ENGLISH UNIVERSITY HAS 88 CLUBS; ATMOSPHERE IS INTERNATIONAL

Willa Hall, Stokoe Bishop
Bristol, England

To the editor:

"Britain is developing. I had the idea that English universities were not interested in fee-paying activities, but I've found that's not necessarily the case." The University of Bristol has no fewer than forty-eight (48) different clubs and societies. The president of the university's student council, back's the first comment about that: "Activities Councils are sports clubs to which you pay a membership fee in order to participate in a particular sport. Those clubs..." Of course with infirmity, each have their schedule and governing bodies. "YMCA's, physical training clubs, local... if you are good enough, you will play on the varsity team. But some members of the club will join the Ed. RC's because depending on the number of students in the club, the college may have difficulty finding their athletes. Also, the clubs have an "honorable president" usually a faculty member, looking after the work going on by the club members, and a secretary. (how lucky the varsity club makes its own arrangements for traveling expenses. Each player making the trip pays a bus fare separately. If you want to play for a professional club, have to pay for travel expenses, while the club will pay for the hotel, meals, and transportation costs.

Sports Informal

Sports are played rather informally by the teams. Informal games result in small and generally spirited activity. Sports include judo, hockey, and association football (soccer). There is a lot of "English enthusiasm" I understand, at cricket matches is contained in the annual meeting of the cricket club, "That was very good." The average player has to take two weeks or twice a week, and that gripping detail, playing for a smaller group of players. The English footballers seem to be almost every club has a set of its own, and are played mostly for "the sake of the game". The coaches are usually former players. The English have a lot of sports are lacrosse, netball, fencing, field hockey, and hurling, as well as archery.

Leap Year Tactics Are Disclosed; Sirens Have A Heyday--Males Beware

by Jean Stewart '52

Ha, girls, I hate to be trite, but do you know what year this is? Yes, it's the year of the highest taxes in the country's history, and it's the year of the presidential election, and for all the freebooters of this species this may be all it will mean. But there is a desperate minority—which I am forced to mem- ber myself—which finds one thought continually lurking in the deepest abyss of its collective mind—LEAP YEAR!

After a certain point in the life of the average girl she stops shaving her legs, drawing out her rusty brass knuckles, and ning her beat trap in anticipation of the event. Her approach becomes more subtle. She may linger for five or more cups of coffee at the nearest tea shop, or she may frequent the business section of town at regular intervals, or she may chuck her old perfumes in favor of Altar of Old Brandy or a similar scent par- ticularly inviting to the male ani- mal.

There are three types of girls who observe the progress of this unusual period known as Leap Year. They are: 1. the interested type, 2. the eager type, and 3. the rather lighthearted type.

The first group watches with mild enthusiasm as group 2 and 3 knock themselves out, since the girls in this group are usually so sure of themselves that they have to do little more than put on one additional strike of mascara to have a dozen more men falling at their feet. The dis- gusting thing is that anyone else they add to their lists duplicates the amount of material available for the other girls to work on. The members of this group go into the affair with a rather lighthearted attitude and usually come out with a bruise or two.

The second group makes use of the idea. "If you are where men are, chances are that sooner or later something in trousers is bound to notice you", and they do nothing more astonishing than make them- selves obviously available.

The third group is the frighten- ing one. Their methods are pretty much the knock-down, drag-out variety, and the results may be horrifying at times. Their ages may range from seventeen to seventy, and the ease of their target varies equally, but not in direct propor- tion. Tired old bachelors must learn to because of matrimony women with overdeveloped mother com- plexes and exasperated teen-agers, and any single man must keep up a constant vigil if he is to escape intact and in the same solitary

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests No. 33...THE SHEEP

"They can't pull the wool over my eyes!"

They tried to fool him with the "quick-trick" cigarette mildness tests—but he wouldn't go astray! We know as well as he there's only one fair way to test cigarette mildness. And millions of smokers agreed.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke, on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments. Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Thrust, T for Taste), you'll see why...

After all the Mildness Tests...

Robert Swett is Honored By Philadelphia Scribes

On the afternoon of Tuesday, January 15, the Pen and Pencil club, an association of prominent Philadelphia sportswriters, gave a banquet for the purpose of handing out a basketball "player of the week" award to two players. Representing the large colleges was Tom O'Gara, freshman sensation from La Salle, while the small college circle was represented by Bob Swett, Ursinus court star.

Has 17.5 Average

There is not much doubt that 6'7" Bob is the backbone of this year's court squad as evidenced by his performance on the hardwoods. In ten games the lanky pivot man has poured 176 points through the hoop for an average of 17.6 per game. It was simply a case of the advantage of height and experience.

Garnet Basketball Team

Downed by Brunius, 69-61

by Ted Wann 52

In the most exciting game of the Torso for Brunius, one of their most potent shooting displays of the season had Swarthmore on the heels of 69-61, for the first time in 1951-52.

Shooting was far from being the whole story though as the Bears thwarted Swarthmore's every attempt to win by brilliant team play and defensive work. The expected scoring duel between Casey Joe Carroll and Bob Schwimmer was limited to the whole game but built around their scoring efforts. The Brunius good man played his final game in three years by pouring in eleven field goals and ten fouls for a total of 28 points. swarthmore's Joe Carroll almost matched this scoring effort by scoring nine field goals and ten fouls for 28 points.

Second Third Place Attack

In the third period the Bears started to move the ball and were able to find several openings against the Swarthmore defense. The Ursinus, Adolp Boyd, and Parent and Margarite Merrifield, who played the entire game, were able to find several openings in the center. During the last quarter both squads scored several times from the court and also the foul line to make the final score 73-67.

Junior Varsity Girls Basketball Squads Defeat Swarthmore Team

The Ursinus junior varsity basket ball team defeated Swarthmore's jv team by 23-13 on Friday night. The Ursinus girls were led by Marjorie Merrifield, who played with little fouling. Swarthmore played with little fouling. Pre-Medders Hear Arthritis Lecture

The subject of Arthritis was discussed by Dr. Sprecker of the University of Pennsylvania at a meeting held Tuesday night in 611 by the Junior Pre-Medical Society. The address by Dr. Sprecker was preceded by a short business meeting at which the site and date for the coming pre-med diner-dance were discussed and voted upon.

In the address of the evening, Dr.
Sprecker, a former graduate and now a teacher at the U. of P., outlined the history of arthritis, the different forms it takes, and its treatments, past and present. He particularly stressed the fact that although there are many remedies more successful in the arthritis in the United States than there are heart disease sufferers, there are less than 24 specialists in this branch of the U. S. Dr. Sprecker discussed the so-called "miracle drugs," ACTH and cortisone, and said although they are of great importance their use is strictly limited, mainly because of the many undesirable side-effects and after-effects they produce. At the end of the discussion Dr. Sprecker answered questions from the members of the society.
