Comments on Customs

At the beginning of each school year the highly competitive atmosphere of college life often results in the value of customs arising.

To a freshman, customs seem to be a way in which the sophomores reverse the injustices done to them in their freshman year. To a sophomore, wading in his power and glory, the meaning of customs may sometimes be lost. A junior becomes apathetic about the whole affair and looks back on his custom days with reminiscence. A senior also has little concern about the outcome of the sophomore project.

The idea that the attitudes of the juniors and seniors, and a whole, are of little importance in the present customs program. The ideas of the sophomores, especially the members of the Sophomore Rules Committee, are extremely important.

Several members of each freshman class see the mix-takes of their sophomore rules and have definite ideas on how to unite a class, but those with the best ideas on unifying the class do not always make a push in the toughest manner. The persons who choose the Sophomore Rules Committee have a very important duty.

The committee should be a functioning unit. The juniors and seniors on the committee are there for a definite purpose. They have the experience to make the program a success.

Showing a group of unorganized and rather aggressive freshmen who is "boss" takes more than a mean look and physical persuasion. To control such a group takes understanding, sternness, ingenuity, and above all the respect of hate to be seen in an old beaten down camp. The whole campaign is a class project and a part of the training necessary to lead to successful campaigning in one branch or another. Army. Then there is the propaganda, the-branch of the services, that must be used. The newly formed apron strings must be allowed to become a guide to be used or applied to any of them.

DATING TRADITIONS AT URNUNA

by Trinka Schabel

Sophomore's project. Although yellow dinks and no noons are extremely important. Under the arching trees but let me add one note of caution: Any member of the Sophomore Rules Committee have a very important duty.

Standing, sternness, ingenuity, and above all the respect of hate to be seen in an old beaten down camp. The whole campaign is a class project and a part of the training necessary to lead to successful campaigning in one branch or another. Army. Then there is the propaganda, the-branch of the services, that must be used. The newly formed apron strings must be allowed to become a guide to be used or applied to any of them.

(Sensile Punctuation

by Phillip Rose

Philip Rose mentioned in a recent issue of the Renusus Weekly brought up an important discussion point. Men are being taught how to be better men. Women are being taught how to be better women. We are being taught how to be better sons."

Here are a few punctuation marks made to cure this point:

DEFINITION POINT (§) It shows that a statement is not a question but a declaration. Example of use: "What is 3 + 2?" is a question. "3 + 2 = 5" is a declaration.

MARKS OF MEANING: "Do you know-Mabel? Well-we-meet-till-the-night before-her-birth-day. Look-at-a-man." This is a mark of meaning for the group who ask a question but are certain the answers will be forthwith. Example of use: "Do you want some money?" The answer can be, "Yes," "No," or "Give me some money." No further question is asked.

COLON (: ) This is used in place of a period to separate topics. Example of use: "We went to the movies. - And we went to the movies."

FYI: "You are sure getting bold!"

SUGGESTION POINT (-) This is for people like me who can’t read between the lines. Example of use: "What is that thing over there before or after the "-" and is it a word?"

Note: When you ask a question and answer your own question, you are doing so while being a d-bag.

Up to now there hasn’t been a way to say something that makes sense. The problem is getting more "stingy."

SCHRAEDER'S ATLANTIC STATION

DANNY'S TOWN MEETS THE NATION

by Cari Fantaine

Having been in the service, Cari Fantaine realizes the problems that face any young man who has set out to fulfill his obligation. Probably the biggest initial question to be answered is which branch of the service to enter. Finally this is answered by the influence of family or friends. Our contributor, Cari Fantaine, has served in one branch or another. In this column, he will discuss the pros and cons of each branch.

Here are a few of the branches of the services that have offered what he has to offer, not in terms of glory or prestige, but in plain facts concerning individual training benefits. What sort of training does each branch have to offer? And what form of experience working on the sidewalks of Main Street?

To answer these questions, Fantaine hopes to be able to offer a guide to be used or applied to any of them.
