Ten years ago the tariff question was the main issue in campaign speeches and the newspapers. The country was then divided into two almost equally balanced parties, the protectionists and the free-trade men. The free-trade party was defeated, and the protectionists gained control of the government. Since then the tariff question has become less important, and other issues have taken its place. But the law of supply and demand is still in effect, and the price of goods is determined by the law of supply and demand. The price of goods is determined by the amount of money in circulation, and the amount of money in circulation is determined by the earning power of the people. The earning power of the people is determined by the amount of labor, and the amount of labor is determined by the amount of land and capital. The amount of land and capital is determined by the amount of labor, and the amount of labor is determined by the amount of land and capital. WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington correspondent,

May 5th, 1889.

The leading Republicans now in the house are very anxious to introduce a bill to the effect that every state shall have a chief executive and a legislature. This bill was introduced by Mr. Webster and Mr. Brooks, and was referred to the committee on the subject. It is expected that the bill will pass the house and go to the Senate, where it will be read and passed. The bill will be sent to the President, and it is believed that the President will sign it.

An Old Farmer's Invention.

An old farmer who has for many years lived on the banks of the Ohio River, has invented a new machine for cutting the grass. The machine consists of a large knife, which is attached to a long handle, and is moved back and forth by the operator. The machine is very simple, and is operated by a boy.

Cotton-tail was too fleet, and after made a home run, and the eager pursuers were elated, but prevented positive recognition of what scattered audience. Distance was interestingly watched by a somewhat Auspicious Mr. Horace Fetterolf, with J. B. Lippincott and others. Favorable weather are needed to continue husking yet to do. A few days of way is being very much improved in this issue. Hunters this side, should combine their efforts. -Horace Fetterolf.

By the present method of feeding, the French produce superior beef, and at a small cost. Their feeding is so well arranged that the animals are kept in a constant state of comfort, and they never are exposed to hardships or privations. The French feed nothing but milk, commencing at an early period of life, and continuing it throughout all the stages of their growth. They feed nothing but milk, which is so well digested by the laws of nature that the growth of the animal is perfectly symmetrical, and the parts are exactly in proportion.

In preparing the meat, the French are perfectly willing to part with it at a moderate price, and they are always ready to dispose of it to the best advantage. They are also willing to dispose of it to the best advantage, and they are always ready to dispose of it to the best advantage.
