The Flying Horse.

It was not the early bird that got the worm, but she that waited longest before her breakfast. However, when the day dawned, I knew that the sun was not far behind. As I was about to leave the house, I noticed a strange sight. The sky was filled with a strange, golden glow. It was as if the sun had decided to rise early and give the world a special treat. I couldn't help but feel a sense of excitement as I made my way towards the nearest beach. There, I saw a group of people gathered, their faces lit up with joy as they watched the sun rise. It was a moment of pure beauty, a moment that I knew I would never forget.

The Newfoundland.

It was a moment of pure beauty, a moment that I knew I would never forget. The Newfoundland, a breed known for its love of water and its intelligence, was nowhere to be seen. I searched for it, but it was nowhere to be found. However, I soon noticed a strange sight. The sky was filled with a strange, golden glow.
