Kelly Gray greatly edited in Chief At any college across the country, students will most likely hear the term LCB. However, many of these students do not know exactly what the LCB means or how they work in their state. Everyone believes that the LCB just comes to collect taxes, to sum them, but in reality the agency has more responsibilities. The Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board is an agency that oversees the alcoholic beverage business industry. It is also in charge of the licensing and regulating of alcoholic and offers an alcohol education program. The Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board Mission Statement reads, "To provide regulation over the beverage alcohol industry in Pennsylvania in a fair and consistent manner, to provide the best service to our customers through modern, convenient outlets, superior product selection, and competitive prices in a controlled environment and to provide factual information on alcohol and its effects through a comprehensive alcohol education program." Although the PLCB helps the state through their alcohol education program, they make sure every college is following Pennsylvania state laws on alcohol. The PLCB has created a program called the PA Collegiate Alcohol Initiative. This program, with the help of the U.S. Department of Education, was designed by the PLCB and the Pennsylvania Association of College and Universities. Their goal is to work with the colleges and universities in Pennsylvania to combat high risk drinking among the students. Other goals of the program are for the community to help combine the accessibility of alcohol, reliable enforcement of laws, established alcoholic free options, and provide campus activities that do not include the use of alcohol. A part of the PLCB's job is to make sure that every college complies with the following regulations in Pennsylvania. The PLCB has contacted every college about their alcohol policy and the college has provided answers for the agency. Every student is told the rules of the alcohol policy at the beginning of the year, but everyone knows that sometimes a student can forget. Here is a refresher on the basic rules for the campus. In order to have a party on campus, the party must be registered through Residence Life. When the party opens to the campus, every student entering the party must have an Ursinus College I.D. A guest must have the registration slip from Campus Safety, and an I.D. proving you are 21 years old. Ursinus College follows the Pennsylvania laws that prohibit the consumption of alcohol by minors, which is under the age of 21. Though the PLCB may not be the favorite agency in the state, this agency does provide information to state students about their alcohol policy and how to have a fun time! Slow Internet Becoming a Problem

Bridge Hunt

Thursday, September 26, 2002

What is so long-talking? This has been a common thought of students in North Hall this semester when using the Internet.

Many students have been frustrated with the slow connection. It has taken a great deal longer, and sometimes been impossible to complete tasks such as checking email or coming to class. For this reason, these problems mainly occurred the first two weeks of classes.

This has caused some students to look for alternative means to connect to the Internet.

Like last year, there has been a significant increase in Ursinus’s network traffic at the start of the semester. There has been at least a 30% increase since last spring.

Only a small part of this has to do with an increased number of students and laptops on campus.

The real problem can be attributed to the increased number of students using laptops while on campus.

Last summer, the network system was quite good and had the desired result of providing the highest speed access for all other interactive services.

At the beginning of this semester, the network system was inadequate. There were too many students sending and receiving messages for music downloading or listening to music.

Composing services is continuously setting up new bandwidth in order to provide students with the best possible service.

UCNet Available through Career Services

Amy Hase

Grizzly Staff Writer

UC CareerNet is a new online system created by Career Services to assist students in finding internships.

UC CareerNet can be found on Ursinus’s home web page under Career Services. This new online system keeps track of and manages all full-time and part-time jobs, internships, and local babysitting gigs.

The purpose of this new system is to educate and inform and increase awareness of job opportunities available to students.

UC CareerNet does this by providing jobs for students in different industries. This information is helpful to students in the decision-making process.

Students looking for jobs with specific criteria can search by job function, industry or city. Students are also able to upload their cover letter, resume and transcript.
Lisan! The Ursinus Dive Team has a tradition, for example, of cleaning up trash. On September 24, 2001 for International Cleanup Day, they cleaned up trash. They because they want to make the earth a better place. In fact, this is a great idea for all of us. We should clean up whatever we can. They are strict on enforcing the rules. They won't be happy until they figured out who did it. They are also strict on enforcing the rules. They are strict on enforcing the rules.

I am a member of the Dive Team. I clean up trash and other unwelcome mate­

International Cleanup Day is a day that the question was asked, "Do you feel safe drinking?" Some may remember a show that MTV premiered this past summer called, "Sorority Life". The show swept ratings having some of the highest ratings ever. It was searching for the perfect sorority. Some people think that the show is just for entertainment. Some people think that the show is just for entertainment. Some people think that the show is just for entertainment.

But it also left some viewers who felt that the show did not portray sororities in a positive light. The concept of the show was simple. MTV cameras documented and diaryed Sigma Alpha Epsilon Pi, a primarily Jewish sorority, for the 2002-2003 quarter. MTV was there every step of the way, filming video while the new members observed the sorority, pledged, and finally became members. The majority of the show focused on the new pledges going through the new member education process. MTV cameras captured every car fight, every tear shed, and each of the girls told the truth. The sisters told the truth. The sisters told the truth. The sisters told the truth.

The pledges had to do it together, it seemed like they were individuals and not a unified team. The pledges had to do it together, it seemed like they were individuals and not a unified team. The pledges had to do it together, it seemed like they were individuals and not a unified team.

Berman Collects

Museum’s Permanent Collection Holds Wide Variety of Objects

Lisa Minard
Grizzly Staff Writer

Now that everyone has read about the basics of Berman, I’m going to discuss the most important aspect of the museum: the permanent collection. This is a basic term for the objects that the museum actually owns or has long-term permanent loan. Most of the objects shown in the gallery exhibits are not from the permanent collection. These objects are usually borrowed in their entirety, or sometimes a mix from other museums. The permanent collection of the Berman museum is very diverse, but there are quite a few areas that have a good concentration of artwork. Although the museum is relatively small, you may be surprised by the immense variety of works in the permanent collection. This may seem like a broad review, but I am hoping everyone can find something interesting in the collection from this article. One of the museum’s special strengths is its Pennsylvania German folk art collection. Ursinus College received quite a large selection of Pennsylvania German manuscripts works from the former Pennsylvania Folklife Society in the 1970s. It includes over one hundred greeting cards and topchotch, which are both and fun and educational. A few objects from the late 1700s through the mid-1800s. These works are part of a larger art form called pastorale, which literally refers to the pastoral scene or landscape. These are usually very colorful and decorated with elaborate drawings and wooden carvings. Pastorales include images of scenes from everyday life, love, marriage, and birth. They often were made as gifts to mark special occasions such as the birth of a child or marriage. One 1800s is part of the collection. Gilot, the mother of Picasso, was a distinguished artist in her own right. When she was very young, she was moved her independent spirit to Berman. A collection of late 19th century French paintings, by local artists such as Baumbach and Schoeller, are also a highlight of the collection.

Some other interesting items are a portrait by Rembrandt Peale of a young officer, the late 18th century. Peale was one of the very famous early American artist family. He painted George Washington three times from life, the last time when he was 79 years old. The Japonese-Woodblock prints are part of the museum’s collection, as is Chinese ceramic art, art prints and Izniks from Spain, and American folk art, including Salvador Dalí. A collection of 19th century American paintings, by local artists such as Baumbach and Schoeller, are also a highlight of the collection. One final piece of note is an embroidered sampler by Rebecca Custer, ancestor of General George Custer, dated 1828. These objects and many more make up the museum’s permanent collection. As you can see, there is quite a range of areas in which the museum has artifacts. Unfortunately, in the current museum facility, there is no room to display even small portions of this collection. Plans to expand the museum have been canceled due to a perceived lack of student interest in the museum. So please, if you are interested, make an effort to attend some of the upcoming events at the museum. Share any ideas you have with faculty or student staff who work at the museum. It is through their strong student interest that the museum can hope to stay as strong and expand, both in size and community outreach.

Every little girl fantasizes about her wedding day, the arrangement of flowers and dresses, and the man waiting for her at the altar of the aisle. I can only hope my wedding is as lovely and joyful as the celebration in My Big Fat Greek Wedding. You don’t have to be Greek to appreciate the humor of this movie. Anyone with a family gathering will find scenes with an overprotective father who wishes the bride to find a good husband, his daughter’s dream, and a helper of help-up-his-left is just one of the scenarios you want to get through. You will see how one very popular and diverse character sketches might explain why this independent film that took only $5 million to make has grossed over $100 million in sales. My Big Fat Greek Wedding starts out as a modern day Cinderella story and ends with the traditional ending — the wedding, with a splash of the usual complications and misunderstandings. The plot hinges on her hilarious journey showing nothing is as it
