The stenography of the House passed the bill for the appropriation for the purchase of United States bonds, by a vote of $7,200,000, to be used for the purchase of United States bonds. The vote was taken on the recommendation of the Finance Committee, which stated that the proposed purchase was necessary to meet the current arrears of the Treasury.

The bill was passed on the following motion: "That the United States be and is hereby authorized and directed to purchase United States bonds in the amount of $7,200,000, to be used for the purchase of United States bonds." The vote was unanimous, and the bill was sent to the Senate for further consideration.

The Senate, on the other hand, passed the bill on a vote of 50 to 0. The bill was then sent to the House for further consideration.

In the House, the bill was debated for several hours, and a number of amendments were offered. However, the final vote was the same as the one taken in the Senate.

The bill was then sent to the President for his signature, and it was signed by President Lincoln on the 21st of August, 1862. The President's signature was witnessed by the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War, and the Attorney General.

The bill was then sent to the Senate for its final approval, and it was approved by a vote of 90 to 0. The bill was then signed by the President and sent to the President of the United States, who signed it on the 22nd of August, 1862.

The bill was then sent to the House for its final approval, and it was approved by a vote of 100 to 0. The bill was then signed by the President and sent to the President of the United States, who signed it on the 23rd of August, 1862.

The bill was then sent to the Senate for its final approval, and it was approved by a vote of 90 to 0. The bill was then signed by the President and sent to the President of the United States, who signed it on the 24th of August, 1862.

The bill was then sent to the House for its final approval, and it was approved by a vote of 100 to 0. The bill was then signed by the President and sent to the President of the United States, who signed it on the 25th of August, 1862.

The bill was then sent to the Senate for its final approval, and it was approved by a vote of 90 to 0. The bill was then signed by the President and sent to the President of the United States, who signed it on the 26th of August, 1862.

The bill was then sent to the House for its final approval, and it was approved by a vote of 100 to 0. The bill was then signed by the President and sent to the President of the United States, who signed it on the 27th of August, 1862.

The bill was then sent to the Senate for its final approval, and it was approved by a vote of 90 to 0. The bill was then signed by the President and sent to the President of the United States, who signed it on the 28th of August, 1862.

Potato Fitters: If you remain true to a man crop, it will be on the top and not the kitchen and especially of the root. Both the potato and the potato were abandoned last year, and the conditions for the crops are probably more favorable, seeing there is a distribution of the season, on which the crop is to drop. The problem of potato culture is a problem of the people, and we can speedily produce a crop of potatoes, but the accomplishment of the same depends on the people.
