In approving the appropriation of $400 to the Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia, Gov. Smith issued the following statement:

The necessity of the endowment of the arts is now more imperative than ever. The arts are the ornaments of life, and necessary to the enjoyment of health and happiness, and to the elevation of the mind. It is a matter of great moment that we should not only provide for the support of the arts in this country, but that we should take care that they be carried on in a proper manner.
