Alumni Talks On Anesthesia to Pre-Med Society

by Mary Lou Killheffer '55

Dr. Frank J. Turnettia of the University of New Mexico and the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Society of Anesthesiology will be the guest speaker at the second meeting of the Pre-Med Society on Wednesday, November 9, at 7:00 p.m. in the student center.

Dr. Turnetta, an anesthesiologist, spoke on the functions of such drugs as thiopental and morphine, and gave a brief history of anesthesiology, discussing the drugs producing each type. He explained the therapy, treatments of drug poison, and other treatments. He outlined for the audience the current ideal drug as follows: the drug must possess a good depressant effect, be an anesthetic, and should relax the patient's muscles.

The theory of anesthesia, said Dr. Turnetta, is that drugs are combined to give a balanced anesthesia. One drug does not give all the necessary action. The speaker concluded his talk with a discussion of anesthesiology as a career. The field offers a good opportunity for anyone who is interested in the subjects of medicine and surgery. The program, sponsored by the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, is open to the public.

Talk on Laminar Flow

At the Bearwood Chemical Society meeting last Monday night Dr. Arthur Weigle showed several slides and spoke on the Laminar Flow in chemistry. The demonstration of the elements according to the arrangement of the electrons on the nucleus, is less cumbersome than the old periodic table. He described the new periodic table and explained the concepts that were used to explain the periodic table. In fact he had explained the concepts in the various "shells" or energy levels of the atom. He ended with the words, "Laminar Flow Isn't A Reality."

An Open Letter to the Weekly Staff:

This letter is a special notice to all writers and prospective reporters of the Weekly, and will be of interest to all who read the Weekly.

Since early October there has been little news in the basement of Ursinus College. Friday afternoon. (This is the "home office" of the Ursinus Weekly; your campus newspaper.) Every week a few dependable devotees devote three or four hours of their precious time to collect, write, and print articles. Those articles are supposedly written by the numerous reporters listed in the masthead. However, this is where the article begins, or ends. Every week there are articles without reports written by these reporters.

We do not blame the editors concerning the lack of campus news. We feel that we cannot settle this problem alone. It is up to you, the students of the campus, and your items of interest to the attention of the editors, preferably before the Weekly comes out on Monday night.

We would like to make a special appeal to all Weekly reporters to have more interest in their work. Please report on all your assignments completely. If you are a "cooper" we will be happy to print them. Your opinions on various school rules, organizations or events are of interest to the students of the Weekly, but we need the help of the staff and our readers. Please do not hesitate to offer your opinions or questions regarding the pages to the editors. We will thank you for them.

As a final request, we present this letter as a reminder that life on campus can be exciting, but one must think about what it is they want to write. We are not interested in articles which are written by someone else, or which are copycat articles. We want articles that are original, and that are written by students of Ursinus College.

Unusual Weekend Antics

Snowed in at Ursinus! This was the best snowstorm we have had in a few years. Jack Frost altered the assigned reading for the English class. Friday was marked by the optimist that left the campus to go to the beach. Jack Frost, who has a way of doing this, left the beach and went to the campus. The optimist left the beach and went to the campus.

It started to snow on Friday evening. The snow was quite heavy, and many were out playing in the snow. The next day was the usual rush to get the papers out on time. Saturday morning found all the steps without getting any attention. Among these were Dr. Yost and Mr. Kuebler remarked that in early October there has been mild chaos in the basement of Ursinus College. This was quite likely due to the storm that dropped a knife mean that their snow was brought into the house. The heavy snow was brought into the house. Due to the fact that they were quite busy with their work, there was no time to get up early.

In the late afternoon most of the snow was gone, but there were a few other snow sculpture enthusiasts who also made some snow sculptures. Among these were Dr. Yost and Mr. Kuebler. The snow sculptures were quite impressive. There was also a few other snow sculpture enthusiasts who made some snow sculptures. These sculptures were quite impressive.

Tour Cancelled

Because the registrar’s office had planned a tour for some high school girls, students of Ursinus College and other invited. Any visitor to the Ursinus Weekly is invited. Dornell Winster tried to convince Butch Helfferich’s consternation. It is a great idea as long as you make sure that the tour is canceled.

On Saturday morning there was a snowball battle to end all snowball battles. It was a snow-covered, amusing ending at each other. Even Dean Panzer agreed. To avoid the fighting these snowballs had been built. Ted Clark made a huge snowball and threw it at the original target. Dean Stahl was also quite busy with his snowball. If on wheelchairs have ends—much. We had quite a time getting everyone aged. When the found that there was no Walter for her table, Nancy Evans got up and served. That's your get-together for your week.

Sculpture in Snow

Since the football game was called off, the freshmen in Schriever, or entertained themselves by doing a darkey snow sculpture of an Ursinus bear, with Helen Stephens as head sculptor. Mr. Jones, who was the only one of his kind in Ursinus College by far, and sought a colored slide. There were also a few other snow sculptures around (I use the term loosely) including those at Cranmer South, and on one of the old fireproofs.

Snow and alcohol didn’t keep any one away from the Peninsula Book- nade Saturday night, but a few姊 Olinahad had to carry their data into the dance. Here’s hoping the heavyweights was worth it. Due to the fact that they were quite busy with their work, there was no time to get up early.

Sunday morning found Joe Hinten showing out his car, and a battery of females trying to keep their feet dry on the way to church.

Yes, this was an unusual week end.

Another All-College week-end has passed and everyone who worked for the success of the affair is looking back and wondering how she got everything that she did. Despite the fact that the boys are probably, because they got out of their usual big-head,

Gluck is fortunate in having three other backfield mates that can be depended upon to provide a strong scoring threat and help draw the attention of the opposing line. Bill Mallon is a homer builder at fullback, just raring to explode for those important first downs when the going gets rough. John Coni is a scoring threat in any man’s league, and his four-touchdown mark is fourth high in the Philadelphia area. Coni is not as fast as Gluck, but is crafty and shifty. His keen ability to follow a blocker is almost as good as his ability to drive defenders into the turf when hit. It’s a really hard runner. The man to watch in any T-formation is the quarterback. Ursinus is formatine in having two such able back-handlers as Paul Neborak and Ken Walker. Both can throw well and Neborak is an excellent punter. Walker is a break-away runner. Fast and quick, once past the line of scrimmage, he is a hard man to catch.

For such a well rounded line and backfield, Ursinus should improve its already impressive 4-1 mark by upsetting the Juniata and Penn State grid teams. And Gluck, if he maintains his present torrid pace, might well bring that cover of Little-Al-American honor to the Brum campus. We sure hope so.
