The audience enjoyed the program very much, and a large amount of money was raised for the WAA.

Smaller groups of students also held meetings this week, and the stories and reports are as follows:

“Cadaverism”

Why did you come to College? Some will say because they needed a diploma for a job. Others will say it to get married. Still others will say they came to get married and many will say that they came to get an education. But what type of an education?

Certainly, the question of specialization and “cadaverism” seems to be the key to the problem.

Specialization, and the question of “cadaverism” are extreme rationalizations. A person can easily make the time for these outside interests and one life and peace must be preserved, not by someone’s errors. And education, even at the cost of a few acres, will say it leads to character. That is to say that Johnny (who had no physical instinctively)

“Baseball Player”

I’m not asking you to let on to your parents. You can throw me curves or fast ones anytime. I won’t say a word. I want to get on base, but not by someone’s errors. And please don’t give me with that. I’m too often, I have to learn to make fast and to hold on well. I don’t care about the batting order. I’ll hit first or last. I’ve even pinch-hit if I’m needed. And as for those I don’t really have. I’ll be sure to take the opposite field as far as I can and not brood over them, or feel sorry for myself.

All these I do. The only thing that I don’t have is a very Singular one. That is what you give me your chance at the plate. Then let them know I tried. Put under me and I’ll get it. And you’re not going to do that. I’m going to be more than satisfied.

Amen
