Mystery Eater

New Hotspot in Town

If you’re looking for a bite to eat after the movies at Oaks, or if you’re just tired of Rocco’s, go off 422 in Oaks. Max and Em’s is the new hotspot in the area.

On a Thursday night at 6:30, I walked into Max and Em’s. It was unusually quiet for a bar. The decor was friendly with a small bar and a few tables across from ours. I moved onto my heavy sandwich, which was served on a tray of ooey-gooey chocolate chip cookies.

Although we were disappointed about the cookies we knew we couldn’t go wrong with anything that was chocolate. We were right.

The taste of the grill. The bun was fresh and the flavor went well with the barbeque sauce complemented it well.

After Molly dropped off our entrees, she kept on top of the tables, even the table across from ours. Our experience was much different in comparison to our earlier decision. Molly tried to change the way from the back but she seemed to be out of patience with us because she was too busy to take care of us.

We ordered chocolate chip cookies. The flavor was great in the pastry. The were served with whipped cream and peanut butter for the bun and an even customized sugar topping.

With the start of New Member Education (NME), many students are willing to answer questions about the organization. Many of the rushes have regarding whether Blackboard is a blackboard or not. Blackboard is not just a visual aid. It is more than just a visual aid. It is also used as a tool outside of the classroom for an Ursinus student, homepage with a daily horoscope. If they don’t know what to print out nearly a whole semester, but they also have the desire to have one.

has never occurred to you that there are too many of them? Maybe this place just too tiny?"

Well, you're not the first. We hear it all the time! A recent issue of Rolling Stone asked you if you had ever thought about who will win the Oscar. We do, so we thought we'd share our results. According to the magazine, you can predict who will win the Oscar by looking at the front pages of the tabloids. If you see a picture of a celebrity looking at the tabloids, chances are that celebrity will win. But be careful, some celebrities look at the tabloids because they're looking for a story to write about themselves. In this issue, we've included a story about a young woman who accidentally stumbled upon a tabloid and decided to look at it. She thought it was a picture of herself, but it was actually a picture of a celebrity wearing a costume. The young woman was surprised, but then she started to laugh. The celebrity was surprised, too, but then she started to cry. The young woman was surprised, but then she started to laugh again. The celebrity was surprised, too, but then she started to cry again. The young woman was surprised, but then she started to laugh... and so on. It seems like the story is never-ending, but it's worth reading to see what happens next. In the meantime, we wish you a happy reading!
Super Bowl XXXVIII began as everyone had anticipated. It was a game of two defensive powerhouses going head to head with minimal scoring involved. The Panthers maintained a dominant defensive line against the Patriots, restricting their secondary team. However, going into the game, the offenses of the two teams were the complete opposite.

Tom Brady, a sixth round quarterback draft pick from Michigan, was playing in the Arena Football League, began to show his confidence and stamina at the beginning of the season.

The Panthers started the game able to drive the field that couldn’t put points on the board. Jake Delhomme began the game 1-for-9 passing and the Panther offense was going nowhere.

Mike McCarthy, the Bear’s coach, was first to strike in the 2nd half when Jake Delhomme ended up 16-33 with four interceptions. The Panthers were unable to convert and had to give the field to the Patriots.

Adam Vinatieri missed an easy 31 yard field goal on a 4th and 9 from the Patriots 23 yard line with nine seconds left in the game. Delhomme ended up 16-33 with four interceptions. The Panthers were unable to convert and had to give the field to the Patriots.

The next 12 play drive ended in a 39 yard touchdown pass to ailing wide receiver David Givens. It seemed the two teams would go on to halftime with the score 14-7 in favor of the Panthers.

A quick kick by the Panthers was taken by Patriots running back Stephen Davis for 12 yards to the Panthers 47 yard line. The next play, Stephen Davis is hiked up the middle for 21 yards, a fast that could have come at a better time for the Panthers.
