Festive Plans Ensue for Banquet, Parties, Candlelight Service

By Jane Bartell '52

Deck the halls and take a bow, indeed, and that grand old Christmas spirit of singing from each crack and corner of every dorm will remain on campus for another week of classes before the ball of the season gets underway.

Highlighting the week's activities will be the exciting Christmas banquet and dance on Wednesday evening. Previous preparations have been made in advance for the decoration of the tables, and it is felt at the banquette that the girls of tomorrow will have an opportunity to display their cleverness and originality in the art of table dressing. Women are asked to refer to the dining room at 8:45 p.m. in full festive regalia for the big formal dinner of the year. The booking of table decorations will be held after the first course when the committee of preceptors will inspect the tables and cast the deciding votes. The winning class will be announced at the close of the meal, and a prize will be awarded the winner.

Dancing and Singing

After an exchange of greetings between presidents of the WBOA, a charade will be performed in addition to the adjourned to the Thompson-Gayen night and the students will be divided into groups with a special entertainment will be in progress at the dinner. On a dance floor, the students will be awarded the winner.

Men's Council Clarifies Stand on Fresh Customs

In last week's letter to the Student Body, there appeared a letter written by Burt Hardin in which several points were raised the next action taken by the council in abolishing the Sophomore Night. In an effort to clarify those points that were made in the previous article, and to present the true motivating force behind the decision, it is necessary to present the side of the council.

Council's Administration

The overall decision that Mr. Hubbard arrived is that customs will be made the "Berkeley" of Yuletide Festive. The most important participant in this and any proceeding Yule Dates Committee has justified this claim since it has not been the success in in spite of that customs have been more or less but with firmness and good will and with a real unselfishness a

CAMELS for Mildness

Yes, Camels are 50 MILDS that in a coast-to-coast test of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—over a 30-consecutive-day period, noted throat specialists, making weekly examinations, reported:

Not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking Camels!

Christmas Festivities

sore and walkie-tire dancers, and it is rumored that Santa Claus or a reasonable facsimile thereof might appear for a sneak preview just so that all the kiddies won't be disappointed.

The all night dorm parties will begin as soon as the curfew has rung and the girls have all returned from the dance. It will be a long night filled with gift exchanges, endless bridge games, arguments that will show much promise come down, a perpetual diminishing of the food supply, much scrambling to glimpse the variegated and assorted groups of carolers, and very little sleep in most dorms. At six o'clock the more hardy of the yuletide celebrants will saunt forth to serenade the men's dorms in just retribution.

If this all sounds like a woman's world, it's quite misleading, for the men of Ursinus will be having their own celebrations, if not dorm parties. They will be busy indeed spreading the Christmas cheer from one woman's dorm to another as their voices blend in and out of harmony to the old loved Christmas carols. Some groups have been practicing for quite some time and the result should be most professional.

Of the Thursday morning following there is little that can be said. There are not many who would be awake to hear it said, either, so it shouldn't matter. However, ever on Thursday evening at 7 p.m. the Y and Brotherhood of St. Paul will sponsor the traditional Christmas feast and in conclusion the campus Christmas celebration on the proper reverent note.
