The Bluelight Hits A Stoplight: Kmart files for Chapter 11

Carissa Harless & Ann Storehahn

During the 2000-2001 eras, Kmart's corporate office located near the Masonic Temple on the east side of Kutztown. This location served as the corporate headquarters and distribution center for the chain, which was once a fixture in the local community but has struggled in recent years due to increased competition from discount retailers and online shopping.

Kmart's financial troubles began to mount in the early 2000s, with the company reporting losses in 2001 and 2002. In 2001, the company announced that it would close 250 stores nationwide, affecting thousands of employees. In 2002, Kmart filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, seeking to reorganize its debt and reduce its costs. The company attempted to save itself by closing unprofitable stores, selling off assets, and restructuring its debt. Despite these efforts, Kmart emerged from Chapter 11 bankruptcy in 2003, but continued to face challenges in the competitive retail landscape.

Since then, Kmart has undergone several changes, including being acquired by Sears Holdings Corporation in 2005. The company has continued to struggle, with closures and restructuring efforts ongoing. As of 2021, Sears Holdings has struggled with debt and competition from other retail chains, and the future of the Kmart brand remains uncertain. This excerpt from the BlueLight highlights the challenges faced by Kmart and the broader retail industry during this period.

Not Everyone Loves Valentine's Day

Sarah Ewald

Editorial Assistant

It's that time of year again, when the stores and candy companies start jam-packing the aisles full of red and pink and not Valentine's Day crap.

It's the time of year when people in the world seem to be in love, and everywhere you turn there is a reminder of the fact that you are single, lonely, and possibly heartbroken.

Now, boyfriends or not, I have never been a fan of the big V-Day. It has always seemed like a day has gotten a reputation of being a magical day when Cupid's arrows strike the hearts of the people we love, but the reality is that it is overrated. It seems like every year, it is easier to find people who don't like this day because they are single,, lonely, and/or sick of the sickeningly pink and red roses that the stores are selling. I am one of these people. I am single, I am lonely, and I am tired of Valentine's Day.

In my opinion, Valentine's Day is a day of having to be with someone you love, but you can also choose to spend it alone. If you are single, you can choose to spend it with your friends, family, or doing something you enjoy. If you are in a relationship, you can spend it together or apart. It's a day of love, but it doesn't have to be forced upon you. So this year, I'm choosing to spend Valentine's Day doing something I enjoy, not something I feel obligated to do.

I think that parking should be a one-time fee at the College. If you live on campus, you already pay for parking, but if you live off campus, you should be able to park for free. This would help alleviate some of the stress for students who live off campus and need to park.

I can't remember how many times I've watched 'The Graduate' or 'Breakfast at Tiffany's,' so I'm not sure if I'm the only one who thinks that Valentine's Day is overrated. But I do know that there are other people who feel the same way. So let's stop forcing the love and focus on the good things in life, like friendship and family.

I hope everyone has a wonderful and non-cliché Valentine's Day. As shown above, it doesn't have to be a special day of romance. It can be a day to spend with friends or family, or even just to relax and enjoy some time alone. Whatever you choose to do, just remember that love is important, but it doesn't have to be perfect.

I Am Sam; All You Need is Love

Wytan Marsalis is Coming to Campus!

Sarah Jessica Parker at Carrie Bradshaw in her hit series “Sex and the City.”

The Women of Sex and the City: A Wild Ride

Sarah Jessica Parker and Dakota Fanning in “I Am Sam.”

Sam is a film that will teach you an emotional way. The film is directed by Jessie Nelson, whose mind is being reently ranted and the men are unable to care for his child. Written by Kristine Johansson and Jesse Nelson, the film shows how important a bond with a man who is mentally retarded and that this is the first time they be allowed to pick a prostitute. At the police station, the police believe that this is the first time they have a person not trying to pick up a prostitute as Sam had claimed. Dakota Fanning, who is a newcomer to Hollywood, is wonderful as Lucy Dawson. Her character is very believable and is a warm-hearted person. This film is very moving and definitely a surprise for some. The performances by Penn and Fanning are remarkable and touching. The Screen Actors Guild has nominated both Penn and Fanning for their performances. Lisa Dwan and Rose D’Onofrio. I believe this is a film that will make an impact on the audience and will be respected for its performances and just all around a great film. If you feel like you are interested in a good film — get a great story, I Am Sam is the film to see.

Some Houses are Born Bad: Scary House Movies

Sarah Antinavage
Grizzly Arts & Entertainment

with the release of the miniseries Stephen King's Rose Red, and thought we'd take a look at haunted house movies as well.

Let's start with Rose Red (1999), a fairly straight-forward story about a young autistic girl, her psychic, and a character in the mini-series based on the book The Diary of a Young Girl. Rose Red is a remake of the earlier film Rosemary's Baby. The storyline goes something like this: a number of people move into a house on Mountain in nearby Schwenksville, PA. Many ski resorts also offer skiing or snowboarding. Going to a bar or club, or going to a concert is also a fun thing to do, especially if you're worried about not having the right outfit, or if you're a woman, or if you're just not sure about not having the right outfit, or if you're just not sure about not having the right outfit.

Are you sick of sitting inside waiting for the weather to become more agreeable? If so, you may be looking for something fun to do to the rest of this winter, and many activities in which you can participate that will take the boredom out of the cold. Everyone knows that sledding is a fun way to get a little crazy and take a break from the daily routine.

In this case, sledding is considered to be one of the top pastimes at the winter vacation community located in Rockport, Massachusetts. His sources of New England are the most part of the magnificent works-sentiment of the Atlantic coast. Stath has not had an exhibition devoted entirely to film in over forty years, Philip and Marilyn are leading patrons of the festival each year and have a large collection of work. This exhibition was curated by Richard Folk and contains 20 pieces from the collection and 20 pieces from the collection. Stath's collection will run from January 20 through April 5, 2003 and can be found in the Upper Gallery of the Pennsylvania Museum. Stath is the only artist to be shown at the Pennsylvania Museum during the exhibition.

If you want to do something fun in the snow but don't have constant access to the white stuff, try going skiing or snowboarding, or going to a concert, or going to a concert. Many ski resorts also offer skiing or snowboarding. Going to a bar or club, or going to a concert is also a fun thing to do, especially if you're worried about not having the right outfit, or if you're just not sure about not having the right outfit, or if you're just not sure about not having the right outfit.

There are many things you can do this winter that will keep you entertained and until you hear those first chirpings from the birds outside your window. If you're worried about not having the right outfit, or if you're just not sure about not having the right outfit, or if you're just not sure about not having the right outfit.

  - Cherries: The past revisited. Cherries, cherries, cherries! If a bag with cherries on it is not a part of your wardrobe, it is not a wardrobe.
  - Dahila Skirt: Pastel colors like pink, green, yellow and blue. The difference this year is that all of those colors have been muted.
  - Ruffle Top: Cherry, cherry, cherry, cherry! The trend is for the cherry. The Victoria’s Secret catalog has a white tank with a yellow and green pineapple on the front of it. The key is to find one that is more of a lime green or yellow. Your husband suit is also a suit where you might not find that same popular vegetable. Several items are paired with a pair of more modern trousers and pointy-toed heels. The trend is for the black top with the ivory skirt, or vice versa.

- Flamenco Inspired: This spring fashion for women is all about what’s different. Diversity through color, style, and the inspiration for the newest trend is what is on the runways and in the mall near you. This spring was inspired by a return to the pastel era and by a return to the Renaissance. Black and ivory pieces with loose, floaty sleeves are paired with a pair of more modern trousers and pointy-toed heels. The trend is for the black top with the ivory skirt, or vice versa.

Sixers Continue To Show Championship Potential

The Sixers' worst shooting was a relatively familiar occurrence for Philadelphia fans who witnessed a prolific scorer during the last preseason game. This couldn't be due to a lack of effort, as the team continued to shoot with renewed intensity. The Sixers have won their last nine games and are 28-19 overall. They have shown a great amount of confidence in the past few meets and it has been evident in their record (7-12). The team's confidence is just so up right now. They are not sure what they are doing, but they are doing it well. The freshmen are never going to do anything wrong.
