness to learn, we can achieve our goals. We learned that we can overcome adversity, and that we can bounce back from failure. We learned that we can be successful, even in the face of difficult circumstances. We learned that we can make a difference, and that we can leave a lasting impact.

The 1958-59 season was filled with memorable moments. We had our share of disappointments, but we also had our share of victories. We played some of the best teams in the country, and we fought hard to win. We learned that success is not always easy, but it is definitely worth the effort.

In the end, we can look back on this season with pride. We can look back on the memories we made, the lessons we learned, and the friends we made. We can look back on the season that will be remembered as a season of triumph and failure, joy and heartbreak, a season that will be remembered as a season of resilience and strength.

Let's take a moment to reflect on the season that was. Let's take a moment to appreciate the memories that were made. Let's take a moment to celebrate the victories, and to remember the lessons that were learned.

We can look back with pride on the season that was. We can look back with joy on the memories that were made. We can look back with gratitude on the friends that were made. We can look back with admiration on the season that was remembered as a season of triumph and failure, joy and heartbreak, a season that was remembered as a season of resilience and strength.

UNIQUE
Be reasonable and do it my way.

When in doubt, shut up!

When a woman aggressively adopts the role of master, ceremonies, we may be reas­onably certain that the only thing she is mistress of is her purse.

The most common falling for the intellectual, they deny that anything is beyond their comprehension.

Between the intellectual who creates the future, and the average man who enjoys the present, lies the battleground, the hardest task in the human race, but easier from what is difficult to do in the social order.
