She was certainly the loveliest little creature that ever peeped from under the lids of my blind, blue eyes. I had never seen anything so playful, so dainty, or so sweet as this little creature. She was the picture of grace and beauty, and I could not help but love her. When I held her in my arms, I felt that I was carrying a treasure, and I stroked her silky locks with my fingers, feeling her fine features, little Flirted's physiognomy.

"Oh, what a sweet child!" I said, as I turned her around and around again at the sight of her sweet face, her gentle manner, and her expression.

"She is so pretty, and so sweet!" I exclaimed, as I held her close to my heart, feeling the warmth of her little body through my arms.

"She is so sweet, and so innocent!" I thought, as I looked at her with love and tenderness.

"She is so sweet, and so innocent!" I whispered, as I kissed her soft, silky locks, feeling the warmth of her little body through my arms.

OUR TIMES.
The present may be a period in which our nation's history begins. It is a period of many events, many changes, many opportunities for growth and progress. It is a period of great promise and great potential, but also of great challenges and great responsibilities. It is a period in which we must be vigilant, in which we must be wise, in which we must be compassionate.

The failure of George Handy Smith to expend a subscription has been very regrettable. A subscription has been opened, we trust.
