On Monday, May 17, the Men’s Student Government met to prepare for the forthcoming 1958 Customs Program. The meeting was held in the Freshman Council, Frank Cook, president of the group, and the council voted on the next year’s freshmen policies and customs in general. Afterwards, it was decided to have the tentative programs drawn up by a committee consisting of Jack Zacek, Ed Sturgis, Bill Steil, Fred Glauer and Jim San- ford. The committee was to draw up ideas and plans concerning the programs for next year and present it to the entire council. The actual scheduling of events and the minute details that would be involved in formu- lating a program would be left for the summer.

Also at this meeting Professor Harold May, president of the college, made a special announcement. The council was informed that the college would be divided into three classes for the next year. The classes would be composed of the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors. The approach to the classes would take notes and would be divided into three sections for the professors and also meeting of the groups. This was to be done to keep the freshmen students to examine them and the other groups in their four years at Ursinus.

Tonight, the committee on Customs and traditions discussed their plans for the following year. It was a very rough out- line of what was expected to be in the program and the ideas that were discussed were the nucleus for the actual Customs program for next year.

Customs

At last the MSGA has asserted itself. As one of its severest critics I pronounce these words with satisfaction. In my two years of college I have watched this decay and deterioration of our noble governmental association. I have seen it lowered from the student of academic standards; it has become merely an object of student contempt. A few months ago I saw it irrevocably shattered, and so I thought. And now I see it accomplishing something.

As we have seen, it is not too late for Custom's when the great rationalizations are logically ruled out. Nothing but sadism—plain medieval barbarity of a somewhat less than thumb-screw and rack variety.

The revanche desire inspired by every year of Customs' perpetuation of this evil—now the MSGA has decided to do something about it.

Certainly Freshmen should be taught respect. Certainly they should be allowed to develop a class and school spirit. However, I would not say that to the complainer's ignorance of the anti-drugs sentiment of the student body, Ursinus was begun as an institution for learning and scholastic improvement.

So what is left as a reason for Customs' when the great rationalizations are logically ruled out? Nothing but sadism—plain medieval barbarity of a somewhat less than thumb-screw and rack variety. Bears Win 10th Game Lose Final Tilt by 8-1

Drummond Belted But Beats F. & M.; Powell Drops 2nd; Bears Get 5 Hits

Ursinus College closed the 1958 baseball season by running its tenth game of the season, Saturday, May 24, against Franklin and Marshall. The Bears emerged triumphant, the second of four Ursinus winning pitchers in the game, picking up his fourth victory. The Bears scored early, setting 3 runs in the first inning on 4 walks and an infield hit, laid down by Bob Cauffman. Two more scored in the second after 2 were out as a result of an error by the runners.

The following day, Saturday, May 24, Ursinus traveled to Elizabethtown for the final game of the season, the Bears ended up with Ursinus suffering from their third loss. Urbes-iztow jumped on starter Louis Powell for 4 runs in the first inning. A walk, a single, and a double caused the damage. Although they added 3 more in the second, they failed to score after that. Powell brushed the other team with his pitching efforts. Not until the ninth inning when they finally sent the plate and then only enough to tie the score with a home run by Bob Famoso and a pinch hit double by Bob Knauss. Despite this, the game ended 6-3 for the Bears.

The Ursinus College Baseball Team is now left with a record of 19 wins and 5 losses. Besides being the only unbeaten team in our fine brand of baseball and our heart- held record of 8-6-1 for the season ended by Larry Cauffman.

The following statistics were compiled by the team's statistician, George Herman. The team lost their last 7 games while the batting average was .204.

Jim Wesholt led the club in hitting with a .373 average and led the team in doubles with 8. He was also the only player lead the team in triples and was also the only player to hit for the cycle. Jim also had the most RBIs with 47 and in his 10th season. He was also the only player to bat over 200 during the season.

Bob Cauffman hit .373 and was the team's leading hitter with a record of .440 and a .483 ERA.

Betas Sigma Lambda Beats Sigma Rho Lamba in 9th

On Sunday, May 18, thanks to the out of Jim Wesholt, he was tied with Larry Powell for the win. Powell took the lead in the third inning and Cauffman pitched the Bears, as John Bracken's ninth win of the season.

Beta Sig also led in errors, with 5, and finished the season with 27. Their senior pitcher, Bob Famoso, did lead in innings pitched with 19 and in his 10th season. He was also the only player to bat over 300 during the season.

Customs . . . Calmus (Continued from page 9) The author, Dave Dunfee, is a student at Ursinus College and his primary interest is the Osteopathic Association. He is writing this story as a way of sharing his experiences with his peers. He mentions that the Osteopathic Association has an active chapter at Ursinus College and that there are several events this year that he plans to attend. He also notes that the association is planning to bring in guest speakers to discuss various topics related to osteopathic medicine.

The main focus of the article is the Osteopathic Association's role in the college community. Dunfee mentions that the association has been instrumental in organizing events and providing opportunities for students to learn more about the field. He notes that the association's activities are supported by the college administration and that the students are enthusiastic about the organization.

Dunfee also mentions that the Osteopathic Association is working to attract more students and increase membership. He notes that the association is planning to hold several events this year, including a township meeting and a homecoming event. Dunfee concludes by stating that the Osteopathic Association is an important part of the college community and that he is looking forward to seeing what the organization will accomplish in the future.

Concerning the quality of the text, it appears to be a well-written and informative piece. The author has a clear understanding of the subject matter and effectively communicates his ideas. The use of active voice and specific details helps to engage the reader and make the information more memorable. Overall, this is a strong piece of writing that should be appreciated by anyone interested in the Osteopathic Association.
