Happy Endings May Be Written at Commencement

By VIRGINIA FRIEDLAND

With graduation ceremonies taking place next week, everyone is looking forward to the end of the school year.

For many students, the end of the year represents a time of transition. For those who are graduating, it may be a time of relief and excitement as they prepare to move on to the next phase of their lives. For those who are returning to school, it may be a time of renewed focus and determination.

Regardless of where they are in their academic journeys, there is a sense of anticipation and celebration in the air. The end of the year is a time to reflect on the past and look ahead to the future. It is a time to say goodbye to old friends and hello to new ones.

As we approach the end of the year, we hope everyone will take the time to enjoy the moment. Whether you are graduating or returning to school, the end of the year is a special time to be celebrated.

Black is Still Not White. . .

That the past two days or three were the best two or three days ever spent by several very excellent seniors delivered in the daily chapel services both by the college chaplain and by some of the faculty. Everyone of these deserves praise. Each of them probably struck home for every person present.

Here is to say the typical student at Ursinus sit up and take notice. Developed the highest moral ideals of the community in the years to come, and for the

by Bobbe Hunt

"Do you think you could say as far as I'm concerned, I am a happy student," our pleasant thirtyish M.D. guide had in reply to our question about his field of study and research benefits.

I took it one stride and another stride. These answers typify the overwhelming spirit of all those research scientists as evidenced to us by a group during a symposium at a city university widely known for its excellence in technical development. Their attitude was defined as a quest of strange, undefined ideas and skills and their perspective on the frontiers of scientific knowledge.

In all there, you should see it. But you should do it in college! Unfortunately, not all Ursinus students have been able to experience all these things. It is possible, however, that this will not be the last college outing you will enjoy. For those who are at college, there is no reason why a teacher should be used as a guide. It is possible to make a more permanent connection between classroom and world. To do so is an opportunity to be fully utilized. It is hard to say whether the chances of success for one who has been able to make such a connection will not be found better.

A Gem of A "Ruby"

On Thursday evening of this past week, the Ursinus Ruby was distributed. From one cover to the other, the book is one of the best examples of a yearbook that any school has ever done an outstanding job. The design and content are excellent and the typography and layout are perfect. The Ruby is a gem.

All in all, this year's volume of the Ruby is an example of excellent design and layout work. The book begins with the words "Join us in a Toast". The Weekly workers were proud to present a toast--to the editors and staff of the Ruby.

U.C. Says 'Hi' to English Visitor

by Bill Montgomery

We at Ursinus wish to extend a warm welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest England on their visit to Pakistan. Mr. England, the well-known English scholar and politician, has seen the Thanes from behind the story crowds of London. His wife, Miss Margaret England, has been able to see some of the more exciting places in London. His visit to the city of London, where he has visited the New York, and for the New York.

Mr. Harvey, the well-known English scholar, has not seen the Thanes from behind the story crowds of London. His wife, Miss Margaret England, has been able to see some of the more exciting places in London. His visit to the city of London, where he has visited the New York.

Women's Senate

The members of the various women's dormitories on campus have chosen their seniors for the coming school year. Those elected are...

New Dorms...

...have been designed to house approximately... hundred and forty women students. Some of the special features to be included in the dormitories are kitchen facilities, a large room with a refrigerator, (see cut above), and several other lounges, and a large recreation room which will have facilities for shuffleboard, ping pong, television, and so forth.

Long Range Plans

President Norman E. McClure stated that the new dormitories will not replace the off-campus dormitories, now being used for housing women students. Instead, some of these dormitories will be opened for men students and others will be retained as women dorms. As a result, the net increase in the student body between 1956 and 1957 is planned to be approximately two hundred students. The dormitories are ready for occupancy at the beginning of the Fall term, 1957.
