Less Room for More

The decision, which was made by the college’s men’s dormitories from “doubles” into “triples,” has been the object of much discussion during the past week.

Many are the reasons why this change was brought about. It is not very far-fetched to realize that these changes are being brought about in order to permit an increase in dormitory facilities.

In the past, the dormitory system has been a great advantage to the student. It has given them the opportunity to live with their classmates and to establish a close relationship with them.

However, with the increase in the number of students, it has become necessary to find a new way of accommodating them.

This is not to say that the dormitory system is not a good one. It is, but it has its limitations.

One of the main limitations is the lack of space.

There is a certain amount of crowding in the dormitory system. This is due to the fact that there are only a limited number of rooms available.

Crowding is an inconvenience, if not a handicap. Also, our pupil-sons who wish to become members of Alpha Phi Omega, the campus’s new organization on the private pool at the conclusion of their social calendar. Social events have been at a minimum since the group’s main project was held in Bomberger Hall.

This project was proposed by the group’s main project. The project is directed toward the acquisition of more space for the college.

To understand what Alpha Phi Omega is trying to do, it is necessary to understand the role of the college’s new organization, the Alpha Phi Omega.

The college’s new organization, the Alpha Phi Omega, is a fraternal organization that is directed toward the acquisition of more space for the college.

The fraternity has been in existence for many years, and it has been very active in its efforts to acquire more space for the college.
